

Chances for Mideast stability greatly improved

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Syrian-Israeli military disengagement accord dramatically improves chances for Middle East stability. And so Syria's anxious ally, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, can begin breathing a little easier.

But his relief must be diluted by an acute awareness of how fragile such an agreement can be.

Bringing Syria under the disengagement tent with Israel and Egypt not only was a breakthrough of incalculable importance, but it was another minor miracle of the sort that is becoming a specialty of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Having produced this wonder, however, Kissinger now must apply his legerdemain to the even more impossible-looking job of turning truce into peace.

Syria long has been the enfant terrible of the Arab world. Her political leaders are invariably under severe pressures generated by the highly emotional Palestine issue. When Kissinger set out to bring Syria into an agreement of any description with the arch-enemy, it had seemed he had taken on a hopeless task.

Meantime, Egypt's President Sadat, eager to get his nation on the road to economic health, must have had many an uneasy moment. All alone in his military disengagement pact with Israel, he was out on a long limb and looking uncomfortable.

In Arabic, "al-Misri" means "the Egyptian," and in this case it had seemed that "al-Misri" would have loved company. Now, at last, he has it.

But had Syria continued to hold out for long, Sadat could have been subject to the same sort of difficulty that plagued him before the October war, when intellectuals demanded an end, one way or another, to the situation of "no war, no peace."

When Arab terrorists burst into the picture so bloodily at a critical moment in the Syria-Israel negotiations, it had seemed all Kissinger's patient labor would go down the drain. The terrorism and consequent Israeli retaliations generated so much emotion on both sides as to make it seem all bets might be off.

Now the scene shifts to the Geneva conference, and if the Syria-Israel phase had looked tough, the Geneva one can be much tougher. Peace, in fact, is a long way off.

The fragile situation still can threaten the fragile agreement, since there can hardly be a secure guarantee against acts by fanatical extremists.

For Israel, security is the name of the game. For Syria, it is "the legitimate rights of the Palestine people," a rhetorical demand that can mean many things, even up to dismantlement of the Israeli state. Some Israelis think the Syrians mean just that.

Syria will continue demanding back all the Golan Heights area it lost in 1967, but Israel will be far from eager to give up a security bird-in-hand for a promise in the bush.

Northern Israel is only a narrow nine-miles-wide neck of land bordered by Arab territory. The Jordan River rises in the Golan area and before 1967 was vulnerable to diversion, a threat to Israel's national water system. Withdrawal from the Golan Heights could make Upper Galilee once again an easy target. Withdrawal from Mt. Hermon would deprive Israel of a clear view all the way to Damascus, a warranty against surprise.

Balancing those major obstacles to peace on that front are such factors as a war weariness now beginning to be noticeable on both sides, plus an apparent determination on the part of the Soviet Union and the United States to handle the area as a dangerous powder keg. Unquestionably the Geneva phase will last a long time, but the outlook seems a lot more hopeful this month than it did last.

Judiciary panel gives Nixon warning on tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee today warned President Nixon he may be providing grounds for impeachment by refusing to honor committee subpoenas for Watergate tapes.

By a vote of 28 to 10, it authorized the sending of a letter to Nixon stating that his refusal will be weighed by the committee when it votes on whether to recommend his impeachment.

"In meeting their constitutional responsibility," the letter says, "committee members will be free to consider whether your refusals warrant the drawing of adverse inferences concerning the substance of the material and whether your refusals in and of themselves constitute a ground for impeachment."

An earlier draft had said members would be "obliged" to draw such an inference, but it was softened at the suggestion of Rep. Lawrence Hogan, R-Md.

Eight Republicans joined with 20 Democrats in approving the letter, which was signed by Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J.

The letter was a response to Nixon's letter of May 22 saying no further Watergate matter would be provided.

In his May 22 letter, Nixon based his refusal to supply 11 tapes subpoenaed by the committee on the grounds that it would lead to "a never ending process" of continuing requests.

Nixon said, "Such a massive invasion into the confidentiality of presidential conversations" would fatally weaken the office of the presidency.

Nixon also told the committee it already had "the full story of Watergate insofar as it relates to presidential knowledge and presidential actions."

The committee letter says: "It is not within the power of the presidency to conduct an inquiry into its own impeachment, to determine what evidence and what version or portion of that evidence is relevant and necessary to such an inquiry."

The letter is considerably stronger than one sent last month after Nixon released edited transcripts of Watergate conversations in place of the tapes the committee had subpoenaed. On that occasion the committee merely sent Nixon a four-line letter saying he had not complied with the subpoena.

Approval of a response to Nixon's letter was only one of several matters to be settled by the committee today after the completion of the preliminary presentation of Watergate evidence.

White House lawyer James D. St.

Clair said the committee's impeachment case does not amount to much, but some committee members disagreed Wednesday.

"Very few prosecutors ever have this kind of evidence available," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., a former federal prosecutor, after the committee wound up the preliminary presentation of Watergate evidence Wednesday.

St. Clair, who has been committed to attend the committee's closed sessions as an observer, said if the impeachment inquiry was an ordinary trial he would be tempted to rest his defense at this point.

"Nothing substantial has been presented," he told newsmen. He also said he thought the committee should call Watergate witnesses and clear up any remaining questions on the cover-up before proceeding to other subjects.

Higher taxes proposed internationally on oil

BY ERIC WAHA
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The chief executive officer of the cartel which handles 80 per cent of global oil exports said today his organization might hike oil taxes rather than prices when a freeze expires July 1.

Abderrahman Khene, secretary-general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — OPEC — said that members might decide to step up their income by increased taxation "to reap the windfall profits" of the Western oil companies.

In an exclusive interview, he made clear OPEC expected the oil companies to absorb this, and not make their customers pay for it by boosting oil prices.

"Not long ago, the oil companies were making a profit of about 50 cents per barrel of crude oil while, starting in the last months, they were making $4 or more," he said.

"Maybe we will try to reap the windfall profits of the oil companies without changing the posted prices" at the meeting of the OPEC oil ministers in Quito, Ecuador starting June 15. Stressing this was his personal opinion, he said this could be done by boosting the government take of the OPEC countries through higher taxation.

OPEC, which includes the Persian Gulf producers, decided here March 16 to extend the freeze of oil prices until July 1, stating they were giving industrialized countries a chance to control their "galloping inflation."

The so-called posted price for Persian crude oil at the time was $11.65. The government take from it by the producing countries was about $7.

The posted price is a tax reference price on which OPEC countries base their taxes and royalties. The actual market price the petroleum companies have been getting for oil has been hovering around $9 a barrel.

OPEC's economic board is currently working out a recommendation for the Quito meeting. Experts expected the recommendation would be for an increased government take, but they did not expect any announcement on the board's work, scheduled to last two to three days.

"Secrecy is not the reason for this," Khene said. "We want to avoid to start speculation by publishing a recommendation which the ministers might not follow."

Khene said the economic board recommended some time ago that the government take should be about $10 per barrel, but that the ministers disregarded the advice at that time.

Turning to the Quito meeting, Khene said.

"This will be an ordinary conference, that is to say a meeting which will deal to a great extent with the administrative work of OPEC. But it also coincides with the period the ministers will have to decide on the level of their government take, that is to say, with the matter of prices for the third quarter of 1974. Maybe we will try to reap the windfall profits without changing the posted prices, by modifications of the present system. This is obviously a very complicated matter and, if a consensus is reached, each country will have to deal with their own oil companies to achieve that goal."

But in response to another question, Khene indicated a consensus was already achieved in preliminary contacts. "I personally think this has already been agreed upon."

In a recent interview, Harry Bridges, president of Shell Oil, said any move by OPEC to increase taxes would hasten the day the international oil companies would lose control of their facilities in producing countries.

Kissinger makes reports on truce

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger arrived here today en route home from his 33-day marathon peace mission, and a senior American official said the cease-fire agreement he mediated between Israel and Syria would take effect as soon as it is signed on Friday.

Before leaving Jerusalem, the American secretary of state told newsmen the pact may become "a turning point in the history of the Middle East."

The senior official, talking to newsmen as the Kissinger party flew here to report to President Anwar Sadat on the accord, said wounded prisoners of war would be exchanged within 24 hours of the signing in Geneva.

As part of the agreement to separate Israeli and Syrian forces in the Golan Heights, the official said, Israel would give up the Golan city of Quneitra and six or seven villages taken in the 1967 war, as well as land gained last October.

The U.S. official said Israel would retain possession of three strategic hills and all of its settlements, but will yield about "a field and a half" of cultivated land east of the disengagement line.

The text of the accord distributed to newsmen gives Syrian and Israeli negotiators until Wednesday to work out details of the troop separation in the Golan Heights.

Actual disengagement is to begin by next Thursday and completed by June 25. All of the remaining 73 Israeli and 408 Syrian, Moroccan and Iraqi prisoners are to be repatriated by Thursday.

The text termed the agreement "a step toward a just and durable peace" on the basis of the United Nations Security Council resolution that declared a cease-fire to the October war.

That resolution called for an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories, but did not say whether Israel is to give up all the land gained in the two most recent Arab-Israeli wars.

In a protocol accompanying the agreement, Israel and Syria agreed that the U.N. peacekeeping force will number about 1,250 men and will carry out regular inspections.

But the force is not to hamper the

More oil embargoes unlikely, experts feel

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's help in negotiating the Israeli-Syrian

troop disengagement virtually eliminates the possibility of another Arab oil embargo, a U.S. energy expert says.

"This agreement removes the major impediment to good relations between the United States and the Arabs," John Wilhelm, director of producer country affairs in the Federal Energy Office, said Wednesday.

Wilhelm's statement capped a day of good energy news for the country. The federal energy chief said electric utilities should have enough fuel to avoid power problems this summer, and it was reported that for the first time this year there are no gasoline shortages at the end of the month.

The diplomatic breakthrough in the Mideast, achieved after 32 days of mediation by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, came just three days before the Arabs were scheduled to meet and review their oil-export policy.

"This virtually eliminates the likelihood of a renewed Arab oil embargo, as far as we can tell," Wilhelm said after the agreement was announced.

"I think with this impediment removed we can be reasonably assured that Arab oil production will increase, especially in Saudi Arabia," he said.

Wilhelm had made a recent visit to Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Libya and reported Arab willingness to increase oil shipments, but said it hinged on U.S.-aided progress in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Wilhelm said Wednesday he could not guess how fast or how far Arab oil production might be increased.

"Their thinking is still in the formative stages on this," he said.

DETROIT (AP) — Maytroit Richard sat behind her boarded living room window reading her hate mail. A member of the black Vietnam veterans group which has pledged to protect her family stood by.

"I'm afraid of my own shadow," said the black mother of six, whose West Side home has been the target of rocks, garbage and harassment since she moved into the previously all-white neighborhood last summer.

"They don't want handguns in this city, but I've got to get one to protect my home," she said, holding her 9-month-old baby girl in her arms.

At first uncertain about whether to flee from the violence, Mrs. Richard, whose children range up to 19 years old, now says she is determined to stay.

Two of the Richard boys played basketball nearby with several neighbors in sight of an unmarked police car.

Police have been guarding her modest home around the clock since last week. Mrs. Richard finally sought their help after a brick was thrown in her basement window. An inscription tied to the brick read: "Go home nigger — can you dig it?"

The Interested Veterans for Economic and Social Progress moved in Wednesday with a pledge of long-term protection.

Earlier this month the home was patrolled by union groups working with the NAACP. Detroit Police Commissioner Philip Tannian visited the home last week and told Mrs. Richard to "hold on."

Since she moved into the neighborhood last July, her windows have been broken, and fish and wine bottles have been thrown in her backyard. Last November a car roared across her front lawn. One of the hate letters was decorated with a large American flag sticker and urged Mrs. Richard to move "with your own kind, where you are wanted."

"I've worked hard, I worked two jobs for four years," said Mrs. Richard, a booking agent. "My mother used to tell me you can't do it all at once, you have to crawl before you walk. Well, I got callouses from crawling."

A giant step for mankind

A tremendous stride toward peace in the Middle East has been made with the Israel-Syria agreement for troop disengagement on the Golan Heights. The accord is a tribute to the stunning success of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who refused to give up a quest for agreement between the two nations which have been at odds since Israel came into existence in 1948. Kissinger should receive world-wide plaudits for his efforts. At the same time and in the perspective of history, the agreement is not self implementing and will require good faith on both sides to settle the numerous and complex questions which remain before permanent peace can be assured.

At the least, however, the prospects are "better than they have been in 25 years," as President Nixon said in announcing the agreement, which follows a much earlier one of a similar nature between the Israelis and Egyptians in January. The way has been cleared for resumption of talks in Geneva to hammer out agreements following the abortive first conference there last December which fell apart because of the intransigence of the Syrians. While the Kissinger success in getting Israel and Syria to agree on disengagement to stop the fighting, the Middle East countries involved in the Geneva talks alone must find the common ground on the political problems which still stand in the way of peace and eventual open borders, trade and diplomatic relations.

Among the thorniest of the problems to be settled is that of the Palestinian refugees in addition to the one of Israeli boundaries in the north, south and east and the Sinai Peninsula. Agreement on those questions, difficult in themselves, may be made more so because the new Israeli government has been thrust into a role that demands caution given the deep divisions within the country over policy and the untied leadership of Yitzhak Rubin, who is succeeding Golda Meir as premier.

The Yom Kippur war of last fall may yet be viewed in the perspective of history as the touchstone for a permanent Middle East peace. Its death and destruction made obvious to all involved the need for an end to real or ever-present threats of war over a quarter century. The Israeli-Syria disengagement plus the earlier one between Israel and Egypt are harbingers of hope that cannot help but generate a cautious optimism that good faith on all sides will bring the Middle East peace for the benefit of the long-time combatants themselves and the world as well.

The Irish situation

The worse result of the general strike and violence against the police and the British forces in Northern Ireland by extremist Protestants is that they apparently won.

Last year the British, in cooperation with moderate Irish in the North, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, and with leaders of the government of the Republic of Ireland, worked out a power sharing plan whereby both religious sectors were represented in the Ulster parliament. The stage appeared set for a gradual relinquishing of British control and that the proposed Council of Ireland would lead to unification of the island. But all that is ended now.

But hard-line Protestants won smashing victories in a spring election. They called the general strike. And they probably were responsible for the bombs in Dublin that killed 28 people.

The current alternatives to British rule in Northern Ireland—reluctant as it is—are union with the Republic or independence for Ulster. The Irish Republican Army, the other terrorist group, wants union. Some extremist Protestants want independence. In either case there would be continued bloodshed but, after all, there seems no end to it with current policies either.

Extremist Protestants fear unification is the real aim of the agreement made at Sunningdale and the Council of Ireland and it probably is. The Republic has been modifying its constitution so to make the state church—Roman Catholic—less obvious or restrictive for others. It seems likely that there would be no oppression, as there has been in some Catholic countries, of those who want to worship differently. Even the more subtle discriminations, such as contraceptive bans, are probably disappearing. In a practical sense Ulsterites, Protestant and Catholic, prefer various British medical and welfare programs but Ireland is developing them. In the long run union would be the best solution.

Independence could work, too, if the removal of British troops served to ease tensions, defuse the IRA, and encourage the Protestant majority in the North to end all discriminatory practices toward Catholics such as have existed in areas of housing and employment.

But the trouble in both cases is that violence would most likely continue. Extremist Protestants would fight union as they are now barricading the streets against the police. Without the removal of British troops and invasion by Ireland, union probably could not be accomplished now. Similarly, the IRA would step up terrorist activities if independence moves became serious and more moderate Catholics might be recruited.

Yet, if the violence continues one or the other may happen because the British may simply pack up and go home. They have been so persuaded in other countries such as India almost three decades ago and Rhodesia far more recently.

Meanings of higher education merger

MADISON—Nearly four years after the bold plan was unveiled by Gov. Patrick Lucey as Exhibit A of his determination to make a mark on his times after his decisive election, the integration of the massive higher education service program supported by the people of Wisconsin has been assured.

The universities merger bill, so-called, stood as his chief accomplishment during the first legislative term following his election, just as the sweeping tax policy adjustments of his second budget will doubtless be remembered longest of the deeds of the second half of the first four-year administration in state government experience.

Paraphrasing, students of public affairs are likely to cite the switch to four-year tenure for Wisconsin governors as the chief factor enabling him to achieve so many changes in state policy, the merit of them aside.

There never was much doubt that the merger "implementation" bill of this year would be enacted. For the most part it involved details of internal administration that had only a glancing public interest, and therefore comparatively little public awareness. The meaning of the long quarrel in the legislature, in contrast to the comparatively easier acceptance of the basic idea of union two years ago, was the revelation of a change of heart among the bureaucratic forces within the merged system.

Historically the smaller state universities, which grew out of what were previously called state colleges, which in turn descended from the original teacher training school system, had been friendly to the idea of elevation of their stature and the prestige of their faculties and administrative officers that presumably would result from union with the older, more widely known, more generously supported, and more celebrated University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Conversely, the traditional response of the University of Wisconsin and its faculty, administration, and more numerous and influential alumni was hostile to the idea of a single higher educational system. In that view union would be a leveling to the status of the "lesser" schools, rather than an elevation of the smaller institutions to the stature of the proud University of Wisconsin, which long ago became one of the nation's largest and most highly regarded state-supported institutions.

But as the smaller schools examined their new role and as a gradually shrinking of enrollment brought worries about sharing the funding that the legislature might authorize, the less they liked their prospect. Simultaneously, the men of the University of Wisconsin parent campus at Madison concluded that the union they had protested over many previous decades, under a succession of leaders, might not be such a ridiculous scheme after all.

The major reason for the protracted and sometimes vindictive quarrelling that accompanied the union, the sympathetic sidelineer must conclude, was the evidently ineradicable habit of politicians to claim that any change in public affairs housekeeping can be justified only by a claim of tax dollar savings resulting.

That is not to say that actual and true economies are undesirable. But the reality is that they are never demonstrated. Moreover, it is absurd to claim they can be shown at a time when price inflation blurs comparisons hopelessly.

A more important consideration in the union of an admittedly costly system of two university services—altogether representing an extraordinarily high tax effort by the people of Wisconsin—was the democratization of college level educational opportunity supported by the people of Wisconsin.

Gov. Lucey once put it nicely when he said there is no reason why Susan, who lives far from Madison, should be required to attend a nearby state university even if it does not offer what she needs or wants, while her cousin Joe enrolls at Madison because of the accident that the U. W. campus is convenient.

The true meaning of higher education union was equalization of opportunity. It followed logically the principle long ago established for elementary and secondary schools in the state school tax equalization laws.

'Junk mail' brightens day for many people

The way most people play games, of any sort, tells you more about their true character than the way they do "serious" work, which is usually masked by conventional and conformist behavior.

I have never understood why so many people seem to resent getting what they call "junk" mail at home, in my own view, any mail brightens the day—and sometimes the "junkier" the more amusing.

Speaking of mail, I've always been attached to Thornton Wilder's comment, when he was a captain in World War I, in a letter to Alec Woolcott: "Nothing so lifts a soldier's morale as getting a letter from home, and nothing so depresses him as reading it."

The divorce rate will not diminish until many more persons contemplating marriage stop concentrating on whether the other is the "right person" and start reflecting on whether they are the right person, for every one who mistakes the nature of a prospective mate, a dozen misunderstand their own nature, their own needs, and their own motivation.

Congressional trips now secret affairs

Congress overreacted badly last year to public complaints about a legislative practice both necessary and dear to the hearts of its members, but vulnerable to much abuse.

Consequently, it is practically impossible this year to find out which Congressmen are taking what junkets overseas, and how much taxpayers' money they spend in the process.

The records relating to Congressional travel abroad were closed to the public by a little amendment to a State Department authorization bill that passed quietly while nobody was looking. The speedy maneuver, in fact, demonstrated that Congress is quite capable of functioning efficiently in its own protection, if not for other, less intimate causes.

Unfair attacks

It was a bad move, particularly at a time when these same Congressmen are busy trying to convince the voters they are opposed to secrecy in government. The public has a right to know how its money is being spent by its elected officials. In fairness, however, it must be added that Congressional trips abroad have become an annual target for unfair attacks by a variety of crusaders and nitpickers. The tone of most stories written about Congressional travel has been accusatory as though such trips serve no useful purpose except to give the Congressman a cheap vacation.

There were undoubtedly many trips that did more for the Congressman's ego than for his education. Members of Congress and their aides spent at least $1.1 million on foreign travel in 1971 and $855,000 in 1972, according to the Congressional Quarterly. That's a great deal of money, and not everyone on Capitol Hill is conscientious about expense account details.

But extensive travel in foreign countries is practically essential to maintain a knowledgeable Congress. Nearly every Congressional committee deals with problems that are affected by international economics, cultures and politics. And every Congressman is called upon to cast a vote on dozens of major measures every year which influence our position in the world.

International intricacies

Most newly elected Congressmen are relatively naive about foreign affairs, they have tended to concentrate upon local issues that affect their districts directly. Yet if they are to vote wisely on questions of national as well as local importance, they must rapidly absorb the intricacies of international relationships. One of the best ways to do that is to travel abroad, and learn from other nations at first hand. The nation cannot afford a Congress of "Ugly Americans," looking only inward and not beyond the seas.

Nor should Congressmen be expected to pay for such trips out of their own pockets, so long as their purpose is the legitimate expansion of experience and knowledge.

Unfortunately, Congressional spending watchdogs have smeared the valid trips as well as the vacation rip-offs with the naughty word "junket." Congress, however, should have responded to the public relations problem by imposing tighter expense account controls and trip-justifying procedures, not by going underground on the whole subject.

Secrecy is not a good answer, simply because it won't work for long. Just ask Richard Nixon about the wisdom of cover-ups.

Invasion of amateur writers

First there were the lawyers. Now the authors are reaping profits from Watergate and its related or even unrelated scandals.

H. Howard Hunt was a writer before it all broke, the author of several books of the spy variety. But the others have come lately. The former vice president, Spiro Agnew, has reportedly sold a novel about some aspect of political life for $100,000. Now Jeb Magruder and James McCord, both convicted in regards to Watergate, have published books about their experiences. Currently they are selling almost as well as the Presidential transcripts. Martha Mitchell is also rumored to be penning her memoirs. Gordon Liddy, who just won't talk, may be earning a living in jail by providing legal help to fellow cons. Once that source dries up, he may also turn to the typewriter and his revelations ought to make fascinating reading. But there is a time for everything, we learn from the Bible, and if he waits too long, the market might be dry—or flooded.

It probably is only right and fitting. After all the writers have lost their government salaries and some will be barred from former professions. They have to eat just like the rest of us.

Government comparisons of automobiles available

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — If you could compare figures on automobile pickup ability, braking power and tire load capacity, would you consult them before buying a new car?

If so, you might be interested in a series of books that have been published with very little publicity by the government for more than three years. The fourth set, on 1974 cars, has just been released by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Each car manufacturer also publishes the information but only for cars he sells. Dealers are required to furnish such literature to prospective purchasers on request.

But relatively few people know that any of this useful information is readily available, and even fewer people use it.

One reason is that dealers have not been very interested in letting the material out, especially if it does not reflect well on their own cars. Another reason is the difficulty of comparing figures on similar models.

Naturally, a dealer would not voluntarily provide data showing competing makes in a better light. Even the government books list cars by their rankings. In order to compare competing makes, the reader must consult the index and draw up his own table.

Slight differences between cars may not be significant, because the figures are merely minimums certified by manufacturers.

But the relative rankings cannot be dismissed because each manufacturer is under the same pressure to provide the most favorable figure without risking a legal challenge. Severe penalties can be imposed if the certified data prove to be erroneous.

The net result is that the figures tend to be on the conservative side, all cars can be expected to exceed them in performance, at least at first, and some may do much better.

Differences in pickup ability vary greatly, according to the government book entitled: "Acceleration and Passing Ability." It shows that special-order Chryslers take 28.3 seconds to speed up from 50 to 80 miles per hour in order to pass another vehicle while the Porsche Carrera needs only 9 seconds.

Next worst, in order, are all models of the Mercedes-Benz 240D, Mercury Montego Six, Ford Torino Six, Ford Pinto station wagons, Mercury Montego and Ford Torino station wagons, Checker taxi cabs and sedans and all four-door sedans and coupes of the American Matador Six.

Next best to the Porsche Carrera are the Dodge Charger and Coronet and Plymouth Satellite, all models except station wagons and taxis, followed by Dodge Challenger and Plymouth Barracuda models with 360 CID V-8 engines.

Porsche models also did well in the brake test, ranking only behind the Alfa Romeo. The Alfa Romeo 2000 G.T. Veloce and the 200 Spider Veloce took 160 feet to stop from a speed of 60 miles per hour. Last on the list, taking 258 feet to stop, are Fords, Lincoln Continentals, Thunderbirds and Mercurys with special option tires.

The three books are available from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. The cost is $1.05 for the book on acceleration, 95 cents for "A Comparison of Tire Reserve Load" and 85 cents for "A Comparison of Braking Performance," all for 1974 cars.

Courts

A June 7 trial was set Tuesday for Steven Cahee, 18, 1939 N. Casaloma Drive, charged with obstructing police.

Cahee is accused of giving false information to police concerning the whereabouts of a 17-year-old runaway Appleton girl on May 8. The trial date was set by Judge R. Thomas Cane in Outagamie County Court Branch 3.

Froehlich amendment would restrict poverty program financed abortions

Special to The Post-Crescent
WASHINGTON, D.C. —With a backing of the entire Wisconsin delegation, liberals and conservatives alike, 8th Dist. Rep. Harold V. Froehlich, Appleton, Wednesday won House passage for restrictions on federal payment of costs related to abortion under anti-poverty programs. Over the objection of Rep. Bella Abzug, D-New York, who protested that the move was hypocritical and aimed only at poor women, the House approved a modified version of the Froehlich amendment on a 290-91 vote.

Froehlich first tried to block federal payment of any medical costs related to abortion or sterilization under anti-poverty programs but settled for a modified version of his amendment which blocked payments only in the case of abortions.

Ms. Abzug led the fight against both provisions, winning only the battle against the sterilization provision. The issue developed during consideration of the community services act, designed to abolish the war on poverty — ERA office of economic opportunities and keep alive anti-poverty programs under the auspices of other federal agencies. Passage of the community services act came on a 331-53 vote.

It faces stiff administration opposition in the form passed by the House and if approved by the Senate may face a White

Microwaves kill insects, improve crops

MILWAUKEE (AP) —Microwave, a relatively new feature of kitchen cookery, shows potential for growing groceries and keeping the bugs off the crops.

Three researchers from Iowa State University said microwaves may replace pesticides, and two agricultural engineers from the University of Nebraska said they have been able to make alfalfa seed germinate more effectively by using the new technology.

Their reports are in papers prepared for presentation today to the International Microwave Power Institute, sponsored by Marquette University.

Hazards of microwave are reflected in a proposal issued Wednesday by the Food and Drug Administration for requiring warning labels on microwave ovens and other highspeed cooking devices employing the silent, invisible radiation.

Consumer's Union, a nonprofit research organization, has expressed concern about skin burns and eye damage from microwave leakage.

Iowa State researchers G. E. Fanslow, J. J. Tollefson and J. C. Owens said they used microwaves to kill eggs of the southern corn rootworm, against which considerable pesticide is used in the nation's corn belt.

Their paper said electromagnetic energy could be the answer to excessive use of chemicals, but that one of the main questions they have not answered "is the energy level required to produce a specific effect on a given insect" infesting a particular crop.

Nebraska's S. O. Nelson and L. E. Stetson said microwave seems capable of overcoming a condition known to farmers as "hard seed," which causes seeds to refuse to germinate when exposed to moisture.

Their report said "hard seed" sometimes affects 50 per cent of a planters' supply, increasing food costs and exacerbating seed shortages.

Conventional use of mechanical abrasives to make stubborn seeds more permeable too often damages the seed, it said.

A paper submitted by researchers from Texas A. & M. said egg production decreased when chickens were exposed to microwave and that shell quality was poorer.

But the radiation did not seem to affect fertility, the researchers said, adding that the experiments used greater amounts of radiation than could be expected from microwave kitchen equipment.

Applications filed for 2 nuclear plants

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Four electric utilities applied Wednesday for permits to build nuclear-powered generating plants.

The applications were filed with the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington, D.C., by Wisconsin Power and Light Co., Wisconsin Electric Power Co., Wisconsin Public Service Corp. and Madison Gas and Electric Co.

A spokesman said the utilities plan to locate two 900,000-kilowatt units on the same site, but that the site has not been chosen.

Madison Gas and Electric said the application was for "one or more nuclear power plants" and that the first documents describing where the utilities want to build will be filed this summer.

The utilities said they hope to have the generators in service in 1981 or 1982.

Sites they have considered include Lake Koshkonong in Jefferson County, Glenhaven in Grant County, the Town of Paris in Kenosha County, Wood County north of Wisconsin Rapids, and near Haven in Sheboygan County.

House veto.

After Ms. Abzug raised her objections, Rep. David Treen, R-La., won voice approval of a provision stripping Froehlich's amendment of its sterilization section.

Treen had argued that the Froehlich amendment probably was aimed at involuntary sterilization but suggested the voluntary sterilization, if acceptable to the participant, should not be barred from federal programs aimed at family planning. Ms. Abzug said that the amendment was aimed at women alone, whatever the provisions.

"What is your definition of sterilization?" she asked Treen. "An operation making it impossible for an individual to conceive," he replied. "Have you ever heard of vasectomy?" she asked.

The approval of the modified Froehlich amendment came over the objections of Rep. Donald Fraser, D Minn., who said that the proposal would not block abortions alone, but would also prevent federal payment of costs of medical care needed by poor women subject to illegal or poorly-handled abortions.

"You wouldn't outlaw abortion," he told the House. "You would only outlaw it for poor people," he said of the impact of the amendment.

Froehlich, in defense of his proposal, said simply that it was designed to modify a section of the act which is not likely to be used. But, it put into effect, he said, that family planning provisions should not include abortions or sterilization as acceptable means of family planning under federal financing.

Ms. Abzug called the amendment, "illegal and unconstitutional" pointing to the Supreme Court decision opening the door to most abortions.

"All you do," she said of the amendment "is hypocritically allow middle class women to continue to have abortions in this country" she said.

All Wisconsin members were present, and all Republicans and Democrats alike voted for the Froehlich amendment.

UW faculty ethics code criticized

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—A proposed code of ethics for professors has encountered opposition from faculty members, a University of Wisconsin professor said Wednesday.

The code defines unethical conduct and suggests penalties of up to $5,000 and one year in jail.

Prof. Ted Finman, chairman of the University Committee, said some of the prohibited activities are not ethical issues, but "work rules."

The code would require approval from administrators for a planned absence from class would limit professors' earnings from outside work, would require faculty members to report all nonuniversity employment, and would restrict association with firms doing business with the university.

A UW code of ethics was ordered by the state legislature when it established the State Ethics Board for public officials.

Finman said he plans to present the faculty's viewpoint to the Board of Regents at its June meeting.

Mercy Medical names Schlueter new president

OSHKOSH — Bernard J. Schlueter was named Tuesday as new president of Mercy Medical Center, effective July. Schlueter, who has served as vice president at the center for almost two years, succeeds James P. Fitzgerald, who resigned recently to become president of a Dayton, Ohio hospital. A native of Dubuque, Iowa, Schlueter holds a master's degree in hospital administration from the University of Iowa. Before coming to Oshkosh, he held administrative posts at St. Francis Hospital in Peoria, Ill., and at Holy Family Hospital in Manitowoc. In his new post, Schlueter will serve as chief executive officer of Mercy Medical Center, which consists of a 325-bed hospital, a 106-bed extended care center, and schools of nursing, anesthesia, medical technology and radiologic technology. With more than 1,000 employees and an annual budget of nearly $11 million, Mercy Medical Center is the largest health complex in the Fox River Valley and the ninth largest in the state.

Compromise near on power plant siting bill

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —A legislative conference committee agreed Wednesday that Public Service Commission hearings should figure in proposed rules for governing the selection of power plant sites.

The agreement indicated the siting issue was moving successfully toward a compromise on Assembly and Senate differences.

The role of hearings had been one of the two main issues which stalled the legislation during the current special session of the legislature.

The committee did not immediately outline the role of PSC hearings, but commission chairman William Eich said the action taken Wednesday could clear away much of the opposition to the original legislation.

Assembly members of the committee said they want major public participation in planning of sites, if not actual control over the location of plants.

Senate spokesmen said the bill should provide "all reasonable opportunity for questions for the purpose of information and clarification."

The Senate proposal would require quick action on utility expansion plans and would prevent municipalities from preventing utilities from making tests of proposed sites.

The Assembly and Senate passed different versions of the bill concerning state approval of electrical generating plant construction.

In contrast to Eich's optimism, Republican Sen. Milo Knutson of La Crosse declared that the six committee-men had reached "an impasse, a stalemate."

Indeed, the committee had voted 3-3 on whether to report Knutson's opinion to their respective houses.

"For all practical purposes, this will be the last meeting," Knutson said.

Committeemen from the Republican-

PSC authority over gas use challenged

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —Lawyers for the energy industry say they are ready to challenge the Public Service Commission's authority to conserve natural gas.

The opinion was delivered Wednesday to the commission during a hearing on how to avoid energy shortages and on whether the emphasis on conservation should be aimed at dwellings or businesses.

Allen W. Williams Jr., a Milwaukee attorney representing Wisconsin Gas Co., argued the commission has no authority for "regulation of gas use through direct control over the consumer."

"Further, the PSC cannot require the utilities to exercise control over the use adopted by each ultimate consumer," he contended.

The commission has expressed the theory that cooperation between gas companies and their customers can satisfactorily save gas.

The hearings, it said, are designed to help determine if the PSC can issue orders for curtailing "nonessential uses" of fuel through such tactics as lowered thermostat settings and installation of insulation.

Williams insisted the PSC is limited by law to regulating utilities' rates. There would be constitutional questions raised by the commission's use of police authority to conserve, he said.

G. W. Bomier of Racine, general manager of Wisconsin Natural Gas Co., said the most fertile ground for conservation of fuel is in industry rather than the dwelling.

"I don't think you can get people to live in chilly homes," he said, and "I don't think you can get people to work in 78-degree temperatures in the summer."

Heat exchange equipment and other technological devices can be budgeted more easily by big business for saving fuel, he said.

"Industry is where the battle will be won," he said, "wherever an economic incentive" can be created.

The hearing was addressed by an environmental lobbyist, Peter Anderson of Wisconsin's Environmental Decade, who asked the lawyers if utilities "have a right to squander the waste material resources."

Ruling soon on professor layoffs

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —Judge James E. Doyle of U.S. District Court said Wednesday he hopes to rule next week whether tenured professors laid off by the University of Wisconsin were denied due process of law.

Doyle hears oral arguments on a request by 38 professors at six UW campuses for a preliminary injunction reinstating their jobs, which are to expire June 30.

The professors are from the Platteville, Whitewater, Stevens Point, Oshkosh, Stout and Eau Claire campuses.

The Association of University of Wisconsin Faculties and the Wisconsin Education Association Council seek the injunction.

The unions said procedures for appealing have denied the professors "a neutral, detached, fair and impartial trial of facts."

Doyle said he would attempt to rule "whether tenured faculty were entitled to certain minimum requirements of fair procedures and whether they received them."

Attorney Michael Weiden, representing the professors, said they were not given a chance to challenge the accuracy of the UW documents which explain the layoffs.

They were dismissed because declining enrollments cannot produce enough revenue to pay their salaries, the colleges said.

The state would have to come up with an extra $600,000 to pay them for another year if their jobs are reinstated, Asst. Atty. Gen. LeRoy Dalton told Doyle.

ruled Senate objected to hearings at which local spokesmen could frustrate efforts to develop plant plans.

Republican Sen. Jack Steinhilber of Oshkosh said advisory hearings under auspices of Eich's commission would simply provide a forum for lawyers.

"I would rather preserve the local override than to go with the murder trial," he said.

Utilities have said hearings are used too often by environmentalists to stall construction progress.

Steinhilber said hearings would be used "to harass, to intimidate and tie it up."

Republicans said legislative hearings would be preferable to public adversary hearings, at least during planning stages.

Assembly Democrats, led by Rep. James Wahner of Milwaukee, insisted local communities should be allowed some voice in the selection of sites.

Wahner accused Knutson of irresponsibility, declaring "The Senate has torpedoed this bill."

Without a compromise that provides greater citizen involvement, the committee will have "just turned the clock back to 1932," Eich said, referring to the birth date of the existing siting statute.

Syrian civil administrators who will move into the demilitarized zone between the separated armies.

Kissinger and Sadat are to lunch together during a six-hour stopover before the secretary continues to Washington.

Announcement of the Syrian-Israeli agreement Wednesday did not halt fighting in the Golan Heights, and the Syrian command reported the 80th consecutive day of shelling there.

Premier Golda Meir was presenting the pact to the Israeli parliament today, and Information Minister Shimon Peres said it was expected to pass despite opposition from the right-wing Likud bloc.

Israeli officials said Mrs. Meir might resign immediately after a favorable vote, turning over the government to Premier-designate Yitzhak Rabin.

The break-through in reaching agreement came Tuesday when Israel dropped its insistence that the pact incorporate written guarantees against Palestinian terrorist infiltrators from Syria.

In exchange for the crucial concession, Israel reportedly got an American pledge that Israeli retaliation against terrorist attacks would be "understood" in Washington — interpreted to mean the United States would veto any U.N. Security Council resolutions condemning possible Israeli reprisal raids.

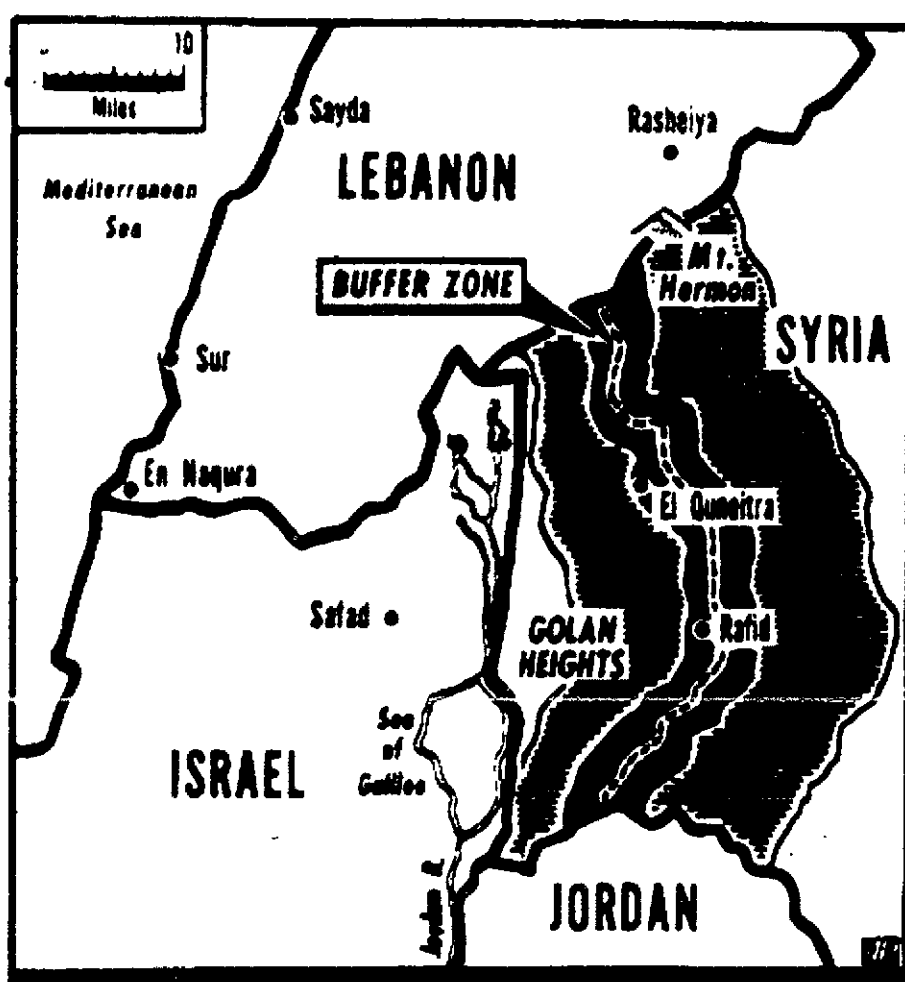

One expected result of Kissinger's 33-day mission is an upswing in relations between Damascus and Washington. At least part of $100 million in contingency funds sought by President Nixon in foreign aid for fiscal year 1973 may be channeled to Syria.

The United States also may provide assistance to rebuild towns and villages shelled during the 1967 and 1973 wars.

Perhaps more significant for the course of events in the Middle East, Syria has been drawn into the Geneva peace conference that it boycotted last December, even though Egypt and Jordan for the first time sat at the same table as Israel.

Kissinger carefully laid the groundwork for the disengagement by cultivating Algeria's Boumedienne along with Egypt's Sadat — Syrian President Hafez Assad's ally in last year's October war.

Now, on his way home to Washington, Kissinger is stopping in Cairo again today both to give Sadat a first-hand report and as a gesture of support.

Disengagement

Map indicates probable disengagement lines between Israel and Syria, according to Israeli sources close to the negotiations. Center black area would be the buffer zone with the shaded area to be the approximate 12-mile zones on either side, where armaments will be restricted. (AP Wirephoto)

White House facing new pressures to furnish tapes in Watergate cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is facing new Watergate court deadlines, one on the orders of a federal judge and the other by invitation of the Supreme Court.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell has ordered Nixon to state in writing by today that he understands charges in the plumbers case against former presidential assistants may be dismissed if subpoenaed notes and records are not provided.

And, Nixon was given until today to reply formally to a request by the Watergate special prosecutor that a lower appeals court be bypassed so the Supreme Court can decide whether he may withhold evidence subpoenaed in the Watergate cover-up trial.

If Nixon refuses to turn over the evidence sought by the defendants in the plumbers case, new ammunition would be provided to the House Judiciary Committee in its impeachment inquiry.

The defendants in that case include former presidential aides John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson, who say they need files left behind in the White House.

Ehrlichman, Colson and three others are accused of violating the civil rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding. Fielding's office was broken into in 1971 in an acknowledged search for information about Ellsberg, the former defense analyst who leaked the Pentagon papers to the press.

At a pre-trial hearing last Friday, Nixon lawyer James D. St. Clair claimed executive privilege in attempting to dissuade the judge from his determined effort to obtain the notes of meetings sought by Colson and Ehrlichman.

Brushing aside the claim, Gesell lectured St. Clair sternly, "There is no executive privilege. I want those documents produced."

The question is, the judge said, "How does the President see his duty to enforce the law when his former confederates are under indictment?"

Gesell has said repeatedly that a final refusal by Nixon would likely result in dismissal of the charges because if the government withholds evidence beneficial to the defense then it may not prosecute its case.

The judge has said it makes no difference that the special Watergate prosecutor's office seeking convictions in the case and the White House are working against each other. To Gesell, they both represent the government.

In the second case, special prosecutor Leon Jaworski is asking the Supreme Court to leapfrog the U.S. Court of Appeals and decide if Nixon may withhold evidence subpoenaed in the Watergate cover-up trial that is scheduled to start Sept. 9.

Jaworski is seeking tapes and documents concerning 64 conversations Nixon had with various aides in 1972.

Crisis talks held in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Northern Ireland's British administrator held crisis talks with Ulster's political leaders today after a night of violence in the predominantly Roman Catholic city of Londonderry.

The army said a band of about 300, many armed with pick handles and garden shears, attacked troops during the night. Soldiers fought back with rubber bullets and antiriot gas.

Seven sniper attacks, without casualties, were also reported.

Merlyn Rees, Britain's minister for Northern Ireland, met with Brian Faulkner, Protestant head of the toppled provincial coalition government, hoping to salvage something of the collapsed power-sharing experiment between Protestants and Catholics.

"I have made it very clear we will co-operate in every way possible to see a new partnership administration formed," Faulkner said.

Rees said his meetings today included talks with hardline Protestant leaders Rev. Ian Paisley, Harry West and William Craig.

Meantime, commercial life of the British province moved toward normal as Protestant workers, satisfied that their 15-day general strike had reversed British efforts to bring minority Catholics into the Ulster government, returned to their jobs.

Rees assumed administration of the troubled province when the British reimposed direct rule from London late Wednesday by suspending the Northern Ireland Assembly for four months.

The move followed the collapse of the provincial Executive on Tuesday over the province-wide economic paralysis caused by the strike.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson termed the developments in Northern Ireland Ulster's "gravest crisis" since World War II. Wilson called Parliament back from spring recess for an emergency session and pledged Rees would make every effort to restore some form of power-sharing arrangement.

But Protestant hardliners were firm against giving the Catholic third of Ulster's 1.5 million people any more power.

"The answer will be 'no' if Rees comes up with that idea," said Craig, leader of the militant Vanguard Movement.

The Ulster Workers' Council warned that the strike could quickly be resumed if demands for early elections for a new provincial assembly were ignored. The militants believe they would win through elections an overwhelming vote of support that would kill British plans which they see aimed at eventual unification of the six counties of Ulster with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

British leaders have not mentioned assembly elections. But bonfires blazing through the night in tough Protestant districts of Belfast showed that for the moment at least the militants are happy with what they have achieved.

The Workers' Council suspended the general strike Wednesday after Protestant workers spontaneously began returning to work in droves.

President was assessed 5 pct. penalty by IRS

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — President Nixon was assessed a 5 per cent negligence penalty by the Internal Revenue Service in connection with $467,000 he owes in back income taxes and interest, a newspaper said today.

The Baltimore Sun, quoting sources familiar with the case, said the IRS included the 5 per cent penalty on April 3 when it assessed Nixon $432,787 in back taxes, plus interest.

The Sun said the dollar amount of the alleged negligence penalty could not be determined.

Nixon has said he would pay the taxes, but the White House has refused to say whether a negligence penalty was involved. The IRS refused comment on the newspaper report, saying it was agency policy not to go beyond what a taxpayer reveals about his own case.

A negligence penalty does not amount to a finding of fraud. It is made for "negligence or intentional disregard of rules and regulations," an IRS spokesman said.

The White House has maintained that any mistakes on Nixon's returns were made by lawyers or accountants who made out his returns, and not by the President.

Meanwhile, the White House announced Wednesday that public donations designed to help Nixon pay his back taxes now amounted to more than $90,000.

Nixon has said he would pay the back taxes himself, even if it meant borrowing the money, and the White House is returning the donations. A spokesman said Wednesday that the $4,341 of the total donated has come anonymously, and that this money was being given to victims of the April tornadoes which hit 13 states.

The White House said most contributions to the President ranged from $1 to $10, and that school children had sent in coins as well. It said the largest contribution was $10,000, but did not identify the donor.

It has been reported that Nixon has already paid a substantial amount of the back taxes, which cover the years 1969 through 1972, but the White House has refused comment on that.

Ad for deleter deleted

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A classified ad in the Baltimore Sun-papers for an "explosive deleter" drew a number of calls to the White House switchboard, an operator there said.

The origin of the ad, which appeared in the newspapers in their Wednesday editions, was not clear. It said:

"Sensitive position preparing official documents for publication. Extensive vocabulary required; retired drill instructor preferred. High pay and good benefits, including executive clemency."

The ad gave the telephone number of the White House switchboard. Queried about the ad, a White House operator said, "We're aware of it. We've had a number of calls." A White House press office employee said, "It's the first I've heard of it."

A newspaper employee said the ad was apparently paid for in cash sometime Tuesday. It did not appear in the Thursday editions.

A century of living for Theresa Remington

100 years young

Mrs. Theresa Remington marked her 100th birthday Wednesday. An exciting few days that began with an Open House at the home of her niece, the birthday itself was highlighted by a luncheon complete with champagne.

The past few days have been filled with excitement for Mrs. Theresa Remington. Wednesday she marked her 100th birthday.

Starting with an Open House Sunday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Vora Gresenz, with whom she has resided for the past 10 years, and continuing through a birthday luncheon Wednesday which was provided complete with champagne for her, her niece, her only living sister and a grand-niece and her husband by a local restaurant, Theresa has been at the center of a really "glorious" time.

Friends and relatives as well as President Nixon and Congressman Harold Froehlich have inundated her with cards and notes of congratulations, bouquets of beautiful flowers, gifts from friends, fill the living room and dining room of the house.

Sunday's Open House was attended by more than 60 friends and relatives, making it that special kind of occasion that will be remembered for years to come.

Theresa was born May 29, 1874, in Sheboygan to Mr. and Mrs. William Schartau, the second in a family of 12 children.

When Theresa was 10, the family moved to a farm in Adelle in Sheboygan County and 10 years later to another near Hortonville.

During these years, she recalls, she and one of her brothers used to go maple sugaring, pulling a sled behind a horse as they collected enough sap to make between 75 and 100 gallons of maple syrup.

She vividly remembers, too, one evening when she was in Dale, winning a waltz contest and receiving a sewing cabinet filled with a variety of items as first prize.

Theresa spent most of her 100 years in Oshkosh, although for the past 23 she has been in Appleton, living first with her sister, Ella Oelke in her home on Pacific Street, and then 10 years ago the pair moved in with Ella's daughter, Vora.

Theresa married twice, the first ending in divorce with both just "going their separate ways." The second marriage lasted nine and one-half years and ended with the death of her husband, Frank Remington in 1933. During those years, the couple ran the Clifton Hotel and Frank was a candidate for sheriff of Winnebago County.

Although she attended school through the fourth grade and spent two years in German school preparing for her confirmation in the Lutheran church, Theresa was working by the time she was 15. In those early working years, she did housework, later becoming a pastry cook at Oshkosh's City Market. Recalling those years as happy ones, she would make 100 dozen donuts a day along with 80 pies.

She was also employed through the years by many well-known families in Oshkosh including Congressman and lawyer, Frank Keefe. Keefe's wife preferred to remain in Oshkosh while her husband went off to Washington, D.C., so Theresa remained too, cooking and helping to take care of the family.

Always extremely interested in politics, something that still holds her attention, Theresa often was a confidant of Keefe's when he had a problem to discuss since he knew what was said would go no farther.

Travel was something she enjoyed too. She went to Alberta, Canada, three times to visit one of her brothers, going first by train and later by car. She's been from California to Florida and New York.

Walking has been a favorite pastime, something she feels has contributed to her long life. She remembers, for instance, after she moved to Appleton, walking to St. Mary Catholic Church to attend the funeral of the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy and at least twice a week trekking downtown to shop.

Theresa still loves to whip up a batch of German potato salad for an appreciative family and loves to play sheephead whenever she can. She reads the newspaper with the help of a magnifying glass and dons glasses only when watching television or playing cards. The rest of the time she finds she sees better without them.

To what does she attribute this long and full life? She says she has always taken things that happen in her stride, accepting them as they come along.

Old portrait

An old picture of Theresa, at center, and four of her sisters brought back many memories. Only Ella Oelke, Appleton, at lower right is alive today. Theresa was 27 at this time and Ella, 16. Others are Emma Stolper, then 29, who resided in Adelle, at lower right. At rear are Alvina Grossman, then 23, who lived in Dale, and Louise Pollnow, then 15, who lived in Oshkosh.

OSHKOSH—Six Fox Valley chapters of PEO Sisterhood will share hostess duties when delegates from the 92 Wisconsin chapters gather here this week for the 57th state convention.

Sessions will take place on the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh campus Tuesday through Thursday. Visitors will be housed in UWO's Scott Hall.

Some 400 members, delegates and alternates are expected to attend the convocation. Mrs. Harry K. Spoo and Mrs. R. W. O'Hara, Oshkosh, BA Chapter, are convention chairmen.

Entertaining with the Oshkosh BA Chapter are AG, Oshkosh, B, AT, and CC, Appleton, and BT, Neenah.

"Faith—A Way of Life" is the theme of the convention. Guest of honor will be Mrs. W. H. Smith, Spokane, Wash., third vice president of Supreme Chapter, the national organization. Mrs. Alice Spensley Rinehard, Rhinelander, Supreme Chapter president in 1942-43, will be member of honor.

Delegates will be greeted at Tuesday's opening session in the Fredric March Theater by Mrs. R. E. Churchill, AP, Eau Claire, state president. Mrs. Frank Schultz, BA, Oshkosh, will welcome them for the hostess chapters.

PEO's traditional "Hour of Remembrance" program will begin at 3:30 p.m., before a tour of Evergreen Manor where PEO retirement facilities are located.

The annual Projects Dinner at 7 p.m. in Reeve Union will feature an address by Mrs. Rinehard.

Convention business at Wednesday's morning and afternoon sessions include election of state chapter officers, committee reports, and exemplification of the PEO ritual.

The annual meeting of Wisconsin State Chapter House Fund, the PEO retirement project, is scheduled at 4 p.m.

Wednesday's banquet at Albee Hall is a highlight of the convention when husbands are special guests. Miss Dorothy Draheim, AT, Appleton, will be toastmistress. Allison McCain, Oshkosh, will respond. Entertainment will be by Neenah's Riverside Players.

Concluding sessions Thursday morning will include installation of officers and remarks by Mrs. Churchill and the new president.

Pre-convention events will begin with an executive board meeting at 1 p.m. Monday. Dinner at the Power Boat Club, Butte des Morts, is for honor guests, past presidents, the executive board and other guests.

sions will be by Mrs. Harold Adams, B Appleton, convention accompanist, assisted by Mrs. Agatha Mauthe, BD, Fond du Lac; Mrs. Theodore Irion, BA, Oshkosh; Mrs. Harry I. Miller, AG, Oshkosh; and Mrs. Donald C. Wallis, CC, Appleton. Mrs. Gerald Olson, BA, is convention song leader.

Presidents of the entertaining chapters are Mrs. John Mielke, B; Mrs. William E. Dutcher, AT; Mrs. Charles Kleveno, AG; Mrs. Donald Scott, BT; Mrs. Wallis and Mrs. Schultz.

Members of the convention planning committee include Mrs. C. D. Chase and Mrs. Leonard H. Reinke, AG; Mrs. Spoo, Mrs. O'Hara, and Miss Mildred Stickney, BA, all of Oshkosh; Mrs. John Green and Mrs. John P. Olson, B; Mrs.

East-West join forces for senior prom

Appleton High School East-West Senior Prom plans are now being completed. A committee consisting of East and West students has joined forces to make the prom a gala occasion.

The prom will be held at the Conway Motor Inn from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday. Immediately afterward, festivities will continue with a post-prom party at the YMCA with swimming, rock music by "Timepiece" and breakfast at 6 a.m.

Betsy Brunken and Jon Slavik are co-chairing this year's event. Publicity is being headed by Debbie Stinemates and Kim Taylor with Cari Griffin and Lisa Coburn in charge of decorations.

Tickets for the combined prom and post-prom parties may be obtained only by seniors from numerous students at either of the two high schools.

Wisconsin's 92 local chapters with 4,000 members are part of an organization which last year counted a total membership of 211,488 women in 4,484 chapters.

The sisterhood is a philanthropic and educational organization interested in bringing to women greatly increased opportunities for higher education. Its purposes are accomplished through the PEO Educational Fund which provides loans to students, Cottey Junior College for Women, Nevada, Mo., PEO supported since 1927, and the International Peace Scholarship Fund. The IPS since 1949 has provided post-graduate scholarships to 1,250 students from 82 countries at 226 schools. Funds expended have totaled $1,849,146 to 1973.

New BPW head named

DARBOY—Mrs. Joy Brouillard was named president of the Appleton Business and Professional Women's Club at the group's May meeting at the Darboy Club.

Serving with her will be Elizabeth Kolosso, first vice president; June Weatherwax, second vice president; Eunice Eggenberger, treasurer; Sharon Green, recording secretary, and Germaine Bassett, corresponding secretary. Past state president Evelyn Ecker conducted the installation ceremony.

The former head of the state group was chosen to represent the club at the national convention to be held July 21 through 25 in Chicago.

The objectives of the Wisconsin Federation of Business and Professional Women shall be: To eliminate the standards for women in business and in the professions, to promote the interests of business and professional women; to bring about a spirit of cooperation among business and professional women of the United States, and to extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along lines of industrial, scientific and vocational activities.

Government projects

If you wonder why taxes are so high, you might take note of the following items, reported in the June issue of Reader's Digest: among projects currently being financed by the federal government, i.e. the taxpayer, are a $71,000 history of the comic book, a $50,000 analysis of U.S. - Canadian fur trade from 1770 to 1820, and a $5,000 study of the "evolution of the chin in Polish skeletal populations between 2000 B.C. and A.D. 1800."

Think before making lead you may regret

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Very few players give much thought to the opening lead. Any reasonable card will do to start the play, and they begin to think only after the dummy has appeared on the table.

Opening lead — ♦ K

Take the West hand today, for example. If West postpones his thinking, he will lead the king of diamonds.

Declarer takes dummy's ace of diamonds, cashes the ace of clubs and ruffs a club in dummy. He ruffs a diamond in his hand, ruffs another club in dummy, ruffs another diamond and then a third club with dummy's last trump.

South makes five trumps in his own hand, three ruffs in the dummy and two side aces. The total comes to ten tricks, and South is home.

EARLY THOUGHT

The result is different if West thinks before he chooses his opening lead. The bidding gives the impression that South has 9 or 10 cards in the black suits.

West looks at his own hand and sees considerable length and strength in clubs. He should expect dummy to be very short in clubs.

These simple reflections should warn West that declarer will probably cross-ruff to make his contract. Since the best defense against a cross-ruff is to lead trumps at each opportunity, West should open a trump.

With a trump opening lead South is in trouble. If he ruffs only twice in dummy he will fall one trick short. South's best chance is to win the opening lead in dummy and lead a club to finesse with the queen. The finesse loses, and West leads another trump, whereupon South is in even worse trouble than before.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player bids two spades. Neither side is vulnerable. You hold: S-6 5 4, H-4 3, D-K Q 10 9, C-K J 9 6. What do you say?

ANSWER: Double. You were going to bid 3 NT if the opponent had passed, so you can't afford to pass two spades. Still, you have no attractive bid. A double should produce at least 300 points despite your trump weakness.

Tunney bill offers flexible work hours

The rigid work schedules of most employment situations present problems both to men whose responsibilities limit their employment availability as well as to men who would like to share more family responsibilities.

Reflecting the needs of such people as well as those of people who wish to combine employment with education or who wish to move into retirement slowly, Sen. John V. Tunney, R-California, introduced a bill (S 2122) last June to increase the opportunities for flexible hours in federal employment.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-New York, later introduced a similar bill (HR 9699) in the House of Representatives.

During a phase-in period of five years Federal Civil Service would expand flexible hours opportunities up to 10 per cent at all levels, attach full fringe benefits to those jobs, promote the expansion of the idea among public and private employers generally, and conduct research and experimentation to implement the idea.

'Lunch hour' — a tribal custom

For the last ten years I've worked from my home and if there's one thing I've missed it's that great American tribal custom called, "The Lunch Hour."

At home, it's nothing. You open up the refrigerator door and if it doesn't attack you, repulse you, run from you, or multiply before your eyes, you eat it and get back to work.

In an office, The Lunch Hour dominates the entire day beginning from the moment you arrive until you leave. Important decisions like "What time are you eating lunch?" "Where are you eating lunch?" "With whom are you eating lunch?"

I once worked in an office where we arrived at 10 and immediately reported for a "Lunch Hour briefing." There was a makeshift ward room containing a map equivalent to the one the English used in World War II to keep track of their ships. Only we used small plastic people representing the office force on a map of the city.

When we were all assembled, I asked for a show of personnel. "All right, how many are eating lunch today?"

The two on diets and the one who was going to have something brought in to make a late afternoon dental appointment were eliminated faster than a croupier who won for the house at Las Vegas.

"All right, that leaves five of you." "I want to go at 11:30 and avoid the rush at a new place called, 'Sammy's,'" said Ruth.

I checked my map. "Sammy's is a 35-minute ride. That means you won't be back in time for your coffee break."

"Then I'll go at 11." "So, I'll go at 12:30," said Jean. "Marcia and I will go together."

"You can't go together. That leaves the phones unmanned." "What about Sarah who is having something brought in?" "If Ruth is bringing me lunch and arrives in time for her coffee break, I'll be in the restroom eating."

"That leaves newcomer Debbie. Could you eat in the company cafeteria at 10:30?"

"It's 10:35 now." "So, take an extra five minutes." These briefings went on every day for three years when one morning the editor came in and said, "Will you knock it off with the lunch hour plans. We have a paper to get out!"

It was the first time any of us knew what they produced in the building (Copyright, 1974)

Ann Landers

Sex without love 'lousy'

Dear Ann Landers: A while back you asked teen-age boys to write and tell you how they felt about losing their virginity. I laughed when I read their letter because somehow one doesn't think of boys as "virgins." Then I stopped laughing and began to think seriously about my first sexual experience.

I was 16 and the girl was 15. I really didn't like her very much but I wanted to see if I could score because all the guys in my crowd were talking about the chicks they were knocking off and I was the only one who didn't have anything to my credit.

It was a crummy thing I did. I lied and told the girl I had been crazy about her for a long time—a real snow job.

The whole "affair" lasted five minutes. I felt like a heel immediately after. When I took her home I didn't even kiss her goodnight.

I never called her for a date after that and I'm sure I hurt her feelings something terrible. I used that dumb kid for my own selfish purposes and to this day I regret it.

Sex without love is lousy. I hope every guy who reads this will remember what I am saying. It took me two years to get over that experience. The next time I had sex, it was with a girl I really cared about, and I married her.—No Name Please

Dear No Name: Thanks for telling it like it was.

Dear Ann Landers: I am beginning to think I have bats in the belfry. Please tell me if you think I'm crazy.

When I was in my early 20s I enjoyed men my own age, and I married one. We had a good marriage for eight years, until Jim died in a tragic accident. It took me a year to get over it.

When I once again began to enjoy the company of men, they were in their 30s, and so was I. Now I'm in my 50s. I never remarried but I have several gentleman friends who are also in their 50s.

The point I want to make is this: Why do so many young girls run after men who are 20 and 30 years older than themselves? It's got to be money because these girls are not chasing older men of modest means. It's always some rich geezer. I call it prostitution no matter how you look at it.

Don't these girls realize that when the glamour wears off they'll be bored stiff and stuck playing nurse to some sick old buzzard? Why don't you tell them, Ann?—Seen It Happen

Dear Happen: When they ask me, I tell 'em. But everyone knows of at least one exception to which they fiendishly point to prove you're all wet. (I know a few myself.)

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell your readers recovered alcoholics and handicapped people make the best employees. As the personnel director for a large firm I can vouch for them—both men and women.

The A.A.s and the handicapped are my most valuable employees. Their attendance record is by far the best and their job performance superior. It means a great deal to these people that someone had enough faith in them to give them a chance.

Please, Ann, urge your readers to hire recovered alcoholics and the handicapped. —Proof Positive

Dear Proof: Right you are! And I'd like to add a third group. Ex-convicts have proven to be excellent employees.

How to make-up for camera's eye

Early summer means lots of special occasion camera clicking. Graduation, engagement, weddings and exceptional weekends that warrant exceptional photographs are close upon us.

The important point to remember is that the camera eye registers makeup in a different way than your own. In a black-and-white photo colors appear as different degrees of gray. If you have used a deep shade of blusher, for example, it will photograph as a dark matte gray and make your cheeks look flat. In the same vein, a too-dark shade of lipstick will cause your mouth to appear to be very prominent.

In color photography, on the other hand, bright shades can come across as vivid. If you use a bright red lipstick and too-soft eye makeup, your lips may overpower your eyes in the picture, and you won't feel the picture shows the "real you."

Keep the following tips from Aziza in mind, to have pictures you want to save.

First, choose a foundation shade with warm tones...you don't want to appear "ghostly" pale. Apply makeup with a light touch...too much, and the camera's magnifying qualities will make it look like a mask.

Should you have a blemish, don't try to cover it with lots of foundation...it will only look cakey and inadvertently emphasize the area you're trying to play down.

If it's a formal picture, ask the photographer to retouch it, otherwise, divert the camera's attention by playing up your prettiest feature, your eyes.

Since they're your most expressive asset, your eyes deserve special attention. Some girls feel brow color and eye liner need to be exaggerated for pictures but in fact, the opposite is true.

A too-heavy brow will give you a stern appearance and be an unflattering frame for your face. Eye-liner should always be soft but especially so for photos. Skipper blue, brown or green in a thin, thin line just at the lash line is best.

As for highlighters, a little gleam is great for photo-taking, but avoid stark white. Instead, call attention to your eyes by using a "summer weight" pastel shadow which harmonizes with what you're wearing.

Blue is especially good for black-and-white photography (most models wear blue shadow for black-and-white shots), raspberry or chocolate are ideal for color photography. (Don't forget to first freshen your eyes with eye drops, so your whites are super-white to best emphasize your natural eye sparkle!)

The camera definitely washes out pale, thin lashes, so if yours are light or sparse, pay extra attention to them. Use a lash-coloring mascara that is also a lengthener.

Apply it generously from lash base to tips on both upper and lower lashes. Allow it to dry for a second or two, and apply a second coat. And don't forget the top sides of upper lashes!

Now, add your lipstick and lots of gloss to super-shine lips — then relax and smile.

Parents and Children

Child's sensitivity to music

Your baby can hear from the time he is born. And, although he cannot distinguish between many sounds at first, he quickly learns to determine pleasant noises from unpleasant ones. Long before he can focus his eyes, he'll listen for and recognize those sounds that mean food and comfort. Your approaching footsteps, your soothing voice, the clanking of bottles, and the rustle of dry diapers are among the first really meaningful experiences of his life. It's obvious that he is sound conscious because he reacts to these noises. You may not be able to carry a tune yourself, but you can turn your child's innate sensitivity to sound into musical appreciation. You can lessen, and even kill, your new baby's awareness of sounds, however, by keeping radio and TV sets blaring all day long. Constant noise whether Beethoven or rock, can harm your baby's appreciation of sound. Sounds and rhythms should be alternated with periods of silence. Music that he can eventually copy can be helpful. Snap your fingers, clap your hands, hum, whistle, sing, drum on the table, and dance with him in your arms. These experiences will kindle your baby's musical appreciation.

Babies have a natural sense of rhythm. From 9 months to 1 year old, a child can be taught to clap his hands and to move rhythmically to music in your arms and can learn to "feel" music and to recognize it when hearing it played. You can use records as an aid. An infant will get more out of hearing the same ones played over and over again, than from a large assortment that is played infrequently. Heavily orchestrated records tend to prevent your baby from being able to identify individual instruments and voices.

Folk songs, nursery rhymes and poems set to music, African drum beats, Calypso, ethnic and pop records with a strong beat all provide a good source of sound. If you play such records regularly, and then sing, dance, and clap along, your baby will soon be bouncing up and down in rhythm in crib or play-pen. Make your child aware that he or she can participate and join in the fun of making music. Your baby should learn that music doesn't just come out of a box. So take your child to a parade to hear a live performance.

Conference to probe role of homemakers

GREEN BAY — The University of Wisconsin-Green Bay will be the site June 19 for the second in a series of one-day regional conferences planned to be held around the state on the subject: Homemaking and the Family, Changing Values and Concerns. Speaking at UWGB will be Elizabeth Duncan Kooz, former director of the U.S. Women's Bureau; head of North Carolina Nutrition Office.

The series, which has been planned by the Wisconsin Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, will look at the importance and worth of homemaking; and will question the ways in which society undervalues the homemaking function and all too often the homemaker herself/himself.

It will explore some of the economic risks and penalties the unpaid homemaker does or may at any time face and will examine some serious proposals to solve these economic problems.

Other conference sites include UW-Platteville, June 27, with Esther Peterson, former U.S. Under-secretary of Labor and consumer specialist; Alverno College, Milwaukee, Sept. 18, with Dr. Kathryn Walker, professor of home economics at Cornell University, and UW-Madison, Sept. 28, with Herma Hill Kay, professor at Berkeley University Law School and co-author of, "Sex-Based Discrimination."

Rush's help badly needed at White House

WASHINGTON — Behind President Nixon's S.O.S. to Under Secretary of State Kenneth Rush lies far more than the search for a White House economic coordinator, the role originally planned for him and for which businessman-lawyer Rush seems only marginally suited.

Rather, Mr. Nixon's decision to bring the 64-year-old Rush, his one-time law-school professor, into the beleaguered White House was dictated by worsening policy feuds within the President's official family and the continuing erosion of White House influence over the vast federal bureaucracy.

Mr. Nixon, in short, has awakened to a fact long understood by most of his top officials and the Republican leaders in Congress: that White House chief of staff Alexander Haig is now staggering under his remorseless work load and must have help.

To moderate and soothe
Thus, Rush's real mission will be to moderate and soothe policy clashes between such ambitious satraps as Roy Ash, head of the powerful Office of Management and Budget, Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and domestic council chief Kenneth Cole.

Work relief for Haig has now become vital for Mr. Nixon's White House. When he first agreed to take over as chief of staff from ousted H. R. Haldeman, Haig was promised complete insulation from Watergate. That pledge barely survived the drying of the ink on his presidential commission.

As a result, Haig soon found himself immersed in tortuous backroom strategy sessions over how Mr. Nixon should handle the enveloping Watergate and impeachment disasters and also charged with top-level responsibility in dealing with day-to-day operations of the government. That meant decision-making of a profoundly difficult character: deciding, for example, whether Ash or Simon should run the government's energy policy.

One result: an atmosphere of perpetual haste and frenzy in the office of the usually unflappable Haig which led him to actually telephone Newsweek magazine late on Sunday night, May 19, to seek revisions in a story on Haig that was already locked in type. In a more normal time, Haig would not have considered such an intrusion.

A major part of Rush's new White House job will be to take over much of Haig's role in trying to coordinate domestic policy and keep the federal government from flying apart under the pressures of impeachment politics.

Was to have moved in December
Rush is not exactly rushing in to help his one-time law student. Just before Christmas last year, a White House press release had actually been drafted announcing that Rush was leaving the State Department for the top White House Watergate strategy role. In preparation for that unenviable job, Rush immersed himself in the most crucial Watergate tapes and concluded that Mr. Nixon was innocent of the Watergate cover-up charges.

But that switch to the White House was cancelled at literally the last minute by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who insisted that Rush stay at State for at least a few more months.

Now, the crisis over the White House staff leaves no option, as both the President and Rush perceive it. Mr. Nixon's two top domestic aides in the post-Watergate White House, Melvin Laird and Bryce Harlow, have both quit. Dean Burch, signed on as the newest top-level White House hand last February, is in an ambiguous role — ostensibly working with the regulatory agencies but in fact being used more as a political point man with Republican congressmen and party officials.

In short, ever since the departure of Laird and Harlow, their workloads have been heaped on the sagging shoulders of the sleepless Haig, with Ash and Cole, both armed with ambitious staffs of their own, competing against each other and the cabinet departments for a larger slice of power.

For Rush, the new role as White House moderator is not an enviable one. As one experienced White House savant told us: "Ken may be a soft touch for the kind of brutalities going on in this town today." But there are two things that set him apart from some others who have tried to help Richard Nixon in his extremity: a conviction of the President's innocence and an almost familial intimacy which will guarantee him access to one of the loneliest of men.

Police & fire beat

Edgar M. Leitzke, 52, 318 W. Packard St., was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital after he sustained a head injury in a car-truck accident at Packard and Superior streets about 7 a.m. Monday. Police said Leitzke was headed east on Packard and continued across a T-intersection, striking the truck parked at and owned by Red Top Cab Co., 502 N. Superior St. Leitzke told an officer he passed out while driving and didn't recall what happened.

Ann E. Wuerger, 17, 510 W. Seymour St., received a head injury when another car turned into the path of her auto at Richmond Street and Northland Avenue about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The second driver, Virginia S. Muenster, 28, route 1, Seymour, escaped injury.

Superintendent not needed for a home that isn't there

Two months ago, the Appleton City Council could have appointed a superintendent of the city home.

But Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd) and the welfare and ordinance committee dealt that possibility a mortal blow Tuesday when they recommended that authority for hiring such a superintendent be eliminated.

"We don't have a city home, and we don't need a superintendent," Kalata told the committee, in support of his resolution calling for the repeal of the city ordinance that authorizes the welfare director to appoint — and the committee and City Council to confirm — a superintendent of the city home.

Kalata said he was afraid that if the ordinance was kept on the books, a superintendent could inadvertently be appointed.

There hasn't been a superintendent since the 50-bed, skilled nursing home facility was abandoned by the city in 1968 and torn down a couple of years later.

The last superintendent was James Hickinbotham. He resigned five or six months before the city decided it wanted to get out of the nursing home business. Appleton was one of the last cities in the state to get out of a field that is now in the hands of private enterprise.

The nursing home was located at 1824 W. Spencer St. It was consistently filled to capacity before it closed.

Courts

An 18-year-old man was charged Tuesday with battery, relating to a March 24 incident at Sarge's Bar, 519 W. College Ave.

Thomas J. Blake, 1014 W. Kamps Ave., is accused of striking another man, Donald R. Falk, in the face and throwing him against a wall. Falk reportedly fell onto a radiator and cut his head.

The case, brought before Judge R. Thomas Cane, will be taken up again Friday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

One year's supervision to the Oneida Youth Aid Bureau was ordered Friday for a 16-year-old rural De Pere youth who admitted burglarizing Clem and Edna's Bar in Oneida April 17.

Outagamie County Judge R. Thomas Cane of the Juvenile Court withheld a delinquency finding. He ordered the boy to make $28 restitution for stolen liquor and damage to the building. Two other youths also were involved in the burglary.

A 16-year-old Appleton boy was placed on one year's supervision to the Outagamie County Department of Social Services Friday after being found guilty of stealing four gallons of gasoline from Reinhold Hanneman Jr., on April 12.

A marijuana possession charge was dismissed on a motion by the district attorney's office. The boy has a lengthy juvenile record. Another youth involved in the gas theft also is scheduled to appear in Juvenile Court.

Ralph A. Schneider, 17, Milwaukee, forfeited $550 Tuesday to cover four traffic citations, relating to a chase with police on County Trunks A, OO and JJ, State 47 and U.S. 41 the afternoon of May 10.

Schneider was charged with illegal passing, reckless driving, fleeing and hit-and-run driving. The forfeitures were approved by Judge R. Thomas Cane in Outagamie County Court Branch 3.

FREE SILVER DOLLARS FOR SAVING AT FIRST FEDERAL.

America's population shifted ever westward during the 1880's, carried by railroads that now spanned the country. Boom towns sprang up overnight, and a man could claim 160 acres just by homesteading it. Out of Texas came the great herds of longhorns, and the cowboy called half the West his home.

First Federal Savings invites you to share these historic times with free silver dollars minted in San Francisco, Philadelphia, or New Orleans during the 1880's. Each is 90-percent pure silver and has never been circulated.

These Morgan coins are part of a limited number to escape melting under a 1918 law, and have been stored at the U.S. Mint for more than 50 years. Meanwhile, the coins have been steadily appreciating in value, due to their historical worth and increases in the price of silver.

Now one can be yours free with a $5,000 deposit. Made as a lump sum, or accumulated through smaller amounts. Either way, you'll earn First Federal's high interest—compounded daily for even higher annual yields.

Lucey 'might' allow Oneida bridge funding

BY TONY WALTER
Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON—Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has sent word to the six-man budget review bill conference committee that he will not commit himself to a veto of all bridge bonding funds if the committee will dismiss thoughts of trying to adopt the Senate-passed $41 million bridge package.

Lucey's message, which was to be delivered through department of administration officials as the committee began its deliberations today, keeps the door open for possible legislative approval of the Oneida Street bridge in Appleton and the U.S. 10 bridge in Fremont, but does not guarantee either.

A Lucey aide, who sat in on the three hour meeting between the governor and his budget assistants Wednesday afternoon, emphasized that the governor is indicating that he will not accept anything near the $41 million in additional bonding suggested by the Senate.

But the same aide said Lucey would keep an open mind of specific projects, provided that the committee consider each bridge individually after receiving information from the department of transportation concerning need and cost.

"The governor wants the committee to consider the nine bridges one by one," the aide said. "He certainly doesn't want to close the door. But he said he would never consider anything like that $41 million."

The nine bridges he was referring to are those that remain from the Long Bridge Act of 1969 that committed the state to construct 24 bridges for $35 million. Inflation set in and nine bridges were left unbuilt, including the Appleton, Fremont and Sturgeon Bay bridges.

The Senate, during an amendment spree last week, proposed the $41 million increase in the state's bridge bonding authority to pay for all nine bridges.

But not one of the conferees saw any chance for that amendment surviving the conference committee's meetings.

Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Brown Deer, said it "is highly unlikely that there will be much money for bridges but I think there is a good chance that one, two, or maybe three will be approved."

Kasten said he did not want to be put into the position of naming the priority bridges yet, but said a lot of support has been generated for the Fremont and Sturgeon Bay bridges particularly.

Sen. Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, pointed out that $4 million still remains from the original $35 million in bonding authority. But he said the committee will have to wait for a report from the department of transportation before deciding which, if any, bridges will be okayed.

Hollander pointed out the danger of approving some bridge funds while deleting others, stating, "I'd hate like the dickens to approve money for a couple bridges if it meant that it would lose votes for the whole budget bill because of the bridges we didn't fund."

State Highway Engineer Harold Fiedler said no priority list has been developed in his department yet and that he is prepared to give the committee the information it needs but will not recommend any particular bridge yet.

Several alternatives face the conferees, among them the obvious decision to delete all bridge bonding. But financing of the $1.6 million Fremont bridge was seen by one conferee as "quite possible" because of its lower cost and urgent need. In fact, one Lucey aide said he thought the governor could accept the Fremont funding with no trouble at all.

Support for the $7.5 million Sturgeon Bay bridge appears to be slipping because of the huge price tag that represents total state funding with no local or county financial assistance. One legislator even pointed out that it would be difficult for Lucey to support the Sturgeon Bay bridge now and ignore others since he has a cottage in Door County that would be made more accessible by a new span across the Sturgeon Bay canal.

The Oneida Street bridge chances hinge solely on the hope that the conferees and Lucey will decide to support the three bridges that are funded one-third by the state, one-third by the county and one-third by the city. Bridges in Wausau and Wisconsin Rapids are included in this category with the Appleton bridge.

The crucial bridge issue is expected to come before the conference committee Friday. Barring outrageous costs, the bill adopted by the committee is expected to be endorsed by both houses of the Legislature.

Muck and mire

Construction crews at the site of the new Aid Association for Lutherans headquarters north of Appleton are working in a sea of mud these days, thanks to a recent wet spell. Workmen, above, clamp together sections of hose used to pump water away from the construction site. Below, foundation forms tower over three crewmen — from left: Kirk Boles, Norbert Martin and Thomas Jacobs — as they study plans for the 500,000-square-foot, two-story office building. Site preparation began last fall. Company officials plan to be in the new headquarters in 1976. (Post-Crescent photos by Robert V. Baeten)

$21,600 in aids for city planning granted by HUD

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has given formal approval to the city's application for $21,600 in 701 planning assistance, Appleton Planning Director Jack Hetu said Wednesday.

The approval, when it is confirmed with a letter from the federal funding agency, will set off a chain of events aimed at approval of a second-year contract with city planning consultants for work to update the city's comprehensive plan.

The first year of that updating has already been completed. The entire project is expected to last at least three years.

The second-year effort is being curtailed after the city learned that it would fall short of its hoped for $30,000 in 701 planning assistance that it received in 1973. The reduction in aids is the result of a federal funding cutback, as the 701 program is being eliminated, and the failure of the state legislature to come up with additional money to supplement the federal dollars for planning projects throughout the state that have not been completed before the decision was made to end the 701 program.

Hetu said he received a phone confirmation of the city's planning assistance application Wednesday from the HUD office in Milwaukee.

With letter confirmation, he said, the various city agencies responsible for approving a second-year contract with Harland Bartholomew and Associates, St. Louis, can begin.

Last year, Hetu said, it took the city about eight weeks to hammer out a contract with the consultants and formally approve it. He expects about the same thing this year.

The consultants, according to the three-year timetable for updating the comprehensive plan, were supposed to begin the second-year phase on March 1. Delays in completing the first phase and getting funding for the second, however, have pushed that back.

Hetu now hopes that the consultants can begin work in July.

A draft of a contract between the city and Bartholomew has been drawn up by Hetu and the consultants. Last year, that contract went to the planning commission, state Department of Local Affairs and Development, Appleton Redevelopment Authority, Project 76, Inc., and the City Council for approval, Hetu said.

The cutbacks in federal aids (which cover two-thirds of the project cost) have forced Hetu to eliminate housing and population from the study schedule for 1974-75. The $21,600 will combine with city money and in-kind contributions to pay for the transportation ($3,200, total cost), land use ($4,834) and central business district ($8,860) phases of the study.

HUD money will also cover two-thirds of the $14,500 salary of the mayor's administrative assistant.

The already-completed first year of the updating featured data gathering work, primarily. The second year will result in recommendations for plan changes by the consultants, while the third year will be aimed at plan implementation.

Plamann Park to open pool

The swimming lake at Plamann Park will open for the season this weekend. Hours on Saturday and Sunday will be from noon to 5 p.m.

The lake will be closed June 3-7, he said, but will reopen June 8. The hours for the remainder of the summer — through Sept. 1, he estimated — will be from noon to 5 and from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday through Saturday.

Registration for swimming lessons at the lake may be made between noon and 4 p.m. at the park.

Accord near in town-city dispute?

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

The Town of Center's claim for $31,100 in fines against Appleton could be dropped if the city paid the $600 solid waste disposal permit fee it declined to pay nearly a year ago.

That's the indication from Town Atty. Joseph Shiff.

"I would strongly recommend that they end the matter with that," said Shiff today, one week after the city's finance committee recommended that the city pay the town $100 if the town agreed to drop its $31,100 claim.

"All we wanted in the first place was for the city to pay the $600 permit fee," said Shiff.

City Atty. David Geenen said he felt that most of the town was entitled to was the $100 offered by the finance committee last week (an offer that must still be approved by the City Council). But:

"I'd have to think about that," he said of Shiff's proposal. "I suppose at some point, there's no longer any value in litigating."

The issue at stake is the town's claim that the city violated its solid waste disposal ordinance by not paying the $600 permit fee starting July 1, 1973. The year before, the city had paid the fee for operation of its Mackville sanitary landfill site in the town.

That site was annexed to the city Jan. 5 of this year, but the town is still seeking $100 per day fines for violation of the ordinance because it claims that the permit the city should have taken out ran for one year.

Geenen has claimed that the town's ordinance is illegal, and that the city did not have to pay the $600.

The town has argued that it is legal, of course, and at least one town supervisor sees the dispute as a test of rural versus city powers.

The tangled legal battle began last December, when the town filed its first court suit seeking the daily fines from the city. That was eventually dismissed without prejudice by Circuit Judge James Martineau, who said the town should have filed a claim with the city first — and given it 90 days to respond — before going to court.

The town filed its claim with the city for $31,100 earlier this month. After 90 days, the town plans to take the case to court again.

In the middle of the hassle over landfill controls came the city's annexation of the 114.5-acre landfill area site in January. That annexation was challenged by the town — one of its contentions was that the annexation was an attempt to frustrate the town's efforts to collect the landfill fine money — but Circuit Judge Gordon Myse upheld the annexation on March 27.

Last week, Geenen recommended and the finance committee agreed that the city should pay the town only $100. It is Geenen's contention that state statute does not allow the Town of Center to levy a $600 permit fee for the use of the Mackville landfill site, but that it does provide for up to a $100 fee in lieu of a permit.

Geenen said that although such a fee — as well as the town's ordinance itself — must be approved by the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR), he sees the $100 as a reasonable fee to pay

Lucey signs regional recycling bill

MADISON — Gov. Patrick Lucey this morning signed the state recycling bill that will authorize $16.5 million in bonding to set up the first of a series of state recycling regions.

The first region consists of Outagamie, Winnebago and Fond du Lac counties.

Lucey said, "This landmark environmental legislation recognizes that we cannot continue to waste our precious resources."

A seven-member recycling authority will be appointed by Lucey to oversee the recycling program. A spokesman in the governor's office said the appointments probably would be made in about three weeks. While the appointments cannot be confirmed by the state Senate until next January, the authority probably will start functioning immediately.

Warren Porter, staff engineer for the recycling task force, said a "friendly" court test is expected to be filed early this fall to clear any potential challenges to the new law. "We don't want something to block it after we have started," Porter said.

The law authorizes the recycling authority to construct a recycling center in the district and to purchase existing solid waste handling facilities that would fit into the recycling program. As an alternative, the authority also could contract with private industry to handle all or parts of the program.

Each municipality would retain the responsibility for collecting refuse and garbage with the state's responsibility starting at a transfer station where the solid waste would be dropped.

One of the early decisions for the recycling authority will be the location of the recycling center for the district. The original task force proposal was for the center to be located in Oshkosh, the middle of the district. Another decision will be whether to buy Outagamie County's solid waste shredder or to contract with the county for shredding operations.

Ferrous metals are scheduled to be one of the first resources to be recycled in the state program. The county shredder is being set up with a magnetic separator to recover the ferrous metals. Other materials proposed to be recovered in the state program include glass, paper fibers and other metals.

Meanwhile, Outagamie County officials are still seeking the solution to a landfill site to handle the shredded material that will not be recycled.

A citizen group, headed by Bruce Chudacoff, has offered to help the county locate a site after objecting to Invitational bids to be sought for remodeling

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

A remodeling compromise will be offered to the Outagamie County Board by its property, building and maintenance committee in hopes of satisfying most board members.

The committee decided Wednesday night to seek invitational bids from a list of union contractors. The county would still serve as its own general contractor under this arrangement, but the work itself would be done after invitational bidding.

The contractors would develop their bids from rough plans provided by the county. These bids will be presented to the county board in July, the committee decided.

Supv. Al Lewandowski said that after Tuesday night's action it was obvious the board "will approve a plan for bidding that doesn't involve an architect."

The committee had failed by six votes to get the three-fourth's approval needed to proceed with the courthouse remodeling without bids. But then, the

Ruling due on detachment at Little Chute

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

LITTLE CHUTE — The third major attempt within a year by a group of Kaukauna school district residents to be shifted to the Little Chute school district will be brought before the Cooperative Educational Services Agency school committee tonight.

This time the petitioning group covers an erratically outlined area north of the Little Chute school boundaries and excluding three separate groups of properties within the area whose residents don't want attachment.

There are about 90 school children in the petitioning area, including about 60 attending Kaukauna public schools and about 30 attending St. John elementary school in Little Chute.

The petitioning area also includes Little Chute's new industrial park, which now serves as part of the tax base for the Kaukauna school district.

The village is concerned because it believes the village taxpayers in the Little Chute school district should have the tax-easing benefit of the industrial park valuation. "We don't want our school taxes to go to Kaukauna," Gerald Locy, village clerk, said.

The agency committee is expected to make a decision tonight after hearing testimony at the public hearing at Little Chute High School. The hearing begins at 8 p.m.

On three previous occasions dating back to 1970, the committee granted detachments of parts of the same area, but two were reversed by the state Department of Public Instruction and a third, which the committee had made subject to referendum approval, was soundly defeated in the referendum.

The detachment effort has been accelerated during the past year since St. John High School in Little Chute was closed. Before that, a large number of the petitioners apparently didn't mind being in the Kaukauna district since they sent their children to the Catholic school.

However, now they find that their children must attend Kaukauna High School even though they may be closer to the Little Chute High.

A group of people in the petition area has filed a petition opposing the detachment. The Kaukauna Board of Education also went on record this month in opposition to the detachment, as it has been to other major detachments.

The area covered in the petition is bordered on the east by Outagamie County Trunk CC (Rosehill Road), on the south by the Little Chute school district, on the west by the Town of VandenBroek boundary and on the north by the town line.

The "island" properties not included in the petition are a number of lots on the north side of Evergreen Drive east of County Trunk N, property between Evergreen and U.S. 41 east of Buchanan Road, property on the north side of County Trunk JJ between N and Holland Road and property on JJ between Holland and VandenBroek roads.

The Kaukauna board will oppose the detachment tonight partly on the basis that it would isolate the islands from the rest of the Kaukauna school district and also because a significant number of people in the petition area oppose detachment from Kaukauna.

Thomas Nytes, business manager of the Kaukauna school district, said he had information indicating there were 74 names on the petition favoring detachment and 64 names on the counter-petition opposing it.

He said opponents to detachment had more children in the Kaukauna district than the proponents did, apparently indicating that proponents were mainly those with children in St. John Elementary School.

Kenneth Poppy, coordinator of CESA-8, said there were well over 100 signatures on the petition for detachment. He said it appeared that about 65 per cent of the people in the area wanted detachment.

He also estimated the valuation of the affected area at $10 million, although other estimates were $7 million to $8 million.

The Little Chute board of education and village support the detachment.

Mark Stone, Little Chute school district superintendent, said he believed the Little Chute district could handle the students better than Kaukauna could. He said about 40 elementary and 25 high school students are involved.

Petitioners have contended that they should be in the Little Chute district because they are closer to that district's schools.

The arguments from both sides are generally the same as they have been in previous detachment petition fights.

NM to feel tax pinch of equipment exemptions

BY DOUG KOPLIEN
Post-Crescent staff writer

NEENAH-MENASHA — Because of the concentration of paper industries in the Twin Cities, the effect of the recent state legislation to exempt production machinery and equipment could have a real crunch come budget time this fall.

The state legislature, in addition to allowing some tax exemptions as an inducement for industrial development and expansion, decided that the Wisconsin Department of Revenue should be the level where all industrial assessments should be made.

What this has done is removed millions of dollars from the local tax rolls, meaning the tax burden is being shifted to the taxable property which remains — in most cases mainly residential.

To ease the tax bind, the legislature has provided that other aids which filter down from the state level be increased, but most observers believe that the increase won't be enough to offset the loss.

According to local assessors the ultimate loss of taxable property in Neenah and Menasha could total more than $40 million.

Between the two cities industrial property is worth (full value) about $112 million. Assessing that property is now being turned over to the state and ability to levy taxes against a portion of it will be completely phased out by 1984.

Frank Hallada, Menasha assessor, estimates that of that city's $80 million worth of industry, more than $20 million will fall into the exempt category. In Neenah, Earl Page, predicted that of the $52 million in full industrial value, about $20 million would be exempt.

Robert Vosen, manufacturing property assessment supervisor who works out of the Lake Michigan District office in Fond du Lac, readily admitted that the impact in Neenah and Menasha will be "substantial" because the paper industry assessment "runs about 65 per cent production equipment."

It's this class which within 10 years will be completely tax-exempt.

To make up the difference — loss of local assessable property — the state will be computing the effect based on budgets adopted this fall. However, the real hooker is that after the 1974 computation, the figure remains stable while aids are dropped off at the rate of 10 per cent per year.

Another impact comes in that to raise taxes for the county, vocational school, school district and state, the supervisor of assessments computes what is called "equalized value." This is what the state figures all property is worth according to fair market value.

With the loss of industrial production equipment, the ratio value on the other levels of government could change substantially.

Currently in the Menasha school district, the split of costs — based on the equalized value — is about 70 per cent city, 30 per cent town. However, since the city is highly industrialized, while the town's east side which is in the district is not, this ratio could change by as much as 5 per cent, thus shifting that much more of the tax levy town property owners.

This comes in the wake of cries from town officials that they are already being assigned an equalized value higher than it should be. There was a proposal before the town board just this past fall calling for a complete reassessment to prove that the state's computed equalized value was too high.

What the new legislation boils down to is a reduction of the amount of property which can be taxed for local purposes thus spreading the same amount of spending over a smaller base.

While there are anticipated increases in the school aid formulas plus increased shared taxes to all levels of government, no one knows at this point if the increases will be enough to make up the loss.

Because 1974 will become the base year, the real impact on the amount of taxes which must be raised locally won't be felt until 1975. Then, while operating costs are likely to increase, the amount of money is decreased by the 10 per cent.

The only part of the tax rate which is used to compute the impact is the municipal portion. In the case of the Twin Cities, the local (municipal) portion of the tax levy is less than 25 per cent of the total. The rest goes to other levels of government, including the schools, county, vocational school and state.

Although these levels are expected to get increases in aids, the money will show up as a revenue item and local officials can only hope that it will be used to reduce the tax levy.

The only thing certain about the impact of the machinery and equipment exemption is a high degree of uncertainty. Vosen readily conceded that no one really knows what the long-range ramifications will be.

Operetta tonight

The characters of "The Pirates of Penzance" will come alive at 8 p.m. today and Friday on the stage at Appleton High School-East. The music department will present the operetta, with a cast of 148 singers, accompanied by an orchestra of 20. Martin Jansen, right, defends the honor of Pat Drexler, engaging Dan Onkels, one of the pirates, in a duel. Other lead roles are taken by Jill Jensen, Debby Fredrick, Craig Nissen, Bob Richman, Leisa Jandourek, Laurie Huven, Chris Champeau and Mike Polakowski. Choir members and the stage production department make up the rest of the backstage crew. (Post-Crescent photo)

Man held in stabbing

NEENAH — A 35-year-old Neenah man was arrested by Neenah police last night after he allegedly stabbed his wife with a five-inch hunting knife.

Ellery Haese, 340 Mark Court, was tentatively charged with aggravated assault in connection with the stabbing of his wife, Susan. The county district attorney's office indicated that the charge may be altered however.

Mrs. Haese was found by police officers in the front yard of the home. She had been stabbed in the back, and was having difficulty breathing.

She was taken to Theda Clark Hospital where she is listed in fair condition in the intensive care unit. A hospital spokesman said that her condition had stabilized, and that she "seems to be holding her own."

Sorority aids Lions' summer camp project

Funds raised by members of Delta Gamma sorority at Lawrence University will be turned over to the Noon Lions Club Monday to be used at the Lions' camp for the visually handicapped at Rosholt. Melinda Dick will make the presentation.

Applications for this summer from eligible campers are still being accepted, a Lions spokesman said.

Chicago man feared drowned

MENASHA — Police were still searching late this morning for the body of Charles Stovall, 49, of Chicago, who disappeared underwater Wednesday morning after a boating accident near the spillway of the Menasha Dam.

Authorities were dragging the Fox River and Little Lake Buttes des Morts in the vicinity of James Island and an air search by a Department of Natural Resources pilot was also underway.

Winnebago County Coroner Duane Moore was withholding an official ruling until authorities recovered the body.

Authorities said their operations on the water this morning and Wednesday were hampered by strong current. Dragging operations began about 9 a.m. A visual search by boat was suspended Wednesday night.

Police received the first call of the incident shortly before 9:30 a.m. Wednesday when an eyewitness reported seeing a man washed overboard downstream from the dam.

Police said a companion was on the Mill Street bridge below the spillway, guiding the boat Stovall was in across the river channel with a rope, when the boat began to fill with water and sink. The current is very swift in the area.

Stovall attempted but failed to grab the rope his companion was holding, authorities said.

Police said there was a life jacket in the boat but Stovall was not wearing one.

Police & fire beat

Mark W. Bleier, 507 E. Lindbergh St., told police someone took a tape player, case and 14 tapes, valued together at $190, from his car while it was parked in the 900 block of S. Oneida Street late Wednesday. A hole was punched through a vent window to gain entry.

Banta strike continues as talks on new contract enter second day

MENASHA — Contract talks resumed this morning between management and striking workers of the George Banta Co. after a day-long session Wednesday failed to settle the contract dispute.

The negotiation session at Neenah's Ramada Inn on Wednesday went from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Spokesmen for the striking lithographers and bookbinders declined comment on whether the talks had brought the two sides any closer to a settlement. Today's negotiations were scheduled to resume at 10:30 a.m.

The lithographers and bookbinders, represented by locals 88L and 32B of the Graphics Arts International, began separate contract talks in February, but began joint negotiating last week. The strike of the Menasha Banta Division plants was called 10 days ago when negotiations broke down and the plants have been shut down since then. Nearly 900 plant workers represented by the two locals are on strike, and another 100 maintenance employees are honoring the walkout.

The lithographers, bookbinders and maintenance employees all have been without contracts since April 1. Negotiations with the maintenance workers have not stalled, so they are not officially striking. But the lithographers and bookbinders declared an impasse in their contract talks last week, and said the dispute involves wages, fringe benefits and contract language.

In a related development, the Winnebago County Department of Social Services reported there have been a large number of applications for food stamps by families affected by the Banta strike. Striking lithographers and bookbinders are receiving about $70 per week from union funds, but maintenance workers are not receiving any financial assistance.

Norm Halfen, of the county social services department, said today appointments have been scheduled for the next two or three weeks with striking workers who have applied for the food stamp relief. Applications are filled out at the time of the interview, and the department then makes a determination of eligibility.

Halfen said it is questionable how many of the workers will be eligible for the program. It is based on monthly income, and the Banta workers were on the job for about half of the month of May.

The Outagamie Bank Can Help

A death in the family poses a multitude of business and personal problems which require immediate attention. The Outagamie Bank can help during these times by providing guidance and assistance through a new, exclusive program, Special Organizational Services (SOS).

The Outagamie Bank's SOS advisors have a complete knowledge of the details involved in organizing a deceased's affairs. They'll inform you of the authorities which must be notified and assist you in the preparation of the various claims which must be made. Their knowledge of the details regarding Social Security, Veteran's Benefits and Civil Service regulations are at your disposal. Guidance is also provided in matters relating to pensions, life insurance and teachers benefits. SOS advisors do not replace the need for legal service nor are they an accounting service. Their sole purpose is to make complicated details a little less burdensome and see that you haven't overlooked any of the funds due you.

Germaine Bassett, Janet Gritzmacher and Farrell Hussey are the SOS advisors at The Outagamie Bank. Their services as advisors are FREE to anyone, regardless of banking affiliation. For additional details on this exclusive Outagamie Bank service, phone Germaine, Janet or Farrell at 739-3651 or stop in and see one of them at the bank.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

'Dismay' over blood fat level unwarranted

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In a recent physical, my cholesterol was 262, my triglyceride count 306, blood pressure 140/80.
I am on Atromid-S, one at each meal, and a low-cholesterol diet. This report gave me quite a jolt. My reaction is one of dismay and confusion since I always have been in relatively good health. I am past 70.
Do I change my life style as to normal exercise? Will medication and diet be sufficient? —C.E.

I think you are being overly dismayed by the report. While your blood lipids (fats) are high, both the cholesterol and triglycerides, your blood pressure is not out of line for a person your age.
It certainly makes sense to bring those lipid levels down, but I think most patients are better off if they are not too upset (or dismayed) over learning that something needs to be done.
Your medication plus diet is effective in lowering cholesterol levels. You have your diet and know what foods to avoid. So that's one thing. The triglycerides have to be handled in a somewhat different manner. Keeping the diet low in sugar (and other carbohydrates) is necessary. This does not conflict with a low-cholesterol diet.
As to your "life style of normal exercise," do not change it. There is no indication that you need to do so. As a matter of fact, normal exercise will be helpful to you in controlling your cholesterol.
Another thought that may be both helpful and comforting to you. Suppose you wait a little while and see how the treatment is affecting your cholesterol before you get too upset. You are, after all, doing what needs to be done, but you cannot expect the results to become apparent instantly. It takes a bit of time.
Other readers puzzled by either cholesterol or triglycerides (or both) will find both problems discussed in my booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly." Send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy. And please, to keep the post office happy and prompt, don't forget the necessary Zip code.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told that I should not douche because I had a hysterectomy. Is this true? —A.E.
No not true. But it really isn't necessary.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you send

Thursday, May 30, 1974 The Post-Crescent, Appleton-Neenah-Menasha, Wis. B-3 me more information on how to sign up for the antismoking clinics mentioned in one of your articles? —G.J.

No, but you can do it for yourself. Many of these clinics or "stop-smoking courses" are sponsored by the various branches of the Lung Association in your state and they'll steer you in the right direction.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a physical and my doctor told me I had a fallen bladder. To convince me he even held up a mirror so I could see what he was talking about.
How does one know when this sort of thing is so far advanced that surgery is absolutely necessary and what is then done to remedy it? I am 72 and in good health. —Mrs. T.B.
The indications include infection, urinary incontinence and discomfort. Plus the advice of your doctor.

ury of living for Theresa Remington

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

The past few days have been filled with excitement for Mrs. Theresa Remington. Wednesday she marked her 100th birthday.

Starting with an Open House Sunday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Vora Gresenz, with whom she has resided for the past 10 years, and continuing through a birthday luncheon Wednesday which was provided complete with champagne for her, her niece, her only living sister and a grand-niece and her husband by a local restaurant, Theresa has been at the center of a really "glorious" time.

Friends and relatives as well as President Nixon and Congressman Harold Froehlich have inundated her with cards and notes of congratulations; bouquets of beautiful flowers, gifts from friends, fill the living room and dining room of the house.

Sunday's Open House was attended by more than 60 friends and relatives, making it that special kind of occasion that will be remembered for years to come.

Theresa was born May 29, 1874, in Sheboygan to Mr. and Mrs. William Schartau, the second in a family of 12 children.

When Theresa was 10, the family moved to a farm in Adelle in Sheboygan County and 10 years later to another near Hortonville.

During these years, she recalls, she and one of her brothers used to go maple sugaring, pulling a sled behind a horse as they collected enough sap to make between 75 and 100 gallons of maple syrup.

She vividly remembers, too, one evening when she was in Dale, winning a waltz contest and receiving a sewing cabinet filled with a variety of items as first prize.

Theresa spent most of her 100 years in Oshkosh, although for the past 23 she has been in Appleton, living first with her sister, Ella Oelke in her home on Pacific Street, and then 10 years ago the pair moved in with Ella's daughter, Vora.

Theresa married twice, the first ending in divorce with both just "going their separate ways." The second marriage lasted nine and one-half years and ended with the death of her husband, Frank Remington in 1933. During those years, the couple ran the Clifton Hotel and Frank was a candidate for sheriff of Winnebago County.

Although she attended school through the fourth grade and spent two years in German school preparing for her confirmation in the Lutheran church, Theresa was working by the time she was 15. In those early working years, she did housework, later becoming a pastry cook at Oshkosh's City Market. Recalling those years as happy ones, she would make 100 dozen donuts a day along with 80 pies.

She was also employed through the years by many well-known families in Oshkosh including Congressman and lawyer, Frank Keefe. Keefe's wife preferred to remain in Oshkosh while her husband went off to Washington, D.C., so Theresa remained too, cooking and helping to take care of the family.

Always extremely interested in politics, something that still holds her attention, Theresa often was a confidant of Keefe's when he had a problem to discuss since he knew what was said would go no farther.

Travel was something she enjoyed too. She went to Alberta, Canada, three times to visit one of her brothers, going first by train and later by car. She's been from California to Florida and New York.

Walking has been a favorite pastime, something she feels has contributed to her long life. She remembers, for instance, after she moved to Appleton, walking to St. Mary Catholic Church to attend the funeral of the late Sen. Joseph Mc Carthy and at least twice a week trekking downtown to shop.

Theresa still loves to whip up a batch of German potato salad for an appreciative family and loves to play sheephead whenever she can. She reads the newspaper with the help of a magnifying glass and dons glasses only when watching television or playing cards. The rest of the time she finds she sees better without them.

To what does she attribute this long and full life? She says she has always taken things that happen in her stride, accepting them as they come along.

Old portrait

An old picture of Theresa, at center, and four of her sisters brought back many memories. Only Ella Oelke, Appleton, at lower right is alive today. Theresa was 27 at this time and Ella, 16. Others are Emma Stolper, then 29, who resided in Adelle, at lower right. At rear are Alvina Grossman, then 23, who lived in Dale, and Louise Pollnow, then 15, who lived in Oshkosh.

East-West join forces for senior prom

Appleton High School East-West Senior Prom plans are now being completed. A committee consisting of East and West students has joined forces to make the prom a gala occasion.

The prom will be held at the Conway Motor Inn from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday. Immediately afterward, festivities will continue with a post-prom party at the YMCA with swimming, rock music by "Timepiece" and breakfast at 6 a.m.

Betsy Brunken and Jon Slavik are co-chairing this year's event. Publicity is being headed by Debbie Stinemates and Kim Taylor with Cari Griffin and Lisa Coburn in charge of decorations.

Tickets for the combined prom and post-prom parties may be obtained only by seniors from numerous students at either of the two high schools.

Dutcher and Miss Helen Proctor, AT, and Mrs. J.W. Taylor and Mrs. L.E. Schulz, CC, all of Appleton, and Mrs. R.F. Ledwith and Mrs. C.A. Pertain, BT, Neenah.

Mrs. W. R. Sheldon, CC, past president of the Wisconsin state chapter, is conference advisor.

Wisconsin's 92 local chapters with 4,000 members are part of an organization which last year counted a total membership of 211,488 women in 4,484 chapters.

The sisterhood is a philanthropic and educational organization interested in bringing to women greatly increased opportunities for higher education. Its purposes are accomplished through the PEO Educational Fund which provides loans to students, Cottey Junior College for Women, Nevada, Mo., PEO supported since 1927, and the International Peace Scholarship Fund. The IPS since 1949 has provided post-graduate scholarships to 1,250 students from 82 countries at 226 schools. Funds expended have totaled $1,849,146 to 1973.

New BPW head named

DARBOY — Mrs. Joy Brouillard was named president of the Appleton Business and Professional Women's Club at the group's May meeting at the Darboy Club.

Serving with her will be Elizabeth Kolosso, first vice president; June Weatherwax, second vice president; Eunice Eggenberger, treasurer; Sharon Green, recording secretary, and Germaine Bassett, corresponding secretary. Past state president Evelyn Ecker conducted the installation ceremony.

The former head of the state group was chosen to represent the club at the national convention to be held July 21 through 25 in Chicago.

The objectives of the Wisconsin Federation of Business and Professional Women shall be: To eliminate the standards for women in business and in the professions; to promote the interests of business and professional women; to bring about a spirit of cooperation among business and professional women of the United States; and to extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along lines of industrial, scientific and vocational activities.

Government projects

If you wonder why taxes are so high, you might take note of the following items, reported in the June issue of Reader's Digest: among projects currently being financed by the federal government, i.e. the taxpayer, are a $71,000 history of the comic book, a $50,000 analysis of U.S. - Canadian fur trade from 1770 to 1820, and a $5,000 study of the "evolution of the chin in Polish skeletal populations between 2000 B.C. and A.D. 1800."

Milwaukee whips alewife problem

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Port of Milwaukee says it may have found a method of evicting alewives, a trash fish that has been a nuisance along Lake Michigan industrial and recreational shores for years.

Port Director John A. Seefeldt reported Tuesday the city has virtually cleared its harbor of the pests although fishermen report "there are literally millions of them two miles out."

Seefeldt's evidently successful scheme is based on a simple theory: alewives become a congestion nuisance only in those inlets in which they spawn.

By using nets to capture the invaders during spawning seasons for the last four years, the port has eradicated most of the alewives who look upon Milwaukee's river-fed harbor as home, he said.

Port workers netted 250 tons last season, about "half what it had been the several years before," Seefeldt said.

Netters have caught about 31 tons in the last few weeks although "there are millions of them swimming around out in the lake," he said.

Alewives, relatively small silvery fish, occasionally overpopulate, then die in hoards. Their smelly remains clutter beaches, clog municipal water intake pipes and foul mouths of streams for miles along the lake's shore.

Seefeldt said Milwaukee's harbor is no longer having such problems, but declined to predict how many more tons may be netted in the next month of eviction proceedings.

$2,700 earned for retarded in bike-hike

The 350 young people and adults who hiked and biked to benefit the retarded on April 27 netted more than $2,700 along the 30-mile route, according to Robert Heffron, coordinator of the event.

Ten per cent of that amount will go to the National Association for Retarded Citizens. Of the remainder, 45 per cent — or more than $1,000 — will be returned to the Outagamie County Youth Association for Retarded Citizens for the first group home in the county for retarded persons. The money, Heffron said, will be used for bedroom furnishings.

The balance of the money will be split between the state Youth Association for Retarded Citizens and New Concepts for the Handicapped Foundation, Inc., Madison.

The hike-bike, sponsored by the local YARC, saw a number of participants excelling in different categories. All participants were honored at a recent awards program.

In the adult division, the highest amounts collected during the 30-mile excursion — for which hikers and bikers were sponsored for each mile covered — included $308 by Bill and Jan Hughes, $47 by Judy Schoepf and $37 by Tom and Margaret Kroll.

Top youthful collectors were: Don Kramer, $73; Tracy West, $64; David Van Stippen, $51; Penny Gray, $40; and Tina Linzmeyer, $38.

Awards also were given to participants who had large numbers of sponsors. Don Kramer solicited financial support for each mile covered from 60 persons; Julie Totzke, 37 persons; Tracy West, 35; and Penny Gray and Michael Spel, 23 each. Sponsors could contribute as much money per mile as they wished.

Lance Ingmanson, a student, covered the route in less than two hours on his bicycle.

For the first time this year, the event was open to hikers. In the four previous years, only bikers took part. Nine girls completed the route on foot this year.

Police & fire beat

James Kiersten, 29, 204 W. Main St., Kimberly, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of a possibly broken leg and thumb after an industrial accident just before noon Tuesday.

Firemen said he was working at Perfect Patterns Inc., 1400 N. Ballard Road, when heavy metal castings fell on him.

More rain and cool air

A low pressure system swept from the Central Plains eastward across Wisconsin today, bringing a heavy cloud cover, showers and thunderstorms to the state.

Partly cloudy to cloudy skies with only a few light showers in the central counties were reported in Wisconsin this morning, but the extensive area of showers and locally heavy thunderstorms was expected to hit the western sections of the state this afternoon.

By evening, forecasters say, a thick cloud cover and scattered downpours would be common across the entire state.

The U.S. Weather Service in Green Bay forecasts occasional showers and thunderstorms tonight, with a chance of some being locally heavy. The lows will be in the low 50s.

Friday will be mostly cloudy and cooler with a chance of showers and a high in the mid 60s.

Winds will be easterly tonight at eight to 16 m.p.h. and northwesterly at ten to 20 m.p.h. Friday. Precipitation probabilities are 70 per cent tonight and 40 per cent Friday.

Saturday will be partly cloudy with a high in the upper 60s.

High temperatures today were expected to vary from the low 60s north to the low 70s south. They ranged from 80 at Beloit to 63 at Land O' Lakes and overnight lows were between 36 at Eagle River and 59 at Platteville.

The latest forecast for the weekend is considerably brighter than originally expected, with minimal chances of showers mostly in the northeast Saturday and fair skies Sunday and Monday. Cool to mild temperatures with afternoon highs in the 60s were predicted for the weekend with a warming trend beginning Monday.

Appleton recorded an overnight low of 49 and a high Wednesday of 68. At 10 a.m. today the barometer was at 30.01 and rising, winds were northeast at 10 m.p.h., humidity was 66 per cent, dew point was at 47, there was a trace of precipitation in the preceding 24 hours. Sunset today at 8:28 p.m.

Pair of reviews: take your choice

BY TOM RICHARDS
Post-Crescent staff writer

Here are two reviews of "Where the Lilies Bloom," now playing at Marc 2 theater. The first:

The film was produced by Robert B. Radnitz, who also produced the much-acclaimed "Sounder." The comparison is inevitable; the similarities are noticeable.

Both are based on Newbery Award books; both are set in the picturesque rural South; both fill out the cast with locals and unknowns; and the main characters in both are poor folks scratching to get by.

But "Sounder" had more to say. It had a solid story. And, more important, it had Cicely Tyson and Paul Winfield. "Where the Lilies Bloom" lacks these vital elements. Furthermore, there is something disquietingly anachronistic about the present-day Blue Ridge setting that occasionally seems more like the Depression times of "Sounder."

Essentially, the story has four mountain children left orphans when their father dies. Led by 14-year-old Mary Call, the second oldest of the Luther children, they keep their father's death a secret so they won't be put in an institution or separated. Julie Gholson, in her first film, does a fine job as the bossy Mary Call, and Harry Dean Stanton stands out in the role of Kiser Pease, the man who "stole" Roy Luther's farm and who is courting the oldest Luther girl.

Otherwise, most of the acting doesn't hold up, and the script has too many holes and loose ends. "Where the Lilies Bloom" is not "Sounder."

The second review:

The film is 97 minutes long. The 6-year-old on my left sat contentedly with just a box of popcorn for about 67 of those minutes, which is not bad. "Did you like the movie?"

"Yes, except it was sad when the daddy died."

On my right, the 8-year-old sat the entire 97 minutes.

"I didn't think it was as good as 'Sounder,' did you?"

"I liked this one. Write that I liked it. And write that everybody else in the theater liked it."

That may be the only valid review.

TV Scout

A look at looking young

9 - 10 - Channel 5 - The days when Americans looked forward to retirement are gone forever. Now retirement means uselessness and debilitation, merely a prelude to death. The question of why we fear old age and celebrate youth is examined in detail on the special "The Pursuit Of Youth." Producer Lucy Jarvis visits spas and other health institutions where Americans are lifting, curving and replacing various parts of their bodies. Noted biochemist Dr. Isaac Asimov attributes the old-age phobia to the presence of a youth cult that has robbed senior citizens of the respect and veneration unquestioningly afforded them in other cultures.

8 - 9:30 - Channel 38 - Napoleon finally advances into evacuated Moscow on "War And Peace," meeting a serious problem of getting supplies for his troops. Meanwhile, the Rostovs have deserted their home and belongings to transport wounded soldiers out of Moscow, Andrei among them. Pierre (Anthony Hopkins) receives word of Andrei's and Anatole's deaths and prepares to assassinate Napoleon. (R)

9 - 10 - Channels 9-11 - "The Streets Of San Francisco" tells a kidnap story, with psychic overtones. The mastermind is smart and ruthless, but makes one slip - an error in judgment about human nature. (R)

His grease paint smile not sneer at death

LOS ANGELES (AP) - D.C. Cogburn wears a grease paint smile and courts danger in a baggy bluejean costume and floppy hat. Other than that, he's just a common, everyday cowpoke. "A clown has to be one tough son of a buck, a rugged individual who can get hooked by a bull, break a rib or two maybe, tape himself up and come right back out there and be funny, like nothing had happened," said Cogburn, 35, a rodeo clown from Guthrie, Okla.

He should know because a mad bull brought Cogburn's budding cowboy career to a jolting halt. "It was in 1963. One of them stepped on my back and really polished me off," he said.

Cogburn had two disc operations and spinal fusions and his body was in a cast for six months. Doctors doubted he would walk again.

But, a decade later, Cogburn is still very much a part of the rodeo world, attending as many as 40 meetings a year.

"I'm out there to protect that cowboy from the bull," said Cogburn, who performs his arena antics curled tightly in a tumbling barrel that's butted by Brahma bulls.

"Some of the riders hit the ground so hard their brains are added," he said.

Sydney Opera House cost was $151 million

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - The New South Wales government has announced that the Sydney Opera House cost $151 million, almost 15 times original estimates.

The super-modern structure's first architect, Joern Utzon, said in 1957, when plans for the building were begun, that it would cost $10.8 million. It was to have been completed in 1964.

When it became clear in the middle 1960s that the opera house would cost far more than that, public protests put the project in doubt for some time. Britain's Queen Elizabeth II finally dedicated the building last October.

State government lotteries have met all but $13.9 million of the cost, the final state government accounting showed. The announcement said the deficit is expected to be covered within 12 months.

State man to head national library

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dr. Richard A. Farley, a Wisconsin native who formerly headed libraries in Kansas and Nebraska, has been named director of the National Agricultural Library for the Agriculture Department.

Farley, who came from Ashland County, Wis., will take over his new duties on July 1, the department announced Tuesday. He currently is director of libraries at McGill University, Montreal, Canada.

A career librarian, Farley was associate director of libraries at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, from 1954 until 1963 when he joined Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia. In 1966, he was named head of the land-grant library system at Kansas State University, Manhattan. He moved to Montreal in 1972.

Scott booms Brewers into half-game lead

ANAHEIM (AP) — All in all, it was a lost evening for the California Angels. They lost their composure, a fight, a baseball game and their left fielder, not necessarily in order of importance, Wednesday night.

George Scott boomed a three-run homer to cap a four-run ninth inning as the Milwaukee Brewers reared from behind to topple the Angels 7-5, taking possession of first place in the American League East, a half-game ahead of the Boston Red Sox.

berland replaced Lockwood, Cumberland fanned Briggs and Dick Selma was brought in to face Scott.

Scott drilled his first pitch over the centerfield fence to give the Brewers a sweep of the three-game series.

"We've seen most of the other teams and we feel we can finish first," said Briggs. "We never give up despite the score and tonight was a good indication."

Lockwood, 1-1, took the loss. Eduardo Rodriguez, who pitched the final 2 2-3 innings, got his third straight win.

Lee Stanton returned to the California line-up for the first time since April 23 and lashed three hits to lift his average to .413.

Frank and Siewert head 'state' entrants

Kerry Frank, Appleton East standout in the sprints, and Mona Siewert, Appleton West qualifier in three events, head the area's Class A contingent in the WI state track meets this weekend in the Madison area.

The boys meet will be at Mansfield Stadium, while the girls meet will be at Monona Grove. Boys competition will begin at 2 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday. Girls competition will start at 3 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m. Saturday.

Stephanie Bennett, Brillion, 880; Jane Kallies, Bonduel, and Gwinette Williams, Weyauwega, high jump; Sue Brogaard, Weyauwega, shot put; Jenny Lind, Weyauwega, and Sue Krueger, Winneconne, 220; Sue Vandehay, Wrightstown, and Grace Korbish, Wittenberg-Birnbaumwood, long jump; Kathy Kocourek, Brillion and Debbie Armstrong, Winneconne, mile; Bonduel, 440 relay; and Sue Brogaard, Weyauwega, discus.

Frank owns the best qualifying time in the 220 with a :22.4 clocking and is tied for second best in the 100 with 10-flat. Last year the Patriot standout took second in both events.

Steve Lowney, Manawa, fourth in Class C last year in the low hurdles, is tied for the best qualifying time in that event with a :21.2 in sectionals. Joe O'Brien, Manawa, tied for third in the pole vault with 12-0; Stan Doman, Manawa, is third in the 880 at 2:01.6; Ron Rank, Brillion, is fourth in the shot put at 51-0 and Stu Pask, Amherst, is sixth in the mile at 4:40. Tom Mullins, Brillion, qualified in the low hurdles and long jump.

Siewert leads the long jump qualifiers with a 17 foot, 3/4 inch jump. Her :11.2 low hurdle time is tied for fourth. She also qualified in the 220.

Other area class A qualifiers for boys were Scott Taylor, Appleton, West, discus; Alex Maslow, Neenah, 440; Jeff Stracka and Bob Spoo, Appleton East, two mile; John Siebers, fourth best in the 880 at 1:58; Eric Murphy, Neenah, mile and Joe Nabbeled, Appleton East, mile.

Bill Walton has surgery on knee

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bill Walton of the Portland Trail Blazers underwent knee surgery Wednesday at Portland's St. Vincent Hospital.

Barb Nault, Neenah, timed in 2:22.3, was the second best qualifier in the 880.

Other area Class A qualifiers were Kimberly, 880 relay; Judy Winski, Appleton West, 100 and long jump; Becky Prey, Neenah, 100; Sue Davies, Kimberly, mile; Jill Willarson, Neenah, mile; Neenah, medley relay, and Nancy Kruzicki, Clintonville, discus.

Holding the fourth best marks in qualifying for the boys Class B meet are Dick Lohrenz, Hortonville, low hurdles in :20.7; Mike Hersant, Wittenberg-Birnbaumwood, 440 in :51.8; Omro in the 880 relay, 1:34; and Lohrenz, high hurdles in :15.15. Bill Batza, Seymour, is third in the long jump with a 21-4 1/4 leap.

Dr. Frank B. Smith, the team physician, removed a piece of cartilage through a small opening in the knee during the 30-minute operation. Walton, an All America center from UCLA, was Portland's first draft choice in the National Basketball Association draft. He was under a general anesthetic.

Other B qualifiers are Gene Darkow, Winneconne, pole vault; Tom Peterson, Clintonville, high jump; Randy Bain, Hortonville, and Mark Werner, Clintonville, 100; Dan Van Bostel, Seymour, 880; Clintonville, 880 relay; Tom Holly, Waupaca, long jump; Bill Nemke, W-B, and Gary Vandenberg, Little Chute, mile, and Omro and Wittenberg-Birnbaumwood, mile relay.

He is expected to remain at the hospital for a few days. Doctors said there will be no calls or visitors accepted for Walton at the hospital.

Hilbert's medley relay team, fourth best qualifier in 1:58.6, leads the entrants in the Class B girls meet. Other qualifiers are Bonduel, Iola-Scandinavia and Winneconne, 880 relay;

Fire signs Evey

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Evey, a defensive lineman with the Chicago Bears for six seasons, signed Wednesday with the Chicago Fire of the World Football League, a Fire spokesman said.

Evey was the Bears' No. 1 draft choice in 1964. He retired after the 1971 season after a year each with the Los Angeles Rams and the Detroit Lions.

West, 'Wega open sectionals

Appleton West (14-2) plays Denmark in the opening game of the Sectional Area IV baseball tournament at 1 p.m. today at Goodland Field.

Pulaski and Fish Creek (Gibraltar) were slated to play the second game. The championship game is to be played Friday.

Stevens Point and Rhinelander were scheduled to open the Sectional Area III tournament at Stevens Point. Weyauwega and Wausau West met in the second game.

knuckler, but the slider was my out pitch tonight."

Sandoval, who hurled a two-hit shutout during his four innings of relief work, evened his record at 1-1. "I knew if I could keep the game close we'd win it," he said.

"I mixed my pitches with a fastball, curve and changeup."

Clyde Jeter led off with a single to left and moved to second on a wild pitch to launch Appleton's one-run first. After Nick Medrano flew out, Larry Foster drew a walk.

Larry Walters then tapped the ball halfway to the mound. Twins' pitcher Michael VanDeCastele slipped on the wet grass as he tried to make the play and Walters was credited with a hit. Ed Wheeler's sacrifice fly to center plated Jeter.

VanDeCastele, a righthander, and retired 13 men in order before Appleton collected three hits in its two-run sixth. Medrano and Foster singled and Walters reached first on an error. Wheeler's sacrifice to deep center sent Medrano home and Mike Diugach's scores over the Wisconsin Rapids Twins at Goodland Field Wednesday night.

The double victory enabled the Foxes (13-19), to move out of the cellar in the Midwest League's Northern Division. The second place Twins have a record of 20-14. Appleton ends its homestand tonight with a 7:30 game against Wisconsin Rapids.

"I stayed ahead of the hitters as much as I could," Combs who tossed a four hitter in the opening seven-inning contest said. "I kept them off stride with my

Stanford tennis team honors John Whitlinger

Neenah's John Whitlinger, a sophomore at Stanford University, has been elected captain of the Stanford tennis team for next season and also was named 1974's Outstanding Player of the Year for the squad.

The Stanford team finished the season with a 18-1 record and also won the Pacific-8 championship held at the University of Washington two weeks ago.

Members of the Stanford team are now preparing to defend their NCAA team title in a meet which will be held at the University of Southern California the week of June 17.

Whitlinger lost only one match while playing for Stanford this past season. After the NCAA meet, John plans to play on the leading men's tournament circuit this summer.

Pirates pepper Padres

BY HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Bob Robertson really knows how to hurt a guy.

First, Pittsburgh's slump-ridden first baseman helped destroy hamburger king Ray Kroc's San Diego Padres Wednesday night by driving in five runs with a pair of two-run homers and a single in the Pirates' 13-3 romp. And then he delivered the unkindest cut of all.

"For a while," he said, "I thought my wife and baby would have to start eating hamburgers."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers turned back the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2, the Cincinnati Reds edged the New York Mets 3-2 on Tony Perez' 10th-inning homer, the Atlanta Braves nipped the Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 in 11 innings, the Houston Astros downed the Montreal Expos 5-3 and the San Francisco Giants shaded the Chicago Cubs 5-4.

Robertson, who hit 27 home runs in 1970 and 26 in 1971, apparently is back to taking choice cuts—on the field and at the dinner table—after slumping to .193 and 12 homers in 1972 and .239 with 14 homers last season.

Dodgers 5, Cardinals 2

Ron Cey brought Los Angeles from behind with a three-run homer off Bob Gibson in the sixth inning and Bill Russell collected four hits, including an RBI single in the seventh. The Dodgers' Tommy John, 8-1, permitted seven hits before giving way to Mike Marshall in the seventh. Reds 3, Mets 2

Tony Perez hit his ninth home run of the season with two-out in the 10th off reliever Harry Parker. It was the sixth win in a row for the Reds and the Mets' third straight loss.

Braves 1, Phillies 0

Pinch hitter Vic Correll, who had only two hits in 21 previous trips this season, singled home Ralph Garr from second base in the 11th inning against Steve Carlton.

Astros 5, Expos 3

Bob Watson delivered a tie-breaking two-run single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning after reliever Tom Walker walked Greg Gross and Cesar Cedeno with two out around a single by Roger Metzger. Gross tripled in the first two Houston runs and starting pitcher Claude Osteen singled home the third.

Giants 5, Cubs 4

The Giants scored four times in the first inning on Gary Thomasson's two-run double and Dave Rader's two-run single, but needed Bobby Bonds' homer in the seventh to beat Chicago.

Twins top Bosox, 5-4

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

California's baseball players were no Angels Wednesday night.

Outfielder Bobby Valentine started a fight that ignited a melee with the Milwaukee Brewers.

Valentine won the battle but the Angels eventually lost the ballgame, 7-5, when George Scott delivered the final blow with his bat in the ninth inning.

In the other American League games, the Texas Rangers blanked the Cleveland Indians 3-0; the Baltimore Orioles blasted the Kansas City Royals 10-3; the Minnesota Twins nipped the Boston Red Sox 5-4 in 13 innings and the Oakland A's stopped the Detroit Tigers 4-1. Chicago and New York were rained out.

Rangers 3, Indians 0

Jackie Brown, making only his second start of the season, pitched a three-hitter to lead Texas Rangers over Cleveland in another baseball game spiced with a brawl.

The brawl in this game started when Texas' Lenny Randle laid down a bunt and threw an elbow at Cleveland pitcher Milt Wilcox along the first base line. Cleveland first baseman John Ellis tackled Randle and a fight ensued between the teams as both benches emptied. Texas Manager Billy Martin charged into the fray and was knocked on the seat of his pants before law and order was restored.

Orioles 10, Royals 3

Baltimore jumped on Steve Busby for four runs in the first inning and exploded for six more in the seventh, breaking a four-game losing streak by beating Kansas City.

Twins 5, Red Sox 4

Rod Carew scored from third on Diego Segui's one-out balk in the 13th inning, giving Minnesota its victory over Boston.

A's 4, Tigers 1

Sal Bando rapped three singles and drove in two runs, leading Oakland over Detroit.

The Tigers took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on a double by Ron Cash and a single by Aurelio Rodriguez.

Sale of Texas Rangers approved by AL owners

CHICAGO (AP) — The American League formally approved sale of 90 per cent of the Texas Rangers by owner Bob Short to a Fort Worth-Dallas group Wednesday for an estimated $9 million.

The approval by American League owners meeting in Chicago culminated negotiations which began before the start of the baseball season and established Brad Corbett, 36, wealthy industrial magnate as the principal owner.

Although it was announced that eight principals were involved in the purchasing group, Corbett was said to have committed between $4 million and $5 million in the acquisition.

Short, who bought the Rangers, then a Washington franchise, six years ago for what he said was $9.4 million, retains 10 per cent holdings for which Short said he deducted $1 million from the sale price.

Short, who said the original deal called for between $9 million and $10 million, said he would retain his partial ownership for at least another year.

"Then we'll see how we get along and whether I will dispose of my holdings later," he said.

Other new stockholders include Amon Carter Jr., who recently sold the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; Mrs. Pollard Simons, wife of a Dallas land developer and industrialist; Raymond Nasher, a real estate developer; William Harvey, Fort Worth real estate broker; William Seay, life insurance broker, and Charles Sharp, another Dallas insurance man; and Nick Martin, a Detroit land developer, who is connected with Corbett.

Corbett said he promoted purchase of the Rangers to "put the ball club in the hands of Texans."

Corbett said Dr. Robert Brown, a heart specialist and former New York Yankee third baseman, the interim Ranger president during the sale negotiations, probably would continue in that capacity.

Nichols beats Kaukauna, 12-6

Winning pitcher Joe Busse slammed a pair of two-run homers to ignite Nichols to a 12-6 Dairyland win over Kaukauna Sunday.

In another game, Hofa Park downed Black Creek, 11-5.

Arlyn Pues also homered for Nichols, while Dale Broeren knocked a circuit shot for Kaukauna.

Home runs by Jerry Dorn and Jim McDermid highlighted Hofa Park's triumph. Dennis Dorn was the winning pitcher. Jerry Rohm took the loss.

Perfect cribbage hand

Chris Houfek, 1704 N. Superior St., Appleton, was dealt a perfect cribbage hand during a Memorial Day weekend game. She was dealt three fives and the Jack of Hearts and the five of Hearts was cut. Chris said she has been playing cribbage 10 years, but never had a perfect hand before.

Allgeyer hurls shutout

KAUKAUNA Mike Allgeyer hurled a one-hit shutout Wednesday as Bob, Mary and Mike's Bar, Kaukauna, defeated Uncle Thirsty's, Manitowoc, 1-0 in Fox Valley Open Classic Softball League action at Bayougeon Park.

In the other contest, Ken Suhring ripped a 2-run double in the fifth to give Dave's Pub, Denmark, a 4-2 win over Tommy's Angels, Oshkosh.

Kaukauna scored the only run of the game in the first as Jeff School led off with a triple and scored on Rod Radecki's sacrifice fly. Allgeyer fanned seven.

Bob Stelzer allowed only two hits in pacing Dave's. Losing pitcher Denny Neitzel was nicked for four safeties.

Brewer brawl

A bench-clearing brawl erupted in the first inning of Wednesday's Milwaukee Brewers and California Angels game in Anaheim. The fight started when Clyde Wright uncorked a wild pitch over the Angels' Bobby Valentine's head. At lower left, Brewer catcher Charlie Moore is held down by Angel pitcher Frank Tanana and Frank Robinson. Valentine and Wright were ejected for starting the fight. The Brewers rallied from a 4-0 deficit to win 7-5 and regain the lead in the American League East. (AP wirephoto)

Butkus' lawsuit surprises Halas

CHICAGO (AP) — The owner of the Chicago Bears says he is surprised and puzzled by the $1.6 million lawsuit filed against his team by star linebacker Dick Butkus.

"It looks as though all of their dialogue with us was a sham," said George S. Halas in a statement issued shortly after the suit was filed Wednesday. "It also is eminently clear that all Dick is interested in is sitting in Florida and collecting his paychecks for the next four years."

According to documents supplied by Halas, Butkus and the team management seemed on the verge of an agreement for surgery and rehabilitation expenses for his knee.

"Dick said he was going to have the surgery done by Dr. Don O'Donoghue of Oklahoma City and that was agreeable with me," he said.

"I am puzzled by this latest action particularly in light of my harmonious conversation with Dick Butkus last Thursday," Halas said. "He said he would have surgery within a week or as soon as the lawyers could work out the language of a stipulation concerning his surgery."

Filed in Circuit Court, the suit said the Bears' management did not provide medical and hospital care promised him in a contract Butkus signed July 13.

It also said the Bears refused to play Butkus this year and the remaining four years of his contract.

According to the suit, orthopedic surgeons and the team physician examined Butkus' knee and said he is unable to perform the contract's requirements.

Butkus "may well never again be in the necessary physical condition to play professional football," the suit quoted the doctors as saying.

Injections of cortisone and other drugs caused irreparable damage to Butkus' knee and treatments were given without advising him of the long-term effects of the medications, according to the suit, which asked for $1 million in punitive damages and $600,000 in salary.

The suit says Butkus' annual salary is $115,000.

Bays sign Hunter, Hall

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Quarterback Scott Hunter, who lost his starting job with the Green Bay Packers last year, has signed a multi-year contract with the National Football League team, Coach Dan Devine announced Wednesday.

Hunter came to the Packers from Alabama, and was heir apparent to Bart Starr, another Alabama product, as the Green Bay signal caller. He helped guide the Packers to the Central Division championship in the National Conference in 1972.

But last year, following an injury, he was replaced midway through the season by Jerry Tagge, who is designated no. 1 at quarterback going into the 1974 season.

TSU coach threatened

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Southern University track Coach Dave Bethany says several threatening phone calls he has received this year are proof enough to him that there is prejudice in NCAA track and field circles.

Bethany, whose highly touted Tigers are competing in the NCAA's University Division for the first time this year, said Wednesday night four or five phone calls warned him not to enter the NCAA championships at Austin, Tex., next week.

"I thought we had come a long way (in race relations) but I don't see any light at the end of the tunnel," said Bethany, whose Tigers have won the all-black Southwestern Athletic Conference title the past three years.

"But all this has made me realize that there is still a lot of prejudice and discrimination."

Bethany said he has always received letters and phone calls, both complimentary and derogatory, but he usu-

Miller won't rank himself among world's top 4 golfers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Johnny Miller is the reigning U.S. Open champion, winner of five tournaments this season and the leading money winner with almost $200,000. But he won't rank himself among the world's best four golfers.

"Right now," the slim, blond young man said, "the four best players in the world are Gary Player, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf."

"I'm not in the same category with them," Miller said before teeing off today in the first round of the $250,000 Kemper Open. The tournament is the second of three events designated by the PGA as "must" tournaments, meaning all of the game's leading players are required to compete.

"My game has come a long, long way in the last year," Miller said. "I'm playing now the way I'd dreamed of playing."

"My game has reached the point now that when I get in position to win, I can go ahead and do it. I don't worry about choking. If I get in position to win, I have confidence that I can go ahead and do it."

"I feel confident that I'm capable of making the shots I have to make."

"But that's not to say I'm in the same class with Nicklaus, Player, Trevino and guys like that. They're where I hope to be."

Even though he classed himself behind four players, and has played only one competitive round in four weeks, Miller ranked as the man to beat for the $50,000 first prize in the 72-hole test on the 7,085-yard, par-72 Quail Hollow Country Club course.

Lenius will try for 3rd win in row at WIR Sunday

KAUKAUNA — Neenah's Gary Lenius will be gunning for his third straight "top eliminator" victory Sunday when drag racing continues at the Wisconsin International Raceway here.

Time trials begin at 10 a.m. with eliminations at 2 p.m.

Last week Lenius topped the division, made up of rail dragsters, funny cars and super stocks, when he covered the quarter-mile strip in 10.57 seconds reaching a top speed of 129 miles per hour in his Chevrolet powered "Infinity" rail dragster. On May 12 he covered the distance in 10.78 seconds and hit 144 miles per hour.

Also expected to be in Sunday's program will be Francis Creek driver Jim Theyerl in the "Violator" altered Buick Opel powered by a 350 cubic inch Chevrolet engine. He was the "top eliminator" winner on April 28 while Sheboygan's Tom Arndt won the season opener April 21 behind the wheel of the "Checkmate" Nova super stocker.

Edenhauer officiating. Burial will be in the church cemetery. Friends may call at the Wieting Funeral Home, Brillion, from 4 p.m. Friday until 10:30 a.m. Saturday, and then at the church from 1 a.m. until the hour of service.

MONTREAL (AP) — This year's National Hockey League, secret amateur draft is turning into a marathon session.

A league spokesman announced Wednesday night that eight rounds of drafting had been completed by the 18 NHL clubs and a total of 143 players had been selected in two days. The drafting was scheduled to resume today.

Last season, 168 168 players were chosen in a six-hour session. The difference between 1973 and 1974 is simple—last year's draft was open and conducted in a Montreal hotel room while this year's is supposed to be a confidential draft by telephone.

"One of the things they (the teams) don't have an advantage of, they don't know who has been selected by the other clubs until it's their turn," Brian O'Neill, executive director of the league said Wednesday.

"At that time, I've been giving them the 17 names that have been selected since I last spoke to them.

"So then they take those names and it takes a little longer to examine where they stand. When they had the open room type of draft, they knew as they went along."

The NHL had hoped to gain an edge in signing the top amateur picks by switching to the closed-door format. It was hoped the rival World Hockey Association, which holds its official amateur draft Friday, would be kept in the dark as to what players had been selected by the NHL teams.

But so far, with the first-round selections announced almost as quickly as they were chosen, the NHL's ploy has failed.

"It's just incredible...we were reading the names in the newspapers and hearing them on the radio as we were still drafting," O'Neill said.

"The clubs aren't even supposed to exchange information but it's quite clear they're doing it. Of course, they're most affected—they're the ones that have to pay them the players."

"Agents would have a hard time piecing it all together. They would know a man has been selected and they would know by which club, but they would have a hell of a time trying to put it all together, because we don't even tell the clubs themselves who has chosen what."

Some clubs announced their top draft choices, while others refused. With almost every player selected in the top two rounds represented by an agent or lawyer, it did not take long for unofficial lists to take form and information to be exchanged.

The Washington Capitals, who had first choice in the opening round, selected Greg Joly from Regina Pats. Three hours after Joly had been selected, the Capitals held a news conference to announce the fact.

Let's save falconry

For those of you who have read this title, most likely know what falconry is about, and hopefully you will show your concern in a letter. Who knows, maybe your letter will save this long admired sport.

Falconry is the very ancient art of training a bird, and in turn, hunting with it just as if you were using a gun.

But wait. I know that some people reading this article feel that all hunting is cruel and I would have to admit that some hunting should be outlawed. Now let me explain. Falconry has been around for some thousand years and you can believe it or not, but this sport is going to save our population of birds of prey and for that part, all game animals and birds.

single to right enabled Foster to touch home.

Alvis Woods was responsible for three of WR's four hits during the contest.

The Twins collected two unearned runs in the second inning of the nightcap off Foxes' starter Mike Zolner.

Appleton countered with a marker in the bottom of the frame on a bunt single by Jeter, Manny Limery's one-bagger, a walk to Mike Wolf and a passed ball.

Singles by Wheeler and Jeter, a double steal and an error provided the winners with another marker in the fourth.

Appleton scored what proved to be the winning run in the fifth. After Medrano walked, Foster slapped a single to right. The throw by Wisconsin Rapids' right-fielder Gary Wards was not cut off in the infield. It rolled into foul territory along the third base line and Medrano scampered all the way home.

"Our defense is coming around," Foxes' Coach Gordy Lund noted. "We're starting to make the routine play in the infield. That's what will win ball games. Making the tough play is an extra plus, but making that routine play is the most important thing."

Lund noted that the White Sox management has decided to use three Foxes pitchers per night. "These guys are young and they're here to learn," Lund explained. "By using three pitchers a night, we're giving all of them a chance to work."

FOX TALES: The Goodland Field ground crew also turned in an outstanding performance Wednesday. At noon, the infield was as mushy as pumpkin pie. Head groundskeeper Dwain Nickasch grabbed a rake and said, "It's going to take some work but if it doesn't rain some more we can just about make it for tonight."

Foxes' catcher George Enright damaged a ligament in his finger during the second inning of the first game. He was hit by a foul tip. Trainer Robert Flynn reported that Enright would be out for about four days.

Girls sports program formulated

NEENAH —Plans for a girls athletic program for schools in the Catholic Boys League were formulated at a meeting of representatives from 10 of the 16 league members recently.

The league will be called the Fox River Valley Catholic Girls league. Eugene Jansen, of Little Chute, will be its director.

It was decided to sponsor a girls volleyball program of from six to eight weeks beginning in September. A basketball program of about the same duration will follow.

Track also was discussed, and one big field meet will be held on the Xavier High School track next spring.

The league was divided into two divisions with St. John, St. Mary and St. Patrick of Menasha, St. Margaret Mary and Oshkosh Sacred Heart making up one and Little Chute St. John and St. Bernadette, St. Thomas More, St. Pius and Sacred Heart, all of Appleton, in the other.

Other schools will have an opportunity to join at upcoming meetings.

The basketball program will be discussed at a meeting 7:30 p.m. June 13 at St. Patrick and volleyball will be discussed at a June 20 session at the same site.

Also discussed were volleyball, softball and track for boys. They will be brought up at the league's fall meeting.

Sewer installation

Ronet Construction Co., Green Bay, is expected to complete the $50,300 storm and sanitary sewer installation this week on Pershing Road at New London. The project is the first phase of a $280,000 rebuilding plan scheduled this summer for the road. Other projects will include installation of curb, gutter, widening and resurfacing. (Post-Crescent photo)

Brillion seeks assessment advice

BY JANICE JOHNSON
Post-Crescent correspondent

BRILLION — A proposal from the plan commission for storm sewer installations in two major residential areas prompted the City Council this week to consult with neighboring municipalities on procedures used for assessment of benefits.

Total estimated costs of storm sewer installations are $40,000 in the Deerview Heights subdivision and $100,000 in the Meadow Heights area.

The council has not previously assessed property owners for storm sewer costs although it has the legal right to do so. However, much of the water was channeled through open drainage ditches in the past, reducing costs considerably.

Questions were also raised on the pipe sizes shown on the storm sewer specifications.

The communities contacted will be asked for procedures followed in assessing all types of benefits. A meeting will then be held with the developers involved in the storm sewer projects.

During a hearing at the council's regular meeting Monday, to discuss a proposal for curb and gutter installations in several parts of the city, opinions were offered by several citizens. The areas involved are both sides of Fawn Drive and Hiawatha Drive; both sides of West National Ave. from Highway 114 to Glenview; the east side of Glenview from proposed LaVesta Drive to National; both sides of Mary Street from Madison to Horn; entire Wolf Circle Drive; the corner of East National and Lincoln; and the corner of Glenview and Wolfschmidt.

Donald Wittmann spoke against, and Elmer Thiel in support of the portion of the project on National Avenue. Wolf Circle residents were assured their area would be included in the project. Alfred Schroeder spoke against curb and gutter on Mary Street, expressing concern that the fill materials would not be adequately settled and result in breaking and sinking if done too soon.

The council felt that compacting the fill would eliminate the problem and noted it had been done successfully in other areas of the city on much greater depths of fill. It was also agreed that curb and gutter are necessary for holding blacktop in place and to keep water from running onto lawns.

It was unanimously voted to have city engineers draw specifications for the entire program as proposed, so that bids can be sought.

A temporary floodplain zoning resolution based on revised maps prepared by the Soil Conservation Service, received a first reading. The zoning, while prohibiting any building or filling in areas designated as floodway, does allow for reconstruction in the event of disaster and also permits minor changes to existing structures. The resolution also specifies that a warning, indicating an area is floodprone and could be subject to flood damages, will be given when any building permit is issued in the much broader floodplain area outlined by maps of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The zoning would have the most detrimental effect on the planned 102-lot Spring Creek subdivision, where no building or filling would be permitted. The Department of Natural Resources has indicated, however, that changes could be made in the future when adequate data is available.

The proposed zoning resolution will be forwarded to the DNR for review and an information hearing will be held before final action is taken.

A contract for a fire communications alarm system was awarded to Motorola on bid of $14,940. On a further recommendation from the police and fire committee, an additional radio for the public works truck will be included at a cost of $972, and no maintenance agreement will be awarded for the first year.

A mutual aid fire agreement with other Calumet County municipalities was renewed. The city also has an independent mutual aid agreement with Reedsville.

Several intersections were designated for stop signs and the ordinance committee was instructed to prepare the necessary amendment. They are Glenview and National; West Water and Elm; Wolfschmidt and Elm; Fawn

Hope seen for bridge funding at Fremont

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has sent word to the six-man budget review bill conference committee that he will not commit himself to a veto of all bridge bonding funds if the committee will dismiss thoughts of trying to adopt the Senate-passed $41 million bridge package.

Lucey's message, which was to be delivered through department of administration officials as the committee began its deliberations today, keeps the door open for possible legislative approval of the Oneida Street bridge in Appleton and the U.S. 10 bridge in Fremont, but does not guarantee either.

A Lucey aide, who sat in on the three hour meeting between the governor and his budget assistants Wednesday afternoon, emphasized that the governor is indicating that he will not accept anything near the $41 million in additional bonding suggested by the Senate.

But the same aide said Lucey would keep an open mind of specific projects, provided that the committee consider each bridge individually after receiving information from the department of transportation concerning need and cost.

"The governor wants the committee to consider the nine bridges one by one," the aide said. "He certainly doesn't want to close the door. But he said he would never consider anything like that $41 million."

The nine bridges he was referring to are those that remain from the Long Bridge Act of 1969 that committed the state to construct 24 bridges for $35 million. Inflation set in and nine bridges were left unbuilt, including the Appleton, Fremont and Sturgeon Bay bridges.

The Senate, during an amendment spree last week, proposed the $41 million increase in the state's bridge bonding authority to pay for all nine bridges.

But not one of the conferees saw any chance for that amendment surviving the conference committee's meetings.

Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Brown Deer, said it "is highly unlikely that there will be much money for bridges but I think there is a good chance that one, two, or maybe three will be approved."

Kasten said he did not want to be put into the position of naming the priority bridges yet, but said alot of support has been generated for the Fremont and Sturgeon Bay bridges particularly.

Sen. Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, pointed out that $4 million still remains from the original $35 million in bonding authority. But he said the committee will have to wait for a report from the department of transportation before deciding which, if any, bridges will be okayed.

Hollander pointed out the danger of approving some bridge funds while deleting others, stating, "I'd hate like the dickens to approve money for a couple bridges if it meant that it would lose votes for the whole budget bill because of the bridges we didn't fund."

State Highway Engineer Harold Fiedler said no priority list has been developed in his department yet and that he is prepared to give the committee the information it needs but will not recommend any particular bridge yet.

Several alternatives face the conferees, among them the obvious decision to delete all bridge bonding. But financing of the $1.6 million Fremont bridge was seen by one conferee as "quite possible" because of its lower cost and urgent need. In fact, one Lucey aide said he thought the governor could accept the Fremont funding with no trouble at all.

Support for the $7.5 million Sturgeon Bay bridge appears to be slipping because of the huge price tag that represents total state funding with no local or county financial assistance. One legislator even pointed out that it would be difficult for Lucey to support the Sturgeon Bay bridge now and ignore others since he has a cottage in Door County that would be made more accessible by a new span across the Sturgeon Bay canal.

The Oneida Street bridge chances hinge solely on the hope that the conferees and Lucey will decide to support the three bridges that are funded one-third by the state, one-third by the county and one-third by the city. Bridges in Wausau and Wisconsin Rapids are included in this category with the Appleton bridge.

The crucial bridge issue is expected to come before the conference committee Friday. Barring outrageous costs, the bill adopted by the committee is expected to be endorsed by both houses of the Legislature.

Waupaca buys new fire truck

WAUPACA — In a special meeting, Wednesday, the city council approved the purchase of a new fire truck and fire-fighting equipment.

The truck, a 1,000-gallon pumper, will be custom built on a Ford chassis by Pierce Mfg. Co., Appleton, at the firm bid price of $41,600 and $4,312 for accessory equipment. Delivery will be made in 11 to 12 months, with payment to be made 15 days after delivery at a one per cent discount.

Tom Godfrey, chairman of the police and fire commission, and Fire Chief Lee Thompson advised the council that they had been unable to get firm commitments for delivery of the needed truck from other manufacturers of less than from two to three years and only with prices at the time of delivery.

An order for the truck radion, the truck hose and boots and helmets, at a present estimate of $6,850 was also approved. Prices of these items will increase 10 per cent on June 1, the council learned.

In the 1974 Police and Fire Commission budget, $25,000 has been earmarked from Federal Revenue Sharing received by the city toward purchase of the new fire truck, with a second allocation of $25,000 to be made in 1975.

The total package is $52,762, exceeding the original estimate of $50,000. The additional cost, Mayor Kenneth Pinkerton explained, can be handled by interest now being earned on the fire department

Employers honored by Clintonville students

CLINTONVILLE — The employers, supervisors and school personnel who participated in the second semester cooperative education program at the senior high school were recognized for their assistance at an appreciation dinner this week by the 30 students involved in the program.

Certificates were presented to the employers and the supervisors. The framed certificates of appreciation from the public schools to the businesses commended their cooperation in "providing your business facilities and personnel in training students in our cooperative program." Supervisors were recognized for their "meritorious services for contributing to supervising, inspection and guidance in the cooperative education program."

The students received certificates of achievement as evidence of having satisfactorily completed the requirements in the program.

Thirty students worked at 21 business places this year. Robert Danielson, local vocational education coordinator, said 42 students had shown an interest in the program next year.

The business places involved this year were Art Kiermas Motors, Caroline Implement, Clintonville Cooperative, Clintonville Fire Apparatus, Inc., Clintonville Lumber and Supply Co., Clintonville Motors, Farm Equipment Sales, First National Bank of Clintonville.

FWD Corp., Krueger Sign, Mitchell Sheet Metal, Nu-Craft, Inc., Patterson Manufacturing Co., Peterson Built Products, Rexnord, Inc.

Invitational bids sought for county remodeling project

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

A remodeling compromise will be offered to the Outagamie County Board by its property, building and maintenance committee in hopes of satisfying most board members.

The committee decided Wednesday night to seek invitational bids from a list of union contractors. The county would still serve as its own general contractor under this arrangement, but the work itself would be done after invitational bidding.

The contractors would develop their bids from rough plans provided by the county. These bids will be presented to the county board in July, the committee decided.

Supv. Al Lewandowski said that after Tuesday night's action it was obvious the board "will approve a plan for bidding that doesn't involve an architect."

The committee had failed by six votes to get the three-fourth's approval needed to proceed with the courthouse remodeling without bids. But then, the board resoundingly defeated a request for funds to hire an architect to draw plans for bidding.

Supv. Judy Hebbe said representatives of carpenters' unions had indicated contractors could bid from plans the county has. She added that she had talked to an engineer who also said there should be no bidding problem on the carpentry work, but that an engineer or draftsman would be needed to get state approval on plumbing and electrical work.

County Executive Alvin Woehler suggested that the committee try the invitational bid method on one room "to see what happens" and to serve as an example for the rest of the project.

But County Board Chairman Eugene Higgins objected. He said the county board had indicated it wanted bid figures on the entire remodeling project. "We don't want it brought in one room at a time," he said.

Woehler said he had no objections, but suggested that the committee make sure that the bid figures would hold for the duration of the construction period.

The highway department also will be approached by the committee for an inventory of highway land holdings that could be developed either as waysides or small park sites.

Supv. Irvin Wiedenhaupt and Lewandowski conducted a survey of county boat landings and reported that several parcels of land owned by the highway department would make excellent recreational sites.

Woehler said he has asked for such an inventory but has not yet received it. He also suggested that the highway committee be allowed to develop and maintain waysides itself.

Members of the committee also expressed disappointment in the slowness of Appleton in posting bicycle route signs and in the delays in acting to reduce the speed limit on Meade Street between Capitol Drive and Apple Creek Road.

The county wants the speed limit reduced from 50 to 35 miles per hour because the road is a marked bicycle route. The Town of Grand Chute had agreed to a reduction in the speed limit, but the street was then annexed into the city. Representatives from the county are expected to appear before the city's public safety committee on that question Monday.

Seymour State Bank or First National Bank, Seymour.

Pending FHA approval, bids will be let this summer with construction completion set for January, 1965, the priest said.

Farmers Home Administration requires proof of community support before funding the project, which means that 2 per cent of the total loan has to come from the community.

Membership in the corporation is being offered for sale to the various businesses, civic groups, churches and individuals for $25 a share to meet the FHA requirements.

Diocese forms housing corporation

SEYMOUR — A corporation, to be known as the Seymour Non-Profit Housing, Inc., has been formed by the Green Bay Diocese, with the Rev. Philip Hoffmann as its head.

The corporation's board members officers are Philip Dahlman, president; Philip Paulson, vice president; Robert Gericke, secretary; St. Schuster, treasurer, and Ethel Si and Ivan Dunbar.

The group plans to build a 16-unit apartment complex primarily for the elderly under the Rural Rental Housing program of Farmers' Home Administration. Each apartment will contain a kitchen with appliances, a bathroom, bedroom and dining area. Storage space, a community room, laundry and office space are included.

Rental rates will vary. The elderly will pay about $110 or $135, depending on the number of bedrooms, while those under 62 will pay in proportion to their income.

According to Hoffmann, who has been involved with such developments for the diocese for the past few years, and was its first housing director, the apartment location and design will be announced shortly.

FARMERS' MARKET

Mr. & Mrs. Scott Hetherington built the American Way . . .

"Building our home was truly a memorable experience!"

We wanted to find a reputable, honest builder who would give us quality in materials and workmanship at a competitive price. American Home & Realty did just that! They helped to make the construction of our first home truly a memorable experience. They really are "the people who care". We recommend American Home to anyone who wants to build a quality home that will give them many years of pride and enjoyment.

Scott Hetherington

Bridge at Fremont has a chance

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — Bridge bonding authority to finance the construction of the U.S. 10 bridge in Fremont and a new bridge over the Sturgeon Bay canal is likely to be recommended for inclusion to the budget review bill today.

But support for funds to build the long-awaited Oneida Street Bridge in Appleton weakened during the first session of the six-member budget bill compromise committee, and even the bridge proponents are admitting that the structure appears doomed for the remainder of this biennium.

Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Brown Deer, indicated that he would introduce an amendment supporting increased bonding authority to finance the Fremont and Sturgeon Bay bridges, the two bridges that he says are most needed.

No official bridge action was taken during Thursday's day-long meeting of the committee. A Senate-approved amendment increasing the state's bridge bonding authority by $41 million to pay for the construction of nine bridges was laid aside by the committee pending further consultation with the Department of Transportation.

"I don't think anyone on this committee has any plan to suggest that we accept the $41 million proposal," Kasten said. "But there are other proposals concerning specific bridges that I think we should take a look at."

The Fremont bridge appears to be at the head of the priority list, both because of its pressing need and its relatively low cost to the state of $1.6 million.

Approximately $4 million remains in the state's original $35 million bonding authority.

The Sturgeon Bay bridge will cost the state about $7.5 million while the Oneida Street Bridge represents a $3.5 million cost to the state and a like sum to both the City of Appleton and Outagamie County. Other bridges proposed under the third funding plan are located at Wausau and Wisconsin Rapids.

Rep. Tobias Roth, R-Appleton, spent a good part of the day Thursday lobbying in favor of the Appleton bridge, with little success. He visited with each member of the conference committee and came away almost certain that the bridge would not be financed this year.

According to one source, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has asked Rep. Gary Johnson, D-Beloit, a committee member, to meet with Department of Transportation Secretary Norman Clapp to discuss a priority list for bridges.

If the committee does decide to single out some bridges for financing in the budget review bill, it will not be a guarantee that the structures will be constructed.

The approved budget bill must pass both houses of the legislature and cannot be amended, and then must be signed into law by Lucey, who may item vote certain appropriations. Lucey has already expressed his distaste for the Senate's $41 million amendment and is not expected to be too receptive to a wealthy bridge proposal.

The other four bridges remaining from the Long Bridge Act of 1969 are all interstate bridges located in the western and northwestern parts of the state.

Court's ruling goes against fired teachers

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

The fired Hortonville teachers suffered another setback in their attempts to be reinstated Thursday when Judge R. Thomas Cane, who had attempted to mediate a contract settlement for several weeks, rejected several of their motions because they had engaged in an illegal strike.

The fired teachers had heard the "dirty hands" court ruling before from Circuit Judge Allan Deehr and County Judge Urban P. VanSusteren. No right to legal relief since their breaking of the law brought about actions they are objecting to.

With Cane's ruling, the fired Hortonville Education Association members have only two alternatives in the courts — to appeal Cane's ruling to the Wisconsin Supreme Court, which could take months or years to come to a decision, or to pursue their Circuit Court lawsuit charging a board conspiracy to fire and selectively rehire HEA members, and improper firing procedure.

Cane's denial of several teacher motions ended the HEA's hope for gaining relief in his court.

Specifically, he denied motions requesting that the board be enjoined from hiring 1974-75 teachers until the HEA lawsuit is settled; give preference to rehiring fired teachers; provide a $1.5 million bond in case it fails to meet these other obligations, and that the picketing restrictions against the fired teachers and their sympathizers be lifted.

Cane told the teachers' legal counsel that the court had no choice because the state law was clear on the illegality of public employees' strikes.

Noting the teachers' request that the board be forced to hire only fired teachers, Cane said that "for the court to do this then would be condoning — I hate to use the word — unlawful act of the teachers."

He told the teachers they took a "calculated risk" when they struck, and they knew the possible consequences.

Cane also dismissed the case of the intervening Hortonville parents who joined in the fired teachers' motions and who also sought to provide testimony to prove that the quality of education under the replacement teachers was extremely poor.

Cane told Dennis Herring, legal counsel for the parents, that he couldn't punish the board of education by ordering the requested restrictions since the board hadn't broken the law. He also said any question about the quality of education should be directed to the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, not to the courts.

When Cane denied the teachers' motions because of their unclean-hands status, Herring reminded him that he, as the parents' counsel, had joined in on the motion. Herring noted that the parents hadn't gone out on an illegal strike and, therefore, came into court with clean hands.

At an earlier hearing, Cane had denied Herring's motion that the schools be closed or the fired teachers all be reinstated until the educational quality issue was resolved.

Herring said he intended to appeal the Thursday ruling, and Bruce Ehke, legal counsel for the fired teachers, said he also may appeal.

The judge withheld a ruling at this time on the contention of Ehke and Herring that the board of education violated Cane's early May order requiring the board to give preference to fired teachers when filling vacancies during the current school year. They said the board violated the rule the same day it was put into effect, and they demanded that the board be found in contempt of court.

Cane won't rule on that until he returns from judge's school in July. He noted during the proceedings, apparently reacting to criticism, that the school had been scheduled in January, long before the strike.

Herring and Ehke contended at the hearing opened that Cane had ruled at the May 6 hearing that the board was enjoined from hiring replacement teachers for the 1974-75 school year, but Cane said that wasn't true, and that he had ordered the board to give preference to fired teachers only for the 1973-74 school year.

Ehke read from the May 6 transcript, quoting Jack Walker, board of education legal counsel, stating that it was board policy at that time to attempt to rehire individual fired teachers for openings. Walker said Thursday that that had been the policy, but that it was changed.

Police chief seeks post of sheriff

WEYAUWEGA — Lawrence D. Schmies Sr., 49, head of the Weyauwega police department for the last 11 years, has announced his candidacy for sheriff of Waupaca County on the Republican ticket.

He has spent most of his adult life in police work. He was a patrolman with the Milwaukee Police Department for 10 years before joining the Weyauwega force.

Schmies has updated his law enforcement training through enrollment in courses at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, the Drug Abuse School at the Glendale Crime Laboratory and the Fox Valley Technical Institute, Appleton.

"I have had practical experience on the street and have continuously studied law enforcement administration," Schmies said.

"If elected sheriff, I will do everything I can to preserve what we have in Waupaca County," he said. "Good law enforcement is the answer if we are to keep our freedom. I would work for the protection of everyone's rights and to sustain the good public relations which the sheriff's department and county traffic department have worked tirelessly to create."

Sgt. Dennis Kussmann, 30, Clintonville, a member of the Waupaca County Traffic Patrol and a 10-year police veteran and county officer for the past five years, announced in early January that he will be a candidate for sheriff on a nonpartisan ticket this fall.

Incumbent Sheriff Loran Frazier, a Republican, who has been sheriff for the past four years and held the office on alternate years since 1963, has not yet decided whether he will seek re-elections.

Nominees for sheriff (a two-year term) and other county elective offices start circulating their papers Saturday. Papers must be filed on or before June 30.

Junior Woman's Club plans art workshop

NEW LONDON — The New London Junior Woman's Club will sponsor a children's art workshop from Aug. 5-9 with Mrs. Janet Polsin as chairman.

Two sessions will be held each day, with one session for children entering grades one and two and second session for students in third and fourth grade.

Ruth Zarling, an elementary art instructor, will teach the program.

A registration fee of 75 cents will be charged to cover the costs of materials.

Lake Emily endangered by pollution

AMHERST — Lake Emily, for many years a favorite recreation spot for persons in the Amherst area, has joined the list of "dying" waters.

This report on the lake was presented at a meeting of the Portage County Board's Health and Education Committee, with members of the County Park Commission in attendance. The study was made by Gerald Niehoff, a University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point student, and Mike Meyer, who is in charge of the Environmental Task Force laboratory at the university.

They tested water samples and inspected cottage sanitation systems on the lakeshore. The cause of the lake's condition stems from too many nutrients, which make the lake over-fertile, stimulating weed and algae growth. The nutrients come from malfunctioning sanitation systems, in addition to run off from nearby farms, according to the report.

There are 104 cottages on the lake, 60 of them leased from the county. The cottages on county land have been the subject of much controversy during the past years. These cottagers have five year leases which will expire in 1976, and the county board will have to decide whether to renew the leases.

Lake Emily is not a spring-fed lake, which adds to the problem. It is a groundwater lake, extending below the water table. The situation has worsened because of the high lake level. In some cases, septic tanks are under water, the committee was told.

The problem will be further investigated by a joint committee of the Health and Education Committee and the Park Commission.

Tiny boarder

A baby albino squirrel has become the newest member of the Allen Luchterhand family, 925 S. Madison St., Chilton. The tiny rodent was discovered creeping along the edge of the sidewalk by Mrs. Luchterhand. An attempt was made to find the baby's nest, but as yet it remains hidden. With the care and attention the squirrel is getting, he is probably just as content in his new home. (Connors photos)

Iola Hospital expansion gets health council okay

IOLA — The Iola Hospital board's project application to build a 24-bed hospital at an estimated cost of $833,654 has passed its second hurdle successfully. It earlier received support at a public hearing.

The executive committee of the Lake Winnebago Area-wide Comprehensive Health Planning Council voted 4-3 this week to approve the project as submitted.

On or before next Wednesday, the council will submit the proposal, with its recommendation for approval, to the state Division of Health Policy and Planning, Madison. Final approval by the state is expected before June 20.

"We are happy the council's executive committee voted favorably to recommend the replacement of our 24 bed facility," a board of directors spokesman said Thursday. "We will provide a supplemental information sheet answering specific questions and, with the continued backing of the community, will continue to seek state approval."

It is the function of the state agency to review all of the data submitted by the hospital, the resume of the May 23 public hearing, the recommendations of the area council executive committee and staff and then make the final decision.

Four items are considered in the state review: Need, whether the hospital can be staffed, if the proposed expenditure is economically feasible and whether the project has sound cost containment and will improve quality of care through improved efficiency and productivity.

Another important consideration in the health planning and review process is whether or not the proposed project significantly duplicates existing facilities and available services.

Weyauwega mayor names committees

WEYAUWEGA — Various City Council committees have been named by Mayor Fred Maass. Finance, Howard Quimby; Dennis Timm and Roy Anderson; public works, D. Timm, Malcolm Larson and Marvin Timm; police and fire, Anderson, M. Timm and Quimby; relief, Robert Radtke, Anderson and Quimby; public property, M. Timm, Radtke and Larson; and purchasing, park and recreation, Larson, D. Timm and Radtke.

A license to collect or transport garbage, refuse or commercial and industrial waste within the city limits was granted to Jeffrey Loehrke. The license will run from July 1, 1974, to June 30, 1975, at a fee of $25.

Ald. Roy Anderson, new chairman of the police and fire committee, said his panel will meet with the police officers on the second Monday of each month.

A road leading into the new disposal plant will be constructed closer to the south lot line. Members of a council committee will meet with representatives of Taylor Cheese Corp. to discuss the possible use of the city property in the new road area by both parties.

Dance hall hours rule to be topic

WAUPACA — Possible changes in the county ordinance regulating dance halls will be one of the topics to be discussed at 7:30 p.m. June 7 when the County Law Enforcement Committee holds its regular monthly meeting at the courthouse.

Presently, the ordinance requires all dance halls to close at 1 a.m. A dance hall is defined as a "place of amusement where dancing may take place by means of any musical instrument or instruments."

Any place that is dance hall must obtain a yearly license and also a permit for each dance. A dance hall inspector is required for each dance.

There have been a number of revisions proposed for regulating dance halls, including one to make the dance hall closing hour the same as the tavern closing hour.

Interested persons are invited to attend the meeting and be heard.

Model airplane club host to event June 9

HILBERT — Members of the Calumet Flyers Club expect model airplane clubs from throughout the state for an event June 9 at their field two miles north of Hilbert.

Model planes over 72 inches and biplanes over 53 inches are eligible to compete for prizes.

Fremont scout leaders cited

FREMONT — Leaders of Cub Scout Pack 145 who recently were awarded service stars Mrs. Merle Alix and Mrs. William Mathwig, two-year stars; Derald Vogt, or, a five-year star; Mrs. Donald Vogt, a six-year star and clubmaster William Mathwig, a 16-year star.

Cub Scouts James Watson and John Meydam were awarded one-year stars. The pack received the national Presidents Citation for completing high standards in cubbing during 1973.

The annual picnic and softball game will be held tonight at the Wolf River Town Hall.

The pack committee has announced the summer schedule will include a visit to the circus museum June 16 and Cub Day at Twin Lakes Camp July 23. They will leave the Legion memorial hall at 8:30 for each event.

In August scouts will visit the Green Bay Packer Hall of Fame and the Bay Beach Park and wild life sanctuary.

New Historical Society landmarks chairman

MADISON — John H. Seamann, president of the Marinette Historical Society, has been appointed chairman of the Wisconsin Registered Landmarks Committee, the State Historical Society has announced.

The committee assists in the selection of historic sites regarded as suitable for marking under a state-financed program. Saeman succeeds Willis Erickson of Balsam Lake as head of the advisory group.

Hatley, Birnamwood lead BABA division race

Regular season games on Sunday plus a pair of makeup games on Monday highlighted action this weekend in the northern division of the Badger Amateur Baseball Association as Hatley and Birnamwood remained undefeated.

In Sunday action, scores were Hatley over Wittenberg 6-4, Birnamwood over Aniwa 38-3, Eand over Elderon 6-2 and Almon over Mattoon 25-10. In makeup games on Monday, Birnamwood downed Elderon 17-9 and Hatley beat Almon 12-3.

Both Hatley and Wittenberg collected six hits, but a three-run home run by paca Karshney made the difference for Hatley. Karshney also homered early in the game. Ed Poock, Dan Owen and Jerry Aanonson each had a homer for Wittenberg. Mike Stahowiak, who relieved starter Elmer Allen after he was injured in the first inning, got the win. Dan Owen, who was relieved after seven innings by Jim Krummer, was the loser.

Birnamwood pounded out 25 hits in its rout of Aniwa. Larry Resch collected four hits including three home runs, one of them a grand slam. Gordy Meyer hit a grand slam in the first inning and Dave Resch hit a three-run shot in the third. Mike Resch, son of manager Jiggs Resch and a high school junior, made his first BABA appearance as he relieved winning pitcher Jerry Bird after five innings and pitched four scoreless innings. Bob

Clintonville pastor leaves, one assigned

CLINTONVILLE — The Rev. Wesley Dafeo, pastor of the United Methodist Church here for the past two years, has been appointed to the Honey Creek Denzer United Methodist charge. The Rev. Norman Stephenson will be the appointed pastor here, effective June 15.

The appointments will be made final at the Wisconsin annual conference June 6-9 at the Baptist Assembly Grounds, Green Lake.

Stephenson is associate pastor at the Green Bay First United Methodist Church. He is married and has two children.

The Dafeos came to Clintonville from Marshfield, where they had served the Wesley United Methodist Church for 10 years. They will be moving to their new parish about the middle of June. The Honey Creek-Denzer charge is a rural parish located southwest of Baraboo.

The Women's Society will sponsor a farewell reception for the Dafeos in behalf of the church from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Marion tips Tigerton 4-2 in BABA

A full slate of games were played Sunday in the eastern and western divisions of the Badger Amateur Baseball Association with one makeup game on Monday.

In Sunday's action, Marion got past Tigerton 4-2, Cecil beat Leopold 4-1, Clintonville downed Caroline 11-2, Gresham nipped Bowler 2-1, Menominee County beat Big Falls 4-1 while Shawano trounced Tilleda 19-2. In makeup action on Monday, Marion beat host team Menominee County 5-3.

Sunday's game at Marion went scoreless for 6 1/2 innings before Marion scored four runs in the bottom of the seventh.

Kent Brandenburg came in to relieve Ken Lodewegen in the top of the ninth for Marion. Lodewegen allowed five hits, while the loser, who was relieved after seven innings by Charley Kiebiok, was Mike Thiel. He allowed six hits. Thiel had pitched 24 scoreless innings until Marion scored in the seventh. Daley tripled and Lodewegen doubled to lead Marion while Dahlman had three hits for the Tigers.

Winning pitcher for Cecil Doug Hoppe, allowed five hits and struck out five while the loser for Leopold, Pete Kristof also allowed five hits and fanned eight. Tom Betzner had two hits including a home run and Len Herm also had two hits for Cecil. Pete and Steve Kristof each had a pair of hits for the losers.

Pat Zingler went five innings for the win at Clintonville. Jim Petcka finished. They allowed six hits. Bruce Brienfeldt was the losing pitcher. Clintonville collected 12 hits led by Petcka, Roger Griepentrog and Brian Dunlavey, who all homered.

Dale Ebert was the winning pitcher for Gresham, as he allowed six hits while fanning 15. Losing pitcher Ray Murphy allowed just four hits, collected two of its teams hits and scored their only run.

Orman Waukau was the winning pitcher for Menominee County, allowing four hits while striking out 12. Losing pitcher LeRoy Jossie allowed six hits. The game was tied at 1-1 until the eighth inning when Menominee scored three runs which included a 2-run homer by Wayne Waukau. Norman Waupoose has three hits for the winners. Marlyn Bailey and Tony Jesivicus each had two hits for Big Falls.

Shawano pounded out 17 hits in routing Tilleda, scoring runs in each of the first seven innings. Greg Stezinski led the winners with 4-for-4. Jerry Siefert was the winning pitcher allowing four hits. Keith Grosskopf got the loss.

Marion had 12 hits, led by Bruce West with three, while Kent Brandenburg, Ron Krueger and Daley had two each. Wayne Waukau led the losers with two hits.

Games this weekend will have Clintonville (2-0) at Cecil (2-1), Shawano (3-0) at Menominee (1-2), Gresham (1-1) at Marion (2-1), Tilleda (1-2) at Big Falls (0-2), Bowler (1-1) at Leopold (0-3) and Tigerton (2-1) at Caroline (1-2).

Teachers...

The board has lately been circumventing Cane's May 6 order for preferential rehiring of fired teachers since the board filed an appeal of the order with the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

In seeking relief for the fired teachers, Ehke said he could provide testimony to show the undesirable job market. He also said he could provide testimony to the fact that 53 fired teachers own their homes and would lose $290,000, if they had to leave the area; moving expenses would be about $130,000; income loss would be over 500,000; spouses' income loss would be over $200,000, and children's income loss would be over $45,000.

Ehke said it was imperative that the court grant some relief.

Cane injected that "I thought I was attempting to do that through mediation."

Ehke said the teachers had tried to use that method also.

When the matter first came into Cane's court, he held several mediation sessions, along with a Wisconsin Employment Relations Commissioner behind his closed chambers doors. But last week, after the final session, he said he was ending his mediation attempts.

Marion students receive awards

MARION—Recognition of student achievement at Marion High School was given Wednesday night at the school's annual class night.

After the processional, with Mrs. Martin Lutzewitz at the organ, Dan Moericke, who served as master of ceremonies, gave the welcome, and the senior chorus, led by Miss Susan Bohn, sang "We're Moving On."

Mary Mielke, student council president, presented the Spirit Cup to the class which collected the most points for attendance at athletic events, contests and so on. The seniors won the cup.

Kelly McGraw, senior class vice president made the traditional hatchet presentation. It was accepted by Annette Malueg, junior class president.

A musical interlude followed, with the school band playing a "Lennon and McCartney Portrait," which included many of the well-known Beatle hit songs.

Beth Bartelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bartelt, received the freshman citizenship award, sponsored by the American Legion post and presented by Ted Verges, class adviser. Julie Buss received the freshman scholastic award presented by Paul Paddock, and Kathleen Nolan received the DAR award from Mrs. Charlotte Bertram.

Robert Eggleston, vocational coordinator, presented Industrial Arts Club scholarships and special commendation to boys who have been working on the new home being built by students under the Capstone course.

Recipients of the scholarships—to vocational-technical schools—are Randy Greunke, Mark Krueger, Randy Lohrenz, Pete Kucksdorf, Bill Allen and Randy Krueger. Doug Heiman received the Marion Building Center, Inc. scholarship, and Tony Cerveny, the Marion Manufacturing Co. scholarship.

The award for the outstanding senior girl, given by Marion Plywood Corp., went to Mary Mielke. The award for the outstanding senior boy, sponsored by the Marion Body Works, went to Jordan Ellefson. Principal Robert Peterson presented the two awards. He also presented the Jeff Nell Memorial Scholastic Improvement Award to Ellefson.

Cheri Rohde received the Future Homemaker of America award, sponsored by the Marion State Bank, from Mrs. Paul Paddock. Kathleen Nolan received the Journalism award, sponsored by the Marion Advertiser, and presented by Miss Jane Bamberg.

Barbara Hedtke received the forensics award, sponsored by the Marion Woman's Club, from Mrs. Chris Verges, forensics coach.

Jon Atton received the Donald Krueger Athletic Memorial Award from Paul Paddock, and Mark Krueger received the "W" award from Marilyn Bailey, a letter winner at the UW-Madison, awarded each year to a senior boy athlete who also excels academically.

Supt. Jerry Quandt presented state honor scholarships to Jon Atton, Barbara Hedtke, Mary Mielke, and Dan Moericke. He also presented the special scholarships to Barbara Hedtke, valedictorian, and to Mary Mielke, salutatorian.

Kathleen Nolan gave the senior farewell, and Robert Nolan, the junior response.

That's what you have when you own a Marantz. And the Marantz Model 2220 AM/FM Stereo Receiver is a perfect example. It's loaded with features that feel like extras—without extra cost. The Gyro-Touch tuning wheel and illuminated signal strength meter assure accurate optimum reception. There's the low and hi filter pushswitches. They reduce low and high-frequency noise, tape hiss and record scratch from your music. And the FM muting pushswitch eliminates inter-station noise when tuning. Power conscious? So is the 2220. With a total of 40 Watts continuous power, both channels driven, the total harmonic and intermodulation distortion is under 0.5%. The fully automatic self-protective circuitry assures that all internal parts and associated speakers are safe from overload. And the completely enclosed metal chassis protects internal parts as well. The professional pre-amp control section includes provisions for record changer, tape decks and headphones, with precision control over virtually every audio variable. A built-in ferrite AM antenna is included, plus convenient speaker terminals and outlet for main and remote speakers. Push the loudness control switch and you get the full fidelity of your music when listening at low levels. The front panel is gold-anodized, which means it will never corrode. Put it all together and you have the Marantz Model 2220. The features, like the benefits, are made to last and last.

Weyauwega teacher wins honor

By JUDY WIESMAN
Post-Crescent correspondent

WEYAUWEGA — Mrs. Melva Kleist, a teacher in the elementary schools here, has been named as one of the Outstanding Teachers of America for 1974, on the basis of her professional and civic achievements.

She is now eligible to receive the Outstanding Elementary Teacher of the Year trophy. Five $500 unrestricted grants will be awarded to the schools represented by America's five outstanding teachers. In this way the program thanks the teacher and the school for their contributions to the continuing excellence of education.

She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, with a major in education. She has her masters degree in remedial reading from University of Wisconsin-River Falls. She is currently reading specialist for the Weyauwega-Fremont Area Elementary schools.

She set up the remedial reading program in both schools and serves as a reading consultant to elementary teachers.

Last year the Young Authors Club was formulated in the schools under her leadership. It was recently highlighted in the Wisconsin display on the Right to Read Committee at the International Reading Conference in New Orleans.

She was instrumental in setting up the Wisconsin Design-World Attack program, coordinated for kindergarten through fifth grade. The Wisconsin Design Study Skills is used in kindergarten through seventh grade.

Mrs. Kleist presently serves as recording secretary for the Central Wisconsin Reading Association and is recording secretary for the association's bylaws committee. She is a member of the state "Right to Read" committee and was a charter member in 1969. Next year she will be the committee's recording secretary.

She holds memberships in the International Reading Association, the National Education Association and the local teacher's organization.

Mrs. Kleist lives in Almond where she is a member of St. John Lutheran Church.

During her 26 year teaching career, she taught at the Tri-County Schools, Plainfield, for 14 years and for CESA No. 8, Appleton, before her assignment here six years ago.

Bids sought for new post office

BEAR CREEK — The U.S. Postal Service is seeking bids for a new postal facility here.

The building may be either new construction or an existing building modified according to Postal Service specifications. It will have an interior of 800 square feet and a total site area of 6,500 square feet.

A new post office is needed because the owner of the present post office is moving in.

The postal service will lease the new building for ten years with four renewal options of five years each.

Bid documents are available from R.R. Gillette, manager, Area Real Estate Buildings Office, U.S. Postal Service, P.O. Box 69069, St. Paul, Minnesota 55169.

Bids close June 28, 1974.

The Outagamie Bank Can Help

A death in the family poses a multitude of business and personal problems which require immediate attention. The Outagamie Bank can help during these times by providing guidance and assistance through a new, exclusive program, Special Organizational Services (SOS).

The Outagamie Bank's SOS advisors have a complete knowledge of the details involved in organizing a deceased's affairs. They'll inform you of the authorities which must be notified and assist you in the preparation of the various claims which must be made. Their knowledge of the details regarding Social Security, Veteran's Benefits and Civil Service regulations are at your disposal. Guidance is also provided in matters relating to pensions, life insurance and teachers benefits. SOS advisors do not replace the need for legal service nor are they an accounting service. Their sole purpose is to make complicated details a little less burdensome and see that you haven't overlooked any of the funds due you.

Germaine Bassett, Janet Gritzmacher and Farrell Hussey are the SOS advisors at The Outagamie Bank. Their services as advisors are FREE to anyone, regardless of banking affiliation. For additional details on this exclusive Outagamie Bank service, phone Germaine, Janet or Farrell at 739-3651 or stop in and see one of them at the bank.

County counsel sought

CHILTON — Calumet County Board will act on a resolution at its June 25 meeting establishing the post of a corporation counsel for the county.

At a recent meeting of the salary and personnel committee it was decided there is a need for the position of a part-time corporation counsel who would assume the responsibility overall civil matters related to county government, while the district attorney, also in a part-time capacity, will continue to handle criminal matters. At the present time, the district attorney handles both.

The reason offered for the change is the increased amount of legal matters coming before the courts and county board which takes much of the district attorney's time.

The salary for the elected part-time district attorney will be $1,016 per month, for the year 1975. In addition, a secretarial allowance of $200 per month will be provided.

It is expected that the compensation and specific duties of the part-time counsel will be set by October, 1975, at the budget hearing.

Cub Scouts hold carnival, give awards in Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — Although the weatherman didn't cooperate and Cub Scouts Pack 28's carnival had to be moved indoors to the parish hall of the Christus Lutheran Church, a large crowd of scouts, parents, families and friends enjoyed the festivities Tuesday evening.

The event had target and skill games, refreshment stands, and a haunted house. All games and side-shows were made and operated by the scouts and their den mothers.

Numerous awards were presented to members of Pack 28 by Dr. William Krueger, Webelos leader. Receiving Bobcat badges were Brian Bettin, Brad Scholl and Danny Collier; Wolf badges, John Jurkovic, Rajiv Asija, John An-

Youth waived to adult court in shooting

WAUPACA — The 17-year-old youth, involved with two New London men in the early Monday morning shooting incident in Outagamie and Waupaca counties, was waived into adult court Wednesday and charged with reckless use of a weapon, damage to property and disorderly conduct.

Richard P. Southard, 1302 N. Water St., New London, appeared before Judge A. Don Zwickey, who appointed legal counsel, set his preliminary hearing for 8 a.m. June 4 and set bond at $3,000.

Southard, according to police reports, was with Neil Roman, 18, 501 Beacon St., and Lee Allan Phillips, 20, 300 1/2 N. Water St., both of New London, when three rifles shots were fired from the car registered to Phillips at a car following them along U.S. 45. Three bullet holes were found in the car, driven by David Schetter. They were in the windshield, on the chrome on the windshield and in the oil pan.

Roman and Phillips, both charged with reckless use of a weapon, damage to property and disorderly conduct, were to appear for their preliminary hearings today. Each is being held in the county jail on $3,000 bond.

Chicago man feared drowned in Menasha

MENASHA — Police were still searching late this morning for the body of Charles Stovall, 49, of Chicago, who disappeared underwater Wednesday morning after a boating accident near the spillway of the Menasha Dam.

Authorities were dragging the Fox River and Little Lake Buttes des Morts in the vicinity of James Island and an air search by a Department of Natural Resources pilot was also underway.

Winnebago County Coroner Duane Moore was withholding an official ruling until authorities recovered the body.

Authorities said their operations on the water this morning and Wednesday were hampered by strong current. Dragging operations began about 9 a.m.

Receiving Bear badges and gold arrows in the Bear rank were Chad Cassiani, Bill Parsons, Steve Parsons and Peter Schafer; and silver arrows in the Bear rank, Chad Cassiani, Tim Calminas, Bill Parsons and Steve Parsons, and Peter Schafer.

Fifteen scouts will have reached the age of 10 by September and they received their Webelos ribbons Tuesday evening. They were Patrick Beck, Chad Cassiani, Tim Galminas, Bill Parsons, Peter Schafer, Jay Roloff, Jim Husman, Bob Syverson, David Harbath, Mitch Krause, Craig Bevernitz, Todd Leete, Steve Krueger, Paul Gretzinger and Jim Hogan.

One-year service pins went to Steven Krueger and Early Fuller; two-year service pins to Chad Cassiani, Tim Morgan, Dana Adams and Terry Mehlberg; and three-year service pins to Danny Krueger and Jeff Bruggink.

Recruiter badges were given to Matt Fischer, Raymond Berndt and Todd Schafer.

Awards on the Webelos level went to Tim Morgan, who received his outdoorsman, naturalist, athlete and sportsman awards; Dana Adams, engineer, athlete and artist awards; Mark Klemp, sportsman and artist awards; and Tim Bricco, aquanaut and showman awards.

Four scouts will have reached the age of 11 and have graduated into Boy Scouts, including Danny Krueger, Jeff Bruggink, Andy Krueger and Gerald Kriewaldt.

Service awards also were presented to a number of adults. Receiving one-year service pins were Mrs. Jim Born, Mrs. Roger Parsons, Mrs. Louis Klemp, Jr., Mrs. Calvin Roloff, Mrs. Chet Jurkovic and Dr. Krueger; two-year service pins, Mrs. Robert Galminas, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Krause, Mrs. Milton Bevernitz and Mrs. William Krueger; and a three-year service pin, Mrs. Thomas Fischer.

This was the last pack meeting until September. As one of its summer activities, Pack 28 plans to attend the stock car races at Shawano on June 8.

Scout units to alternate monthly paper pickups

CLINTONVILLE — At a recent meeting of Scout Troop 28 leaders and committeemen, it was decided that the troop would share the paper drives in the city with Senior Girls' Troop 288 for the remainder of the year, alternating each month.

The paper drive scheduled for June 8 will be conducted by Troop 28, the drive in July, by the Senior Girl Scouts. The girls are raising money to help pay expenses for a trip to Mexico next year.

The paper drive has been the main means of raising money for Troop 28 for many years. Money the troop earns is used to help support activities such as camping, providing tents and other needed equipment.

It has been noted that money given through the United Fund for scouting does not go to the local troops, but to the national and regional organizations

Chances for Mideast stability greatly improved

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Syrian-Israeli military disengagement accord dramatically improves chances for Middle East stability. And so Syria's anxious ally, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, can begin breathing a little easier.

But his relief must be diluted by an acute awareness of how fragile such an agreement can be.

Bringing Syria under the disengagement tent with Israel and Egypt not only was a breakthrough of incalculable importance, but it was another minor miracle of the sort that is becoming a specialty of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Having produced this wonder, however, Kissinger now must apply his legerdemain to the even more impossible-looking job of turning truce into peace.

Syria long has been the enfant terrible of the Arab world. Her political leaders are invariably under severe pressures generated by the highly emotional Palestine issue. When Kissinger set out to bring Syria into an agreement of any description with the arch-enemy, it had seemed he had taken on a hopeless task.

Meantime, Egypt's President Sadat, eager to get his nation on the road to economic health, must have had many an uneasy moment. All alone in his military disengagement pact with Israel, he was out on a long limb and looking uncomfortable.

In Arabic, "al-Misri" means "the Egyptian," and in this case it had seemed that "al-Misri" would have loved company. Now, at last, he has it.

But had Syria continued to hold out for long, Sadat could have been subject to the same sort of difficulty that plagued him before the October war, when intellectuals demanded an end, one way or another, to the situation of "no war, no peace."

When Arab terrorists burst into the picture so bloodily at a critical moment in the Syria-Israel negotiations, it had seemed all Kissinger's patient labor would go down the drain. The terrorism and consequent Israeli retaliations generated so much emotion on both sides as to make it seem all bets might be off.

Now the scene shifts to the Geneva conference, and if the Syria-Israel phase had looked tough, the Geneva one can be much tougher. Peace, in fact, is a long way off.

The terror situation still can threaten the fragile agreement, since there can hardly be a secure guarantee against acts by fanatical extremists.

For Israel, security is the name of the game. For Syria, it is "the legitimate rights of the Palestine people," a rhetorical demand that can mean many things, even up to dismantlement of the Israeli state. Some Israelis think the Syrians mean just that.

Syria will continue demanding back all the Golan Heights area it lost in 1967, but Israel will be far from eager to give up a security bird-in-hand for a promise in the bush.

Northern Israel is only a narrow nine-miles-wide neck of land bordered by Arab territory. The Jordan River rises in the Golan area and before 1967 was vulnerable to diversion, a threat to Israel's national water system. Withdrawal from the Golan Heights could make Upper Galilee once again an easy target. Withdrawal from Mt. Hermon would deprive Israel of a clear view all the way to Damascus, a warranty against surprise.

Balancing those major obstacles to peace on that front are such factors as a war weariness now beginning to be noticeable on both sides, plus an apparent determination on the part of the Soviet Union and the United States to handle the area as a dangerous powder keg. Unquestionably the Geneva phase will last a long time, but the outlook seems a lot more hopeful this month than it did last.

Victory kiss

Kissinger makes reports on truce

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger arrived here today en route home from his 33-day marathon peace mission, and a senior American official said the cease-fire agreement he mediated between Israel and Syria would take effect as soon as it is signed on Friday.

Before leaving Jerusalem, the American secretary of state told newsmen the pact may become "a turning point in the history of the Middle East."

The senior official, talking to newsmen as the Kissinger party flew here to report to President Anwar Sadat on the accord, said wounded prisoners of war would be exchanged within 24 hours of the signing in Geneva.

As part of the agreement to separate Israeli and Syrian forces in the Golan Heights, the official said, Israel would give up the Golan city of Quneitra and six or seven villages taken in the 1967 war, as well as land gained last October.

The U.S. official said Israel would retain possession of three strategic hills and all of its settlements, but will yield about "a field and a half" of cultivated land east of the disengagement line.

The text of the accord distributed to newsmen gives Syrian and Israeli negotiators until Wednesday to work out details of the troop separation in the Golan Heights.

Actual disengagement is to begin by next Thursday and completed by June 25. All of the remaining 73 Israeli and 408 Syrian, Moroccan and Iraqi prisoners are to be repatriated by Thursday.

The text termed the agreement "a step toward a just and durable peace" on the basis of the United Nations Security Council resolution that declared a cease-fire to the October war.

That resolution called for an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories, but did not say whether Israel is to give up all the land gained in the two most recent Arab-Israeli wars.

In a protocol accompanying the agreement, Israel and Syria agreed that the U.N. peacekeeping force will number about 1,250 men and will carry out regular inspections.

But the force is not to hamper the

More oil embargoes unlikely, experts feel

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's help in negotiating the Israeli-Syrian

troop disengagement virtually eliminates the possibility of another Arab oil embargo, a U.S. energy expert says.

"This agreement removes the major impediment to good relations between the United States and the Arabs," John Wilhelm, director of producer country affairs in the Federal Energy Office, said Wednesday.

Wilhelm's statement capped a day of good energy news for the country. The federal energy chief said electric utilities should have enough fuel to avoid power problems this summer, and it was reported that for the first time this year there are no gasoline shortages at the end of the month.

The diplomatic breakthrough in the Mideast, achieved after 32 days of mediation by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, came just three days before the Arabs were scheduled to meet and review their oil-export policy.

"This virtually eliminates the likelihood of a renewed Arab oil embargo, as far as we can tell," Wilhelm said after the agreement was announced.

"I think with this impediment removed we can be reasonably assured that Arab oil production will increase, especially in Saudi Arabia," he said.

Wilhelm had made a recent visit to Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Libya and reported Arab willingness to increase oil shipments, but said it hinged on U.S.-aided progress in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Wilhelm said Wednesday he could not guess how fast or how far Arab oil production might be increased.

"Their thinking is still in the formative stages on this," he said.

Judiciary panel gives Nixon warning on tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee today warned President Nixon he may be providing grounds for impeachment by refusing to honor committee subpoenas for Watergate tapes.

By a vote of 28 to 10, it authorized the sending of a letter to Nixon stating that his refusal will be weighed by the committee when it votes on whether to recommend his impeachment.

"In meeting their constitutional responsibility," the letter says, "committee members will be free to consider whether your refusals warrant the drawing of adverse inferences concerning the substance of the material and whether your refusals in and of themselves constitute a ground for impeachment."

An earlier draft had said members would be "obliged" to draw such an inference, but it was softened at the suggestion of Rep. Lawrence Hogan, R-Md.

Eight Republicans joined with 20 Democrats in approving the letter, which was signed by Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J.

The letter was a response to Nixon's letter of May 22 saying no further Watergate matter would be provided.

In his May 22 letter, Nixon based his refusal to supply 11 tapes subpoenaed by the committee on the grounds that it would lead to "a never ending process" of continuing requests.

Nixon said, "Such a massive invasion into the confidentiality of presidential conversations" would fatally weaken the office of the presidency.

Nixon also told the committee it already had "the full story of Watergate insofar as it relates to presidential knowledge and presidential actions."

The committee letter says: "It is not within the power of the presidency to conduct an inquiry into its own impeachment, to determine what evidence and what version or portion of that evidence is relevant and necessary to such an inquiry."

The letter is considerably stronger than one sent last month after Nixon released edited transcripts of Watergate conversations in place of the tapes the committee had subpoenaed. On that occasion the committee merely sent Nixon a four-line letter saying he had not complied with the subpoena.

Approval of a response to Nixon's letter was only one of several matters to be settled by the committee today after the completion of the preliminary presentation of Watergate evidence.

White House lawyer James D. St.

Clair said the committee's impeachment case does not amount to much, but some committee members disagreed Wednesday.

"Very few prosecutors ever have this kind of evidence available," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., a former federal prosecutor, after the committee wound up the preliminary presentation of Watergate evidence Wednesday.

St. Clair, who has been committed to attend the committee's closed sessions as an observer, said if the impeachment inquiry was an ordinary trial he would be tempted to rest his defense at this point.

"Nothing substantial has been presented," he told newsmen. He also said he thought the committee should call Watergate witnesses and clear up any remaining questions on the cover-up before proceeding to other subjects.

Higher taxes proposed internationally on oil

BY ERIC WAHA
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The chief executive officer of the cartel which handles 80 per cent of global oil exports said today his organization might hike oil taxes rather than prices when a freeze expires July 1.

Abderrahman Khene, secretary-general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — OPEC — said that members might decide to step up their income by increased taxation "to reap the windfall profits" of the Western oil companies.

In an exclusive interview, he made clear OPEC expected the oil companies to absorb this, and not make their customers pay for it by boosting oil prices.

"Not long ago, the oil companies were making a profit of about 50 cents per barrel of crude oil while, starting in the last months, they were making $4 or more," he said.

"Maybe we will try to reap the windfall profits of the oil companies without changing the posted prices" at the meeting of the OPEC oil ministers in Quito, Ecuador starting June 15. Stressing this was his personal opinion, he said this could be done by boosting the government take of the OPEC countries through higher taxation.

OPEC, which includes the Persian Gulf producers, decided here March 16 to extend the freeze of oil prices until July 1, stating they were giving industrialized countries a chance to control their "galloping inflation."

The so-called posted price for Persian crude oil at the time was $11.65. The government take from it by the producing countries was about $7.

The posted price is a tax reference price on which OPEC countries base their taxes and royalties. The actual market price the petroleum companies have been getting for oil has been hovering around $9 a barrel.

OPEC's economic board is currently working out a recommendation for the Quito meeting. Experts expected the recommendation would be for an increased government take, but they did not expect any announcement on the board's work, scheduled to last two to three days.

"Secrecy is not the reason for this," Khene said. "We want to avoid to start speculation by publishing a recommendation which the ministers might not follow."

Khene said the economic board recommended some time ago that the government take should be about $10 per barrel, but that the ministers disregarded the advice at that time.

Turning to the Quito meeting, Khene said:

"This will be an ordinary conference, that is to say a meeting which will deal to a great extent with the administrative work of OPEC. But it also coincides with the period the ministers will have to decide on the level of their government take, that is to say, with the matter of prices for the third quarter of 1974. Maybe we will try to reap the windfall profits without changing the posted prices, by modifications of the present system. This is obviously a very complicated matter and, if a consensus is reached, each country will have to deal with their own oil companies to achieve that goal."

But in response to another question, Khene indicated a consensus was already achieved in preliminary contacts. "I personally think this has already been agreed upon."

In a recent interview, Harry Bridges, president of Shell Oil, said any move by OPEC to increase taxes would hasten the day the international oil companies would lose control of their facilities in producing countries.

Under guard

DETROIT (AP) — Maytroit Richard sat behind her boarded living room window reading her hate mail. A member of the black Vietnam veterans group which has pledged to protect her family stood by.

"I'm afraid of my own shadow," said the black mother of six, whose West Side home has been the target of rocks, garbage and harassment since she moved into the previously all-white neighborhood last summer.

"They don't want handguns in this city, but I've got to get one to protect my home," she said, holding her 9-month-old baby girl in her arms.

At first uncertain about whether to flee from the violence, Mrs. Richard, whose children range up to 19 years old, now says she is determined to stay.

Two of the Richard boys played basketball nearby with several neighbors in sight of an unmarked police car.

Police have been guarding her modest home around the clock since last week. Mrs. Richard finally sought their help after a brick was thrown in her basement window. An inscription tied to the brick read: "Go home nigger — can you dig it?"

The Interested Veterans for Economic and Social Progress moved in Wednesday with a pledge of long-term protection.

Earlier this month the home was patrolled by union groups working with the NAACP. Detroit Police Commissioner Philip Tannian visited the home last week and told Mrs. Richard to "hold on."

Since she moved into the neighborhood last July, her windows have been broken, and fish and wine bottles have been thrown in her backyard. Last November a car roared across her front lawn. One of the hate letters was decorated with a large American flag sticker and urged Mrs. Richard to move "with your own kind, where you are wanted."

"I've worked hard, I worked two jobs for four years," said Mrs. Richard, a booking agent. "My mother used to tell me you can't do it all at once, you have to crawl before you walk. Well, I got callouses from crawling."

Syrian civil administrators who will move into the demilitarized zone between the separated armies.

Kissinger and Sadat are to lunch together during a six-hour stopover before the secretary continues to Washington.

Announcement of the Syrian-Israeli agreement Wednesday did not halt fighting in the Golan Heights, and the Syrian command reported the 80th consecutive day of shelling there.

Premier Golda Meir was presenting the pact to the Israeli parliament today, and Information Minister Shimon Peres said it was expected to pass despite opposition from the right-wing Likud bloc.

Israeli officials said Mrs. Meir might resign immediately after a favorable vote, turning over the government to Premier-designate Yitzhak Rabin.

The break-through in reaching agreement came Tuesday when Israel dropped its insistence that the pact incorporate written guarantees against Palestinian terrorist infiltrators from Syria.

In exchange for the crucial concession, Israel reportedly got an American pledge that Israeli retaliation against terrorist attacks would be "understood" in Washington — interpreted to mean the United States would veto any U.N. Security Council resolutions condemning possible Israeli reprisal raids.

One expected result of Kissinger's 33-day mission is an upswing in relations between Damascus and Washington. At least part of $100 million in contingency funds sought by President Nixon in foreign aid for fiscal year 1973 may be channeled to Syria.

The United States also may provide assistance to rebuild towns and villages shelled during the 1967 and 1973 wars.

Perhaps more significant for the course of events in the Middle East, Syria has been drawn into the Geneva peace conference that it boycotted last December, even though Egypt and Jordan for the first time sat at the same table as Israel.

Kissinger carefully laid the groundwork for the disengagement by cultivating Algeria's Boumedienne along with Egypt's Sadat — Syrian President Hafez Assad's ally in last year's October war.

Now, on his way home to Washington, Kissinger is stopping in Cairo again today both to give Sadat a firsthand report and as a gesture of support.

Disengagement

Map indicates probable disengagement lines between Israel and Syria, according to Israeli sources close to the negotiations. Center black area would be the buffer zone with the shaded area to be the approximate 12-mile zones on either side, where armaments will be restricted. (AP Wirephoto)

Supreme Court urged to let lower courts decide about tapes demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House lawyer James D. St. Clair told the Supreme Court today that bypassing the U.S. Court of Appeals in the matter of the Watergate tapes and documents would result in "unjudicial haste."

"When a case raises the most fundamental issues of the allocation of power among the three branches of the federal government, it is more important that it be decided wisely than that it be decided hurriedly," St. Clair said in a brief submitted to the high court.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled May 20 that President Nixon must give tapes and documents subpoenaed by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski for judicial inspection.

Last Friday St. Clair appealed the judge's order to the Circuit Court of Appeals. Shortly afterward Jaworski asked the Supreme Court to take the appeal directly, skipping the appeals court.

On Tuesday the court asked St. Clair to respond by today and he said he would.

The White House also was facing another court deadline today on a Watergate matter — this one on orders of a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell has ordered President Nixon to state in writing by today that he understands that charges in the plumbers case against former presidential assistants may be dismissed if subpoenaed notes and records are not provided.

Although the Supreme Court does not disclose in advance when it will announce specific decisions, it has the regular weekly conference scheduled for Friday for the purpose of reviewing cases to determine which will be heard. If it considers Jaworski's request at that conference, the decision could come on Friday or Monday.

St. Clair's response was delivered to the Office of the Court Clerk by assistants.

St. Clair said he agreed with Jaworski that the constitutional issues in this case are exceedingly important.

"But it is precisely because of the importance of these issues that the President opposes any attempt to shortcut the usual judicial process," St. Clair wrote.

"Prompt judicial action is important in this case but 'prompt judicial action does not mean unjudicial haste,'" he said, quoting from a 1971 Supreme Court decision.

St. Clair said the case was of such importance "that the court must be assisted to the greatest possible extent by the lower courts and by counsel and that the court must have the opportunity for careful reflection and deliberation that wise decision requires."

In his petition, Jaworski suggested that if it accepted the case it require all briefs to be in by June 14 and hear arguments as soon thereafter as possible. The last scheduled day of the court's current session is June 17.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — More than 100 policemen wearing bullet-proof vests fired on robbery suspects in an East Cleveland home in a gun-battle that lasted 80 minutes. Two residents and five policemen were wounded, one critically.

Cleveland Patrolman Gerald Schetter, 31, was listed in poor to critical condition with a head wound at Huron Road Hospital.

The other wounded were identified as William Brenek, 45, reported in good condition with a back wound; Keith Reider, 31, who was treated for an arm wound and released; James Hughey, 26, treated for a back wound and released; and Richard Sphar, 48, who was treated for a hand wound and released.

A sixth policeman suffered a knee injury in a fall during the shootout.

Crisis talks held in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Northern Ireland's British administrator held crisis talks with Ulster's political leaders today after a night of violence in the predominantly Roman Catholic city of Londonderry.

The army said a band of about 300, many armed with pick handles and garden shears, attacked troops during the night. Soldiers fought back with rubber bullets and antiriot gas.

Seven sniper attacks, without casualties, were also reported.

Merlyn Rees, Britain's minister for Northern Ireland, met with Brian Faulkner, Protestant head of the toppled provincial coalition government, hoping to salvage something of the collapsed power-sharing experiment between Protestants and Catholics.

"I have made it very clear we will cooperate in every way possible to see a new partnership administration formed," Faulkner said.

Rees said his meetings today included talks with headline Protestant leaders Rev. Ian Paisley, Harry West and William Craig.

Meantime, commercial life of the British province moved toward normal as Protestant workers, satisfied that their 15-day general strike had reversed British efforts to bring minority Catholics into the Ulster government, returned to their jobs.

Rees assumed administration of the troubled province when the British reimposed direct rule from London late Wednesday by suspending the Northern Ireland Assembly for four months.

The move followed the collapse of the provincial Executive on Tuesday over the province-wide economic paralysis caused by the strike.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson termed the developments in Northern Ireland Ulster's "gravest crisis" since World War II. Wilson called Parliament back from spring recess for an emergency session and pledged Rees would make every effort to restore some form of power-sharing arrangement.

But Protestant hardliners were firm against giving the Catholic third of Ulster's 1.5 million people any more power.

"The answer will be 'no' if Rees comes up with that idea," said Craig, leader of the militant Vanguard Movement.

The Ulster Workers' Council warned that the strike could quickly be resumed if demands for early elections for a new provincial assembly were ignored. The militants believe they would win through elections an overwhelming vote of support that would kill British plans which they see aimed at eventual unification of the six counties of Ulster with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

British leaders have not mentioned assembly elections. But bonfires blazing through the night in tough Protestant districts of Belfast showed that for the moment at least the militants are happy with what they have achieved.

The Workers' Council suspended the general strike Wednesday after Protestant workers spontaneously began returning to work in droves.

President was assessed 5 pct. penalty by IRS

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — President Nixon was assessed a 5 per cent negligence penalty by the Internal Revenue Service in connection with $467,000 he owes in back income taxes and interest, a newspaper said today.

The Baltimore Sun, quoting sources familiar with the case, said the IRS included the 5 per cent penalty on April 3 when it assessed Nixon $432,787 in back taxes, plus interest.

The Sun said the dollar amount of the alleged negligence penalty could not be determined.

Nixon has said he would pay the taxes, but the White House has refused to say whether a negligence penalty was involved. The IRS refused comment on the newspaper report, saying it was agency policy not to go beyond what a taxpayer reveals about his own case.

A negligence penalty does not amount to a finding of fraud. It is made for "negligence or intentional disregard of rules and regulations," an IRS spokesman said.

The White House has maintained that any mistakes on Nixon's returns were made by lawyers or accountants who made out his returns, and not by the President.

Meanwhile, the White House announced Wednesday that public donations designed to help Nixon pay his back taxes now amounted to more than $90,000.

Nixon has said he would pay the back taxes himself, even if it meant borrowing the money, and the White House is returning the donations. A spokesman said Wednesday that the $4,341 of the total donated has come anonymously, and that this money was being given to victims of the April tornadoes which hit 13 states.

The White House said most contributions to the President ranged from $1 to $10, and that school children had sent in coins as well. It said the largest contribution was $10,000, but did not identify the donor.

It has been reported that Nixon has already paid a substantial amount of the back taxes, which cover the years 1969 through 1972, but the White House has refused comment on that.

Ad for deleter deleted

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A classified ad in the Baltimore Sunpapers for an "explosive deleter" drew a number of calls to the White House switchboard, an operator there said.

The origin of the ad, which appeared in the newspapers in their Wednesday editions, was not clear. It said:

"Sensitive position preparing official documents for publication. Extensive vocabulary required; retired drill instructor preferred. High pay and good benefits, including executive clemency."

The ad gave the telephone number of the White House switchboard. Queried about the ad, a White House operator said, "We're aware of it. We've had a number of calls." A White House press office employee said, "It's the first I've heard of it."

A newspaper employee said the ad was apparently paid for in cash sometime Tuesday. It did not appear in the Thursday editions.

Patman wants audit of Federal Reserve

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Banking Chairman Wright Patman is taking to the House his proposal for a General Accounting Office audit of the Federal Reserve.

He described his action of today as "an opportunity to cast a vote for open government and for the people's right to know what is happening with the people's business and money."

The opposition to the bill has been intense. A member of the House leadership said the lobbying has been the heaviest of this legislative session.

There is some speculation, in fact, that House members reluctant to upset their business and banker friends in an election year may block Patman from bringing the bill up by defeating its parliamentary floor access.

But Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns and a host of business and banker friends say the Fed would be severely damaged in its ability to independently shape the nation's economic policy if the GAO — and therefore the Congress — were second-guessing it.

An audit of the Fed has been Patman's consuming ambition for decades.

He says it is unthinkable that such a major agency would be beyond the reach of congressional auditors in the GAO. He also has been critical generally of the Federal Reserve for its money management, in particular for allowing interest rates to rise to historic double-digit highs.

The Banking Subcommittee on domestic finance has scheduled hearings for this summer into the Federal Reserve's policies in the current economic morass.

Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, plans to offer an amendment, which Patman says would cripple the bill but which Ashley says would keep it from destroying the Federal Reserve's independence in shaping economic policy.

He would limit the audit to a scrutiny of its financial and operational practices, and not an evaluation of Fed policies.

He said that despite objections from Congress to certain judgments by the Federal Reserve Board, "the Congress has historically taken the position that it is better for the Fed to be independent of political pressures in the conduct of its monetary policies than to be subject to such pressures."

House votes to fund remaining OEO programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to keep the Office of Economic Opportunity's remaining major programs alive, sidestepping President Nixon's attempts to do away with the antipoverty agency.

By a vote of 331 to 53 on Wednesday, the House disbanded OEO but created a new administration within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to run its community action programs at a cost of $380 million.

Nixon had transferred away most of the antipoverty agency's programs before his final moves were blocked by a court decision last year.

Nixon left OEO and community action out of his January budget, saying the program's costs should be shouldered by state and local governments if the 932 action agencies around the country were to stay in business.

Nixon's budget action will have the effect of killing the program unless the Senate acts and both houses agree on fresh legislation by June 30.

In effect, the House voted to kill OEO in name, but not in spirit, 10 years after it was established as a keystone in former President Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society.

Community action was one of the main, controversial cutting edges of OEO in the mid-1960s. But it has developed into a largely favored local institution for providing a variety of assistance and services to the poor.

Supporters for keeping community action included Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, Republican Mayor Richard Lugar of Indianapolis, the AFL-CIO, antipoverty organizations and the Congressional Black Caucus.

Another key aspect of community action is that its local agencies employ 185,000 persons, mostly poor, who would add to the welfare rolls if the program ended.

The House legislation created a Community Action Administration within HEW with a director to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., moved to allow HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger power to disperse community action functions throughout the department. Quie lost 284-94.

Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., said that the House, by going along with Quie, would be killing the antipoverty program by letting it disappear into the massive HEW bureaucracy.

By a vote of 264 to 122, the House defeated an amendment of Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., which would have put the responsibility for continuing local action agencies on state and local governments, instead of Washington.

Managers of the legislation such as Hawkins essentially shaped the final form of the bill in committee, compromising to build broad enough support to override a potential veto. Wednesday's vote, if repeated, would be ample for an override.

Originally, Hawkins and other advocates wanted to simply continue OEO as an independent agency.

IRS denies pressure in certain tax audits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says it found a number of errors in its original audits of White House friends and enemies, but contends the mistakes were "unrelated to political pressure."

The existence of the errors was disclosed in court papers filed in U.S. District Court. The IRS at first refused to discuss the documents but later denied the errors were connected to allegations that the White House used the tax agency to harass its political opponents.

Burke W. Willsey, assistant to the commissioner of internal revenue, said, "Because we had mistakes in our audit process is no indication there was any political interference." But he and other IRS officials refused to release the report on which the court documents were based.

The documents were submitted by the government in a Freedom of Information Act suit filed by Robert M. Brandon of the Tax Reform Research Group, a Washington-based organization. Brandon is seeking release of White House and IRS documents relating to political opponents and supporters of President Nixon, whom former White House counsel John W. Dean III testified received special attention from IRS.

William C. Rankin Jr., director of the internal audit division of the IRS, said in a sworn affidavit in the case that Commissioner Donald C. Alexander ordered an investigation of Dean's charges last July 2, the week after Dean testified before the Senate Watergate committee.

"As a result of this investigation, I have initiated a report to appropriate service officials on cases which were handled erroneously or not in accordance with established procedures..." Rankin said. "I have reported systems and procedural deficiencies to appropriate service officials so that they could take the necessary corrective action."

Bust unveiled

Many parents neglect children's vaccinations

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Despite effective vaccines, epidemics of childhood diseases still could erupt nationwide partly because of the complacency of parents in having their children immunized, a health official warns.

"The ho-hum attitude of parents that immunization can be put off until a child enrolls in school is part of the reason for the problem," Dr. John J. Witte, chief of the immunization branch of the Center for Disease Control, said Wednesday.

"We've come a good way down the road because of our recent massive immunization program, but we're not up to the level where we feel successful," he said. "... We need another peak effort to alert parents to the problem."

What led to the CDC's massive immunization program was a federal survey last year that showed as many as five million preschool youngsters hadn't been vaccinated against the contagious and sometimes fatal diseases of measles, rubella, mumps, diphtheria, whooping cough and polio.

The survey showed that 37 per cent of the nation's preschoolers needed polio immunization — the worst rate since the epidemics of the early 1960s — that 38 per cent needed measles immunization and that 43 per cent hadn't had a rubella vaccination.

Although not all the data is in, Witte said there is enough to show that since the immunization program in which state health departments and medical associations participated last fall, polio vaccinations are up at least 20 per cent over a comparable period in 1973.

"We're very fortunate we've had no epidemic or outbreak," however, Witte said.

Since the introduction of a vaccine, Witte said measles cases in the United States fell from 385,000 in 1963 to 22,000 in 1968. The death toll dropped from 364 to 24 in the same period.

But an epidemic in 1971 raised the toll to 75,000 cases with 75 deaths, according to federal figures.

Of the laxity of parents in having their children immunized against such diseases, Witte says:

"This generation of young parents does not have the fear (of these diseases) that parents did 10 years ago. They're not as strongly motivated."

Johnson bust at Smithsonian

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took four years for sculptress Jimilu Mason to finish a 24-inch bust of late President Lyndon B. Johnson. The result is now on display at the National Portrait Gallery.

Lady Bird Johnson formally presented the bust, her favorite, in a ceremony Wednesday night at the gallery, a branch of the Smithsonian Institution.

"We weren't too successful in getting him to sit," Mrs. Johnson remarked about the time stretch, from 1959 to 1963, needed before the bust was finished.

Miss Mason, of Alexandria, Va., was subsequently appointed by President Johnson to the National Council on the Arts.

"He was a big man, a giant," said Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., in a tribute to Johnson, whom he served as vice president. "When he embraced you you were embraced; and when he chastised you were chastised. There was no doubt about it."

Gas economy. Just one reason why the all new Ford Mustang II has been named Motor Trend Car of the Year

Ford Mustang II Ghia

"An outstanding concept of affordable luxury and prestige in a small package." Editors Motor Trend

It takes a remarkable car to be Car of the Year. Especially this year.

Because this year it takes a car designed to meet today's need for real economy of operation. Well, Mustang II is an all new car designed to meet that need.

That's why Mustang II is small in size. Almost 19 inches smaller than last year's model. Even a bit smaller than the original Mustang of 10 years ago.

And because Mustang II is small, it's economical to operate and maintain.

We also made Mustang II lighter. A full 400 pounds lighter than the '73 Mustang.

And we gave Mustang II a newly designed 4-cylinder overhead cam engine. Its 2.3 liter displacement means it's lively. Yet it still delivers good gas economy. Especially since it's built to run on regular gas.

Also available is a compact, lightweight V-6. It, too, uses regular gas and is economical to operate.

Economy of operation isn't the only reason Mustang II was named Car of the Year. Mustang II was selected because it's the right car at the right time. And that means it offers the right kind of standard features:

- A luxurious interior with individual seats, full width headrests, deep padded doors, carpeting front and rear
- Beautifully functional instrument panel complete even with tachometer

- A short throw, fully synchronized four speed transmission
- Manual front disc brakes
- Rack and pinion steering
- A new suspension designed to ride with surprising smoothness
- Jewel-like detail and finish everywhere. For example, the extra bright moldings around the windows and wheel openings.

And Mustang II gives you a choice of options, so you can make your own kind of luxurious car.

The right car for value.

Never before have we put such luxury and comfort, elegance and quality, into one small package. And what a package. We built Mustang II to be a little jewel of a car. With extra close fitting trim and moldings. With extra close paint. With real care and attention to even the smallest detail.

But to fully appreciate Mustang II, you just have to drive it. There's rack and pinion steering and a whole new kind of smooth riding suspension system that makes it hard to believe you're in a small car. If you've ever driven any other small cars you'll understand when we say: This is one small car that doesn't talk back to you.

Mustang II gives you a choice of two body styles with four new models: 2-Door Hardtop and Ghia; 3-Door 2 + 2; and the sporty Mach 1.

The base sticker price for Mustang II is surprisingly low, considering the level of luxury that's standard. And that makes it the kind of value that's right any time.
